BOMB IN ROYALTY'S MAIL INJURES 4 POSTAL WORKERS

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A mysterious explosion among mail addressed to the Buckingham Palace and Whitehill district today injured four postoffice employes and wrecked a truck.

Operatives of Scotland Yard and other government agencies are investigating.

The explosion occurred in a mail van loaded in London's central mail sorting station.

Official interest was intensified by the fact that the district to which the bag was consigned contained the official residence of the sovereign.

The Evening Standard said it understood the bag contained mail addressed to Buckingham Palace.

KING BORIS MAY WED PRINCESS GIOVANNA

ROME, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—It was reported today that the bethrothal of the Princess Giovanna, 23-year-old daughter of the King of Italy, and King Boris, of Bulgaria, known as the "Bachelor King," would be announced at once.

Both the King and the princess, as well as their governments, have been favorable, but the religious difficulty hitherto has prevented the engagement. It is understood that this has now been removed.

The formal announcement is to come from Premier Mussolini as minister of the interior.

DORMONT EMBEZZLER SENTENCED TO 4 YRS.

Attorney Winfield S. Walsh, who pleaded guilty to embezzling funds of two Dormont building and loan associations, of which he was counsel, was sentenced to four years in jail and to pay a fine of $10,000 by Judge George V. Moore in Criminal Court today.

Attorney C. H. Bracken, who had investigated Walsh's peculations, at the request of the court, said the amount embezzled would likely total $200,000. The indictments charged Walsh with defrauding the Thrift Building and Loan Association of about $30,000 and the Dormont association of $20,000.

Bracken disclosed that the Dormont Mortgage and Investment Company had gone into the hands of a receiver yesterday, as a result of Walsh's manipulations, involving between $50,000 and $60,000. This was described as "Walsh's own company."

Bracken said:

"Five Hundred stockholders of the Thrift Association lost all their earnings over a period of seven years. The condition of the Dormont Association is even worse."

Judge Moore, in sentencing Walsh, said:

"You have brought disgrace upon the bar. I will make the sentence fit the crime. These people whom you defrauded are the home-buying, saving kind, the bulwark of the nation."

TOMORROW IS LAST REGISTRATION DAY

Tomorrow is the last day on which citizens of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton not previously registered this year, may enroll as voters for the election Nov. 4.

Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy announced today that the tax collector's office will remain open tomorrow until 5 p. m. instead of closing at noon, the usual Saturday closing hour. This action was taken in order that voters can pay their taxes and become eligible for registration.

Polling places will be open in each Pittsburgh election district from 7 to 10 a. m. and from 4 to 10 p. m. Polling places in the other cities will be open from 7 to 9 a. m.; from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m.; and from 4 to 10 p. m.

Many of the polling places are in new locations as a result of the Redistricting Commission's action in reducing the number of election districts. Voters may get directions to their polling places by telephoning to the Registration Commission, Atlantic 4900.

KEYSTONE DAY ENDS SAFETY MEET HERE

Education for the motorist rather than more laws is the solution for accident prevention on streets and highways, Benjamin G. Eynon, Pennsylvania commissioner of motor vehicles, today told Safety Congress delegates on the Pennsylvania Day program.

The state day was being observed as the closing event of the nineteenth annual congress, which drew 7,000 delegates here for the largest convention ever held in the city. The morning was devoted to talks on community safety. Hundreds of foremen from throughout Western Pennsylvania were attending a foremen's forum in Syria Mosque this afternoon. An executive banquet tonight in the William Penn Hotel, with Secretary of Labor James J. Davis and Mayor Charles H. Kline

The President's Speech.

Mussolini's Program.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE PRESIDENT'S optimistic view of the near future, backed by sound facts and figures, should comfort many doubting Americans who thought the world had come to an end when violent stock gambling produced its usual result.

Particularly important is the fact, usually forgotten, that this nation consumes 90 per cent of all its products. If tomorrow the people of the United States, consumers and distributors, should resume their normal purchasing, instead of holding back, in a vague, foolish fear, our prosperity conditions would immediately become 97 per cent of normal.

AMERICANS NOW hoarding, they know not why, should remember that the 1930 dollar will do almost twice the buying work of a 1929 dollar. Buy now, the dollar's 1930 value will not endure.

IF HENRY FORD'S latest prediction becomes reality, this country will consume all it can produce, and more, barring, perhaps, superfluous food products. And if they can be produced as cheaply in proportion as our automobiles are produced, our farms could undersell the world, as our automobile and moving picture factories do.

MR. FORD PREDICTS a minimum pay for workers of $27 a day by 1950, the five-day week to be universal, giving the $27-a-day man leisure to enjoy his earnings, automobile, radio, etc.

TO MANY, that seems preposterous—almost criminal. But not long ago there was only one man in the United States that could earn a dollar a day the year round. The increase from

Lipton Home, Admits He'll Try Again

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Still cheerful, enthusiastic and more determined than ever, Sir Thomas Lipton returned to England today with the definite announcement he would build another boat to try once more for America's cup, symbolic of international yacht racing supremacy.

The veteran sportsman, undaunted by his fifth consecutive defeat off Newport, R. I., this year, dispelled all reports to the effect he was through trying for the coveted cup. He said:

"I'm going back to have another try for that old mug as soon as I build a Shamrock VI.

"I have no fault to find with this year's race, except that perhaps the boat racing against us went a little bit too fast."

Vare Suffers Paralysis Relapse

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—William S. Vare, Republican leader of Philadelphia, was reported to have sugered a setback at his Atlantic City home today and was confined to his bed.

It was reported that it was a recurrence of the illness which followed the paralytic stroke suffered in August, 1928.

McGovern Inspects Vote Machine Plant

To determine for himself just how well the Poole Engineering and Machine Company is equipped to carry out its contract to furnish vote machines for Allegheny County, Commissioner Charles C. McGovern is in Baltimore today inspecting the company's plant. McGovern went east last night, the commissioners on Wednesday having granted a 90-day extension to the company for furnishing between 70 and 75 vote machines, ordered for October 1 delivery.

Harry F. Sinclairs Received by Pope

DUQUESNE IS HOST TO DETROIT TECH

The Duquesne gridders will present a slightly changed lineup when they meet the Detroit Tech eleven under the Forbes Field arc lights at 8:15 tonight.

Joe McCarthy, veteran quarterback, has been suffering from a hip injury, and Smoke Abele, wingman, may do the punting against the Michiganders. Coach Elmer Layden is not satisfied with the work of his punters, and Abele has been groomed as a kicker during the past week.

Detroit Tech is a comparative newcomer to college football, and the Bluffites are strong favorites to score a decisive victory.

NEW CHARGES GIVEN TO BISHOP CANNON

By PIERCE MILLER
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—That Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Church South, has been personally informed of the nature of the new charges filed against him by four traveling elders of the church, involving his moral fitness to remain a frocked churchman, became known today.

The charges were declared the most serious ever made against a member of the Southern Methodist clergy. Utmost care is being exercised to be sure church law is being followed closely.

At a secret conference, at which at least one of Cannon's accusers was present, Bishop W. N. Ainsworth, of Birmingham, Ala., who received the charges, made an unexpected visit to the capital.

He called the fiery, fighting foe of liquor before him. The one accuser known to have been present was Dr. Forest J. Pettyman, one-time chaplain of the Senate here, and now head of a fashionable church in Baltimore.

Cannon, who returned from Brazil only last Monday with the bride he married unexpectedly in London during the summer, has definitely determined not to attack the legality of the charges under church law, it was said authoritatively.

The next step will be announcement by Bishop Ainsworth of the appointment of 42 elders from the church at large, who will decide if Cannon must stand trial at the next general conference in 1934. If they so decide, he faces suspension from all church activities.

COOL GREETING GIVEN CARDS IN ST. LOUIS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.—The diamond warriors representing St. Louis and Philadelphia in the 1930 World Series arrived here from Philadelphia this afternoon ready to resume their battle at Sportsman's Park tomorrow.

Several hundred faithful followers were on hand to greet the Cards as they arrived in a special train, but little enthusiasm was displayed.

There were occasional cheers and some handclapping as the players made their way through the Midway, but both players and spectators appeared dejected and had little to say. A fife and drum corps played while the players got into taxicabs and left for their hotels.

FAITH PROSPERITY KEY, HOOVER SA...

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Hoover returned to the capital today from his initial foray into the field of off-year politics—a trip which saw him chart the position of his party on the current business depression, and enunciate the doctrine that, depresion or not, there shall be no lowering of the American standard of living.

Before an audience of 7,000 bankers, members of the American Banking Association, Mr. Hoover last night declared his faith in the fundamental soundness of the country's economic system, and asserted that:

"Any recession in American business is but a temporary halt in the prosperity of a great people."

He appealed to the bankers to be optimistic but to exercise sober judgment in the economic crisis through which the country is passing, and at the same time he admonished the "die-hards" among them not to seek advantage in the circumstances that now prevail.

STARS OF BROADWAY AT DONAHUE FUNERAL

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—In the heart of the theatrical district where so recently the boards clattered to his rhythmic dancing, funeral services were held today for Jack Donahue.

Requiem mass was celebrated in St. Malachy's Church, which was crowded with actors and admirers who had come to pay their last respects to the comedian-dancer who lifted himself to Broadway stardom.

The street was packed more than an hour and all traffic had to be diverted.

The services were attended by many from the theatrical world, prominent actors, directors and girls who had danced in the choruses of Donahue's successes.

Ed Wynn, Oscar Shaw, Thomas Meighan, Jack Hazzard, Lynn Overman and a host of other notables of stage and screen were there.

Only a few weeks ago Donahue's "Sons O' Guns" closed its long Broadway run in a theater just a few blocks below the church. A little more than a week ago he had to leave the show in Cincinnati and return to New York under medical care. He died on Wednesday, in his thirty-ninth year.

FIND STRIKE 'PETREL' BEATEN, BADLY HURT

Joseph DeRocco, 28, Mt. Lebanon, who, police say, was arrested a number of times in connection with both the taxicab and Liberty Dairy strikes, was found badly beaten and unconscious at Fifth avenue and Tunnel street early today.

Passing motorists took him to Mercy Hospital. He suffered a broken right leg and internal injuries. His condition was regarded as serious.

STATE CANDIDATES URGE UNITY AT HARRISBURG RALLY

GOV. FISHER FOR WHOLE TICKET

Pinchot, Davis Also Pledge Support to G. O. P. Slate; Speak on Capitol Steps

HARRISBURG, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—In the shadow of the state capitol, ruled for years by Republicans, the Republican party of Pennsylvania yesterday placed on display for the first time its complete ticket with a united appeal for a straight party vote in the November general election.

The meeting, held as a regional rally to launch formally the Republican state campaign in 32 Central Pennsylvania counties, was addressed by Gifford Pinchot, Republican gubernatorial nominee, and James J. Davis, nominee for the United States Senate, among other candidates. Gov. Fisher made his first appearance at a political meeting this year to add his urging to that of the candidates, and Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, for a complete Republican victory.

THOUSANDS ATTEND

Several thousand persons, including many state officeholders and political leaders of various parts of the commonwealth, stood or sat on the Capitol steps for an hour of speechmaking.

Long lines of people, told by Pinchot, "I don't want to shake hands with anyone who doesn't vote, whether you vote for me or against me," greeted the candidates with handshaking following the meeting.

The speeches of both Gen. Martin and Gov. Fisher contained several veiled references to the threat of party bolting by certain elements of the Philadelphia Republican organization disgruntled at the nomination of Pinchot. Gen. Martin said:

"The people of Pennsylvania cannot with safety cast aside their political ideals because of differences of opinion as to nominees or principles advocated."

FISHER FOR TICKET

Reminding the audience of the party's factional differences in the primary campaign, Gov. Fisher declared:

"Although I can't say I won all my votes in the primary, I made a public announcement that I was for the entire ticket as nominated as soon as we were reasonably sure of the result. Despite the fact that I can conceive conditions wherein I would not support the whole Republican ticket, I can see no reason whatsoever for bolting the ticket now.

"I'm going to vote for the straight Republican ticket."

Pinchot said:

"I am not only for Gifford Pinchot, but for the whole ticket from one end to the other, state and nation."

Davis appealed to his audience to "roll up a huge majority for the whole ticket," as evidence of its faith in the Hoover administration and the tariff policy of the party.

FORMER RIVALS' SPEAK

READING, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Rivals in the gubernatorial campaign of 1922, will appear on the same platform Saturday when John A. McSparran, Democratic candidate, and Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate, will speak at a Pinchot rally in Rajah Temple. Announcement that McSparran would be among the speakers in the Pinchot campaign meeting was made by Marcus B. Rashe, chairman of the Berks executive committee.

Discover Hazelwood Furniture Man Dead

Police responding to a telephone report found Louis Simon, 55, manager of the Hazelwood Furniture Company, dead, with a bottle by his side, in a field off the 800 block of Forward avenue today. He is believed to have ended his life by poison.

Financial worries were blamed by his family. A note in the dead man's pockets was undecipherable.

Embezzles $61,000, But Market Gets It

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A depleted brokerage account is all that is left of $61,000 he embezzled from the publishing house of Charles Scribner & Sons, Eric Magnus, the firm's cashier and bookkeeper, told police today when they arrested him on a charge of misappropriating the funds. Magnus said he lost most of the money in stock speculation.

TAXI MEN SEEK STRIKE VOTE

Officials of the taxicab drivers' union will consult Daniel Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers, as a result of their failure yesterday to confer with Walter S. Laird, head of the Pittsburgh office of the Parmelee Transportation Company.

Demands that the company recognize Fred A. Shaffer as business agent and discontinue hiring out-of-town drivers were to be made by a committee which was to meet with Laird yesterday. Although he declined to say just when Tobin, whose headquarters is in Indianapolis, would be consulted, Shaffer intimated that if consent of Tobin was obtained, a vote on a new strike of Pittsburgh cab drivers would be voted on early next week.

Injunctions Issued Against 2 Places

Two temporary injunctions were granted in Federal Court today by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker, on bills of complaint of Deputy Prohibition Administrator Robert Kruse. The places named were a building at 1106 Webster avenue, naming William Cousin proprietor, and a saloon at 1421 Wylie avenue, rear, Ralph Goodman and Harry Kidd were named as proprietors.

32 TAXI DRIVERS ARRESTED

Thirty-two taxi drivers were arrested today at William Penn way and Oliver avenue, charged with violating the parking laws.

The arrests were made in connection with a crusade waged by Traffic Inspector Jacob Dorsey against drivers blocking traffic at that corner.

The crusade is the result of numerous complaints received by the inspector. According to police, the drivers linger at the corner to obtain parking space in front of the William Penn Hotel, and in doing so block through traffic in Oliver avenue.

Those arrested will be arraigned in Traffic Court next Tuesday.

STATE BUILDING SWEPT BY FIRE

nese wood oil used in sizing the walls before canvas murals were placed on them.

Taylor estimated loss from the fire at $800,000 to $1,000,000 after a preliminary survey of the damaged building.

The loss is believed to be covered by insurance carried by Nelson-Pedley, Inc., Philadelphia contractors. The structure has not as yet been turned over to the state.

FIVE FIREMEN HURT

Five firemen were injured, none seriously, fighting the flames.

Three hundred workmen were thrown out of work temporarily.

Works of art of all kind were destroyed. Murals and paintings in all parts of the building were damaged by smoke.

Although the flames were confined to the auditorium, which projects from the Walnut street side of the $4,000,000 building which was to have been completed and occupied about January 1, 1931, the first floor corridor and all rooms opening into it were blackened with smoke and flooded with water.

Completion of the building will be indefinitely delayed, and it will require several months to replace the ruined works of art.

The blaze was the first of any serious extent on Capitol Hill since the old Capitol was destroyed February 2, 1897.

Coolidge Urges Support For Peace Advocates

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 3.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Some time ago one of these dispatches referred to the difference in policy between the United States and the league of Nations concerning national defense. We have sought security through disarmament while the league members have emphasized the necessity of a large force to protect each other. Consequently, the Versailles Treaty provision for disarmament has not yet been executed.

Calvin Coolidge

Henderson, for England, has since made the same charge before the league concerning disarmament. It has been reiterated by Bernstorff, for Germany, Briand, for France, has admitted it. But he enters a plea in bar by stating that some nations have questioned the duty of going to the defense of other members of the league and, therefore, each must have a large force to protect itself.

As the league seems to recognize its obligations, probably in time some way will be found to meet them. Undoubtedly the predominant elements in France and Germany are for peace through accommodation and mutual forbearance. In that effort they should have the sympathy and support of the public opinion of the world. The interest of the United States in European peace, as we found in 1917, is more than academic.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

BROADCASTING OF CONGRESS FAVORED

Senators Brookhart and King Approve Plan as Step To Enlighten Nation

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Hearty approval of the campaign launched by the Washington Herald to broadcast the proceedings of Congress was expressed by Senators Smith W. Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, and William H. King (Dem.), of Utah.

Senator Brookhart said:

"I heartily approve of broadcasting everything that is said on the floor of Congress. In my opinion the people of the country would like to hear the debates, in taking of votes and other procedure, and I believe voters throughout the nation are entitled to know what goes on in the National Legislature. It would be informative and instructive.

CHANGE BEHAVIOR

"Also I believe broadcasting of the procedure would make a big difference in the behavior and utterances of a considerable number of senators.

"I am strong for it and all the progressives of both parties with whom I have talked about the matter are in favor of it. Eventually it will be done and the next session of Congress, as well as any other, might as well provide for it."

KING APPROVES

Senator King said:

"The proposition to have installed in the Senate and House of Representatives a broadcasting equipment by which the proceedings of Congress may be carried to the people has merit and deserves the serious consideration of the members of the national legislature.

"Undoubtedly many citizens are profoundly interested in some of the proceedings of Congress, and there are occasions when addresses of national and international import are delivered that not only the citizens of the United States, but perhaps the citizens of other countries, would be glad to hear.

"I am sure that when the matter is presented to Congress for determination it will receive serious consideration."

Representatives Here Approve Radio Plan

Local representatives in Congress, who were available here today, see merit in the proposal to broadcast Congressional proceedings. Congressional Nominee Edmund F. Irk, who seeks the post of the late Stephen G. Porter, also expressed his views. The comments:

E. F. Erk:

"I think broadcasting important proceedings would be a splendid public service. There would be less nonsense, for some would know how to take better care of themselves. Broadcasting was tried out several years ago, but for some reason did not prove a success at that time."

Congressman P. J. Sullivan:

"There are times, no doubt, when broadcasting the proceedings of Congress would be of great interest to the public. However, before I commit myself on the entire question, I would like to know just what the real plans are. It would be a splendid thing at times."

Congressman H. W. Temple, Washington, Pa.:

"The general public would not be interested in all of the proceedings, but would be interested in the consideration of important public questions. Broadcasting was tried out once, but at that time no one cared much about it. There are times when the proceedings would be interesting and would be a public service of importance."

Anti-Dry Is Victor In Congress Race

PORT HURON, Mich., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Representative Louis C. Cramton, House dry leader, today conceded his defeat by Jesse P. Wolcott, Port Huron attorney, in the primary race for the Republican nomination for representative from the Seventh Congressional District.

The final margin between the two candidates was 25 votes. Wolcott advocated a referendum on the prohibition question during his campaign and expressed dissatisfaction with the dry laws.

Safety Bureau Here Held Key to Traffic Problem

Pittsburgh's Better Traffic Bureau was credited today as an example of a logical solution to a city's traffic studies by Prof. Miller McClintock, of Harvard University, addressing the traffic school of the National Safety Congress.

Proper presentation of facts, he declared, was a necessary factor in gaining the support of business interests for regulations and changes. He said:

"The interest in traffic problems is always present. The job is to concentrate that interest into active support. There is no better example of the means of reaching the goal than through a traffic bureau such as conducted here.

"In many surveys, I have never found the merchant unwilling to give support to a movement, no matter how radical the proposed regulations might be, provided the facts were logically presented in the manner as he views facts in the conduct of his business. Facts always overcome opposition."

KEYSTONE DAY AT SAFETY MEET

among the speakers, was to be the closing event.

DISCUSS AUTO PROBLEM

Speaking on the community safety program with Commissioner Eynon were Burton W. Marsh, Philadelphia traffic engineer and former Pittsburgher, and Henry A. Reninger, of Allentown, past National Safety Council president.

Pointing out that until education and example can change the habits and psychology of the greater portion of motorists, that the accident toll will continue mounting, Commissioner Eynon said:

"It will always be necessary to have laws and regulations. The demand for them would not be so great, nor would there be so many of them on our statute books, if so many of our otherwise respectable and gentlemanly citizens when they seat themselves behind the wheel of a motor car did not immediately lose all trace of those attributes of courtesy and humanity that they find necessary and pleasurable in their other human contacts.

"What we really need more than any other thing is a real education program."

William A. Thatcher, assistant secretary to Maj. Harry A. Mackey, of Philadelphia, read the latter's address due to the executive's inability to be here. Frank R. Phillips, senior vice president of the Philadelphia Company, was chairman of the session.

Safety education for the child of today was declared a step towards accident reduction in years to come by Marsh, who said:

"As the present generation of children continues to grow into maturity, it will be for them to decrease accidents in the future. But now their lives are snuffed out by the 'oldsters' who continue to drive recklessly."

Speaking at the Foremen's Forum were State Labor Secretary Peter Glick, of Pittsburgh; President John A. Phillips, of the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, and M. P. Grady, of Canton, a Pennsylvania Railroad foreman.

DAVIS TO SPEAK

Mayor Kline is scheduled to give the address of welcome on tonight's program on which James Francis Burke will serve as toastmaster. Secretary Davis will speak on safety and the worker, while other speakers will include I. Lamont Hughes, president of the Carnegie Steel Company, and George W. McCandless, vice president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association.

Several sectional meetings of the congress were held during the day. Home safety was an important subject during the morning, while Prof. Miller McClintock, of Harvard University, lauded the Pittsburgh Better Traffic Bureau as a logical means of traffic improvement in speaking before the traffic school.

First Aid Classes At Baptist Church

Following up the National Safety Congress here, special classes in first aid will begin next Sunday at the First Baptist Church, Bellefield avenue. Red Cross certificates will be given men and women completing the eight week's course. Special lectures on personal and public health will be given by prominent doctors.

NYE UPHOLDS OIL FRAUD CHARGES

Declares Ex-Land Office Official Justified in Demanding Lease Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Chairman Nye, of the Senate Lands Committee, said today he thought Ralph S. Kelley, former chief of the Federal Land Office at Denver, was "quite thoroughly justified" in his charges of maladministration of Colorado oil shale lands.

The North Dakotan had conferred more than an hour today with Kelley. He expressed hope the Department of Justice would take full and speedy action on the charges.

WILBUR INNOCENT

The former official's explanation convinced Nye that Secretary Wilbur was not responsible for the alleged improper handling of the oil lands, he said, but someone was responsible and should be questioned. Nye said:

"Kelley's charges do not go to the door of Secretary Wilbur. There is a door to which his objections lead, however, and this door should be opened."

KELLEY SUSPENDED

Kelley resigned last Sunday. Secretary Wilbur refused his resignation and suspended him pending inquiry into the charges. Assistant Attorney General Seth W. Richardson is investigating at the Department of Justice, and has offered Kelley the chance to lay all his facts before him.

The Denver man charged "concession after concession" had been made to large oil companies in the Colorado shale fields, billions of dollars of which, he asserted, were the subject of illegal attempts for possession.

Hole-in-One Judge Challenges John D.

STERLING, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Judge H. C. Ward, 80, has written a challenge to John D. Rockefeller, Sr., for a game of golf. Judge Ward's courage was heightened considerably when he made a hole in one at Rock River last Saturday.

'3-X' SLAYER RETURNS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—The amazing 3-X killer has returned.

He promised two more murders, naming today as the zero hour, and says his victims are already prisoners, in a long letter to the New York Evening Journal.

There is every indication that the letter was written by the same 3-X who wrote to the Evening Journal of the murder of Noel Sowley in Queens before the body of Sowley was discovered, and who boasted that he shot down Joseph Mozynski, College Point grocer, during a tryst.

2 WOMEN HELD IN CHINA SLAIN

PEIPING, China, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Messages reaching the British consul at Foochow today said that Miss Edith Nettleton and Miss Eleanor June Harrison, British missionaries who were captured last July by Communists at Chungan, Northern Funkein province, had been shot.

Although the consular authorities are attempting to verify the dual killing there appears no reason to doubt the truth of the report. Only last week a letter was received insisting that the women would be killed unless the ransom money was forthcoming.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The public generally and missionary circles particularly today were deeply moved by advices that Chinese Communist bandits had killed the two British missionaries, Miss Edith Nettleton and Miss Eleanor June Harrison, in lieu of ransom for their release.

The Rev. W. W. Cash, the society's secretary, said that up until today hopes were entertained for release of the two.

Marmon Church Opens Conference

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Members of the Latter Day Saints Church from many parts of the world were gathered here today for the opening of the one hundred and first semi-annual conference of the organization. The sessions will continue through Sunday.

Speaking before the relief society of the church, President Grant declared the world now knows the members of the church for what they are—as God-fearing and devout people of the highest integrity.

22 Universal Men Ask Fire Charter

Application for a charter for the Universal Volunteer Fire Department, for the purpose of forming a volunteer company at Universal, Penn Township, was filed in Common Pleas Court by 22 members of the organization.

RESCUE DOCTOR IN KIDNAPING

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Dr. Frank L. McPhail, a Highland Park physician, was kidnaped last night and held captive until this morning in a vacant house, from which he was released by police after he attracted attention by throwing prescription papers out of a window.

A man said by police to have been left to guard the physician was arrested. He gave his name as Frank Sabino.

Police reported that when Dr. McPhail's father, Dr. Malcolm McPhail, went to arrange for payment of ransom at 6 a. m. today, he was abducted, but was released later after being driven to the neighborhood in which the son had been held.

Jobless Not Wanted, Detroit Tells World

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The city of Detroit today was engaged, figuratively speaking, in posting huge "keep out" signs at the city's gateways, directed to those who come here looking for jobs.

The inflow of jobless has increased materially, city officials found, since the systematic program of Mayor Frank Murphy and industrial leaders interested in unemployment has been placed in operation.

Rudder in Lake Seen As Clue to Skelton

Damage Reported In Persian Quake

TEHERAN, Persia, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—An earthquake was reported today to have done serious damage in the vicinity of the mineral wells near Damzvend, 40 miles north of Teheran. Details are lacking.

SHIP HELPLESS, AID SPEEDED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Naval radio reported this morning two vessels speeding to the aid of the U. S. S. Montcalm, station ship of Guantanamo, Cuba, which yesterday called for help after running into heavy seas 500 miles southeast of Charleston, S. C.

The destroyer Concord, flagship of the scouting fleet destroyer squadrons, detached itself from its command to rush southward, but did not expect to reach the Montcalm until nightfall. The S. S. Orbita, a mail ship bound for Europe, reported to the Charleston naval base that she was heading for the Montcalm and would stand by, taking off the crew if necessary. The dispatches did not give the Orbita's position.

Eskimo, Peary Guide, Wife, Lost in Arctic

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Pennepaw, aged Eskimo who was a driver for Admiral Peary on his Arctic expedition, is missing in the Far North with his wife, George P. MacKenzie, commander of this year's Canadian government Arctic expedition, reported on his return here.

MacKenzie said that Pennepaw and his wife started in their komatik on a hunting expedition off North Greenland and never were heard from.

Nebraska Nominee Campaigns Only After Dark

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Nebraska is to witness a nocturnal political campaign.

Announcing yesterday that the pressure of executive duties demanded that he remain at his desk during daylight hours, Gov. Arthur J. Weaver, Republican, declared he would fill only twilight speaking engagements in his quest for re-election. He declared:

"I will accept all the engagements that I can fill that will permit me to be back at my desk the next morning."

CHARGE LAXITY IN COLLAPSE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Lax methods by the city's building inspection department were charged today following the collapse of a building in which five persons were killed and seven others injured. The building had not been inspected, city officials admitted.

Warrants have been issued for officers of a wrecking company which was tearing down buildings adjoining the structure which collapsed.

3,000 SEEK 700 CITY JOBS

There was another rush today of unemployed persons for the 700 jobs available in the city Department of Public Works. Nearly 700 new applicants jammed the fifth floor of the City-County Building seeking work, bringing the total of applicants well over the 3,000 mark.

T. F. Hansberry, secretary of the Civil Service Commission, asked the health department for two additional doctors to aid in physical examination of the applicants. The bureau of the handicapped reported a list of 1,306 men and women who seek work of any kind.

Vesuvius Increases Lava Flow Activity

NAPLES, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The activity of Vesuvius was increasing today, but with no immediate danger anticipated. The crater had become enlarged 100 feet and a stream of lava 20 feet wide was flowing at the rate of 15 feet a minute down what is known as the "Infernal Valley."

Hiking Club Sets Walk to Coraopolis

DRIVER SAYS HE SAW SKIDMORE

An unidentified motorist informed Motorcycle Patrolman Arthur Jennings, at Federal and Ohio streets, today that he had seen a man resembling George C. Skidmore, fugitive, wanted in the slaying here of a gasoline station attendant, along a mountain near Mahaffey, Clearfield County, early this morning.

The motorist said the man was clambering up the mountain side without saying a word, and disappeared. Police flashed the information over the teletype.

Boy Killed as Plane Falls in Take-off

ATTICA, O., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—One boy was killed and another seriously injured at the Attica fair grounds late yesterday when they were struck by an airplane which crashed in attempting to take-off. The three occupants of the plane escaped injury.

Franklyn Croxton, 11, was killed, and Lloyd M. Kaufman, Jr., 12, was injured. Hospital attaches said he probably would recover.

Get $86 From Trunk Of Restaurant Man

Paul Kultaha, owner of the Pittsburgh Lunch, 303 Market street, reported to police that early today a thief entered his room on the floor above the restaurant and stole $86 from a trunk. Entry to the place was gained by a skeleton key, it was thought.

Ramon Novarro Sued After Auto Crash

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Ramon Novarro, singing screen star, and his chauffeur, Frank Hanson, were named defendants in a $50,000 suit by Harold E. Wisdom, who charged he was injured when his car was in collision with that of the actor.

STUMP TALKIE TO AID TUTTLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Charles H. Tuttle, Republican candidate for governor of New York, today was to make a talking picture record which will be carried throughout the state by a fleet of motor trucks.

Replying to the challenge of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Tuttle said if elected governor he would not approve of any statewide prohibition enforcement measure patterned on the Volstead law.

Gov. Roosevelt is scheduled to make his first campaign speech here tonight when he accepts the Democratic nomination.

SIX MEN FINED IN LOTTERY

Six men, five of them Negroes, admitted writing numbers at a hearing before Magistrate Charles Papale in East End Police Court today. The Negroes said they had been earning a living for some time through the clearing house pool, but were not asked by whom they were employed.

Frank Mengis, of 1021 Evergreen road, arrested yesterday in East Liberty was fined $50 with the alternative of 30 days in the workhouse. The Negroes, arrested in Homewood, were fined $100 each or 60 days in the workhouse. They are Robert Woods, 7405 Tioga street; Logan Gray, 7411 Susquehanna street; David Keane, 7717 Thorn street; Elmer Sellers, 7409 Tioga street; Walter Doszell, 7717 Thorn street.

Henry Jones, Negro, of 113 East Jefferson street, was arrested at Taylor avenue and Day street today, suspected of writing "numbers." Patrolman Thomas English reported he found several lottery books in the Negro's possession. He was lodged in the North Side Police Station pending a hearing tomorrow.

Dawes Geographic Society Delegate

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England, yesterday accepted appointment as the delegate of the National Geographic Society to the one hundredth anniversary celebration of the Royal Geographical Society of England in London October 21. The appointment was accepted in a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation from London with Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society.

New Diving Device To Go Down 6,500 Ft.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Plans for construction of a diving apparatus capable of descending 6,500 feet in the sea and cruising about at that level for eight days were described here today by Dr. Rudolf Engelmann, of Berlin, who said he has been working on the idea since 1928.

Dodge Cuts Prices Day After Chrysler

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—A reduction of $100 on all makes of Dodge motor cars was announced by that automobile company today. Chrysler made known a $50 cut yesterday.

GANG MILLIONS AFTER ALCOCK

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The Herald and Examiner hears that organized crime in Chicago is raising a million dollar fund to be dedicated to the purpose of putting Police Commissioner John Alcock out of office.

The newspaper quotes an undesignated official source:

"We know the fund is being raised. We know it is intended to be one of the biggest underworld lobby funds ever collected in Chicago."

The money is to be used discreetly, according to the newspaper's informant.

The need for "discretion" is taken to indicate that the gang powers are anxious to avoid any "rough stuff" that might stir public indignation.

The newspaper was unable to say today how gangland intended to use the fund to effect removal of the police commissioner. The reason Alcock is wanted out of the way, the paper explained, is because of his activity in arresting gangsters and in breaking up their system of "fixes."

3 DEAD, 5 HURT IN TORNADO

PUEBLO, Col., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Three persons were killed, one is missing and five were injured in a freak tornado which swept a narrow path near Fowler, 30 miles east of here.

The dead were O. W. Lackey and Mrs. John H. Downing, both of Fowler, and Collie Noble, 55, of Manzanola, Col.

Mrs. Downing and Lackey were in an automobile in the path of the storm. They sought shelter in a small building near the highway, the storm flattened the building, crushing the pair.

Noble was a ranch foreman. He took refuge in a ranch house and the house collapsed.

Don Moe, Golf Star, Gets Steamer Job

SEATTLE, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Perhaps next summer Don Moe, golf star, will yell 'fore' once when his ball is slicing and twice when it is hooking. Kelly Comes Back as Star After Prison Release

By DAVID P. SENTNER.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Young Paul Kelly, who was "in the mud"—as he put it himself—today was seeing blue sky.

Kelly, who spent 25 months in San Quentin Prison for killing the husband of the woman he loved, was hailed by critics today for his performance in "Bad Girl."

Three years ago in Hollywood Ray Raymond, husband of Dorothy Mackaye, screen star, fought with Kelly. Raymond died from the beating.

Kelly was convicted of manslaughter. Miss Mackaye served a year in the same prison for suppressing evidence.

A Broadway first-night audience stood up at the curtain of the premiere of "Bad Girl" and cheered for Paul because he showed he was a good actor.

Kelly was reluctant to resurrect the shadows of yesterday.

"But if it will show the other fellows who have been down that a man can come back and people will root for him, why go ahead," he said.

"Did I love Dorothy Mackaye? I told the world I did from the witness stand.

"Do I still love her? I respect and admire her tremendously—I guess you'd call that love. She is brilliant, lovely and a game girl. She went through it all with her head up and came out smiling. If I can ever see my way clear, I'll marry her."

Women Drivers Terrible, Says 'Heroic' Officer

EVANSTON, Ill., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A brave, brave man is Director Frank Kreml, of the Police Accident Prevention Bureau. He dares to say aloud what most men only think about women drivers.

Women, he said, are largely to blame for traffic accidents.

They never can make up their minds which way to turn, and even when they do, they turn the other way.

They don't know the regulations, and traffic cops can't tell them anything, because the women do all the talking.

Kreml's conclusions have led him to take steps to remedy the sad state of affairs. Next week he will open a school for women drivers.

He feels the women will welcome a chance to learn something. There are other members of the police department, who believe exactly the opposite.

HOOVER CALLS FAITH KEY TO BOOM

to reply to some of the administration critics during the bankers' convention. Mr. Hoover was emphatic that there should be no wage-cutting in the present depression.

Hits Speculation

The President avoided any effort to minimize the gravity of the condition through which the United States and other nations are passing. He cited figures to show that stability will be restored, and that as the United States recovers, other nations more hardly pressed will follow suit.

The President gave as the cause of the depression the collapse of prices due to the overproduction of raw materials, principally outside of the United States, and the consequent collapse in prices and the "overspeculation" in the American and other markets. He said:

"Though our production and consumption has been slowed down to 85 or 90 per cent of normal, yet by the very fact of the steady functioning of the major portion of our system do we have the assurance of our ability and the economic strength to overcome the decline."

Chides Pessimists

The president here took occasion to chide pessimists, who say that conditions will get no better and that the general prosperity of 150 years is at an end. He reminded them that the United States is far better off than other countries, that savings are piling up in banks, people are paying off installment purchases and that abundant capital is now pressing for investment. He declared:

"I always have been and I will remain an unquenchable believer in the resistless, dynamic power of American enterprise. This is no time—an audience of American leaders of business is no place—to talk of any surrender. We have known a thousand temporary setbacks, but the spirit of this people will never brook defeat."

The President said the present experience is not new, and that there have been frequent interruptions to orderly business and progress, and that as the United States recovers from this crisis in the economic life, means must be provided to prevent "other storms" and assure a higher degree of business stability.

Condemns Inflation

He pointed out that, while this is hardly the time for an analysis, a large part of the responsibility is attributable to inflationary booms, which strike some segment of the economic life of the world, and that their result brings depression and hard times.

He said, however, that for the last 10 years, leaders of business had been devoting much study to the causes and effects and that as a result the period of stability between the "storms" is longer, the "storm" is shorter and the relief work far more effective. He said that the "financial ailment" is as susceptible of scientific remedy as typhoid, cholera and smallpox.

The President reviewed his efforts of a year ago, when the depression came, to bring about cooperation among the various nation-al elements and the reorganizati-n of the bankers, laborers, industrialists and other groups.

Tribute to Bankers

The President devoted a large part of his talk to the new role in which the banker finds himself in relation to his community, "no longer the simple function of discounting commercial bills and lending money on first mortgages," but as an adviser in almost every line of business and endeavor. He paid a high tribute to their resource and stability during the period of the depression and the part played in it by the Federal Reserve System. He continued:

"You have already done much and at this juncture the responsibility of those in control of money and credit is very great. Without faith on your part and without your good offices, the early return to full prosperity can not be accomplished. This depression will be shortened largely to the degree that you feel you can prudently, by counsel and specific assistance, instill in your clients from industry, agriculture and commerce a feeling of assurance.

"The income of a large part of our people is not reduced by the depression, but is affected by unnecessary fears and pessimism, the result of which is to slacken the consumption of goods and discourage enterprise.

Unity Needed

"Those of you who have occasion to review the experience of the past will, I believe, join in the thought that there comes a time in every depression when the changed attitude of the financial agencies can help the upward movement in our economic forces.

"I started with the promise that this question of stability was much more than a problem in academic economics—it is a great human problem, for it involves the happiness of millions of homes. A continued unity of effort, both in our present situation and in establishing safeguards for the future, is the need of today. No one can contribute more than our banking community."

ROUT 'REDS' AT HOOVER RALLY

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Charges of mounted policemen and swinging nightsticks broke up an impromptu parade of Communists and unemployed near the Public Hall where President Hoover was addressing the American Bankers Association convention last night.

Policemen used their clubs, spectators said, and motorcycle patrols threw down a smoke screen. In the confusion both the paraders and some of the officers believed tear gas bombs had been thrown, but police denied this later. The demonstration was soon broken up.

Several men were knocked down, a detective was beaten by a parader, one reporter received cuts and bruises that necessitated hospital treatment, another reporter was inadvertently struck with a nightstick wielded by a policeman, and spectators said scores were clubbed by police.

Latin Bandits Kill 1 For $300,000 Payroll

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 2.—(INS.)—In what the newspapers here describe as "true American fashion," a desperate gang of armed bandits invaded the office of the Sanitary Works paymaster here today, shot and killed a man, wounded three others and escaped with a $300,000 payroll.

LOST BETS CUT SHOUSE TAXES

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP)—A Washington dispatch to the New York Times says Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, has been allowed income tax deductions for losses on horse races but not for election bet losses, club dues and entertainment.

The ruling revealed in records of the Board of Tax Appeals was a compromise settlement of a claim of $4,840 which the Treasury Department held was due on Shouse's income tax payments for 1923, 1924 and 1925.

The records reveal Shouse's net losses on horse race bets at Maryland and Kentucky tracks of $5,500 in 1923, $10,904 in 1924 and $6,054 in 1925.

The Treasury Department accepted a total of $1,218 for the unpaid tax bill. A loss of $1,750 in a bet on the 1924 national election result in Maryland was disallowed.

Morrow Campaign Unhalted by Illness

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Dwight W. Morrow, former ambassador to Mexico, was slightly ill today. His condition is not serious, and he was expected to confer later today or tomorrow with leaders on his campaign plans as Republican nominee for United States Senator from New Jersey.

-:- TODAY -:-

one dollar a day for one man only, to six dollars a day, and more, for millions of men, would have seemed as "impossible" as the increase that Mr. Ford suggests, from six dollars to twenty-seven.

NOT VERY LONG ago a president of the United States complained publicly because a good man could not be hired for much less than $100 A YEAR.

There is nothing preposterous or impossible about Mr. Ford's suggestion of $7,020, as minimum pay for 260 days work in the year, 20 years hence.

Raw materials and manufacturing capacity are unlimited. Why should there be any arbitrary limit to the possibilities of wages, and of human enjoyment?

When the earth has more than enough for everybody, why should not everybody have enough?

But do not let future prospects make you discontented with your present condition.

RALPH S. KELLEY, of the field division of the national land office in Denver, accuses government officials of selling out forty billion dollars worth of public shale oil property for $2,000,000.

The wide "spread" between two millions and forty billions amounts to $39,998,000,000.

The charges, made by an official, will have the attention of the President and Secretary Wilbur in spite of the fact that it is impossible to fix any actual value for shale rock containing oil. To extract the oil would not pay at present prices, and it may not be worth while for the next hundred years or longer.

Nevertheless, investigation is necessary of the charges that "dummies" are hired to take up small sections of public land at two dollars and a half an acre. "Dummies" turning their purchases over to big oil companies.

MUSSOLINI SAYS he will do anything to avoid war. And, part of his wise plan for avoiding war is to keep ready for it. He expects to see the prosperity of the whole world restored within three years, and casually says, "Speculators deserve death."

In Russia, they do more than say it. They take the speculators out in twos and dozens, and shoot them, if they speculate in a way that Russia considers injurious.

If we applied that rule in the United States, there would not be enough shooters. However, even this country, tolerating anything done in the name of dollars and profit, might take action with regard to the speculators deliberately conspiring to destroy public confidence, by methods well understood in Wall Street.

DEAN HANFORD, of Harvard, refused a postponement of yesterday's examination of students, requested by Jewish students, forbidden by religious scruples to do any manual work, even writing, on the religious holiday of Yom Kippur. He agreed, however, that Jewish students might dictate answers to questions and that proctors would be provided for the purpose.

Harvard, out of respect for Christianity, has no examinations on Sunday. In the eyes of this government, all religions are entitled to respect. The dean might well have found a day other than Yom Kippur for the examinations, if only for the practical reason that Jews, including Julius Rosenwald, have been among the most generous contributors to the funds of Harvard College. Their contributions have always been accepted.

DR. ZARO AGHA, a Turk visiting America, who thinks he is 156 years old, is probably one of the oldest men living, if not actually 156. Dr. Voronoff, who "restores youth" by gland transplantation, offers to rejuvenate poor old Agha.

No more cruel suggestion could be made. As well drag a weary man from his bed, or give red hot coals to a child.

ANTI-DRY CHIEF DECLARES FOR PINCHOT

Adams Assails Hemphill as Public Utilities 'Pet' And 'Dummy' Candidate

William S. Adams, Central Pennsylvania chairman of the Phillips-Bohlen-Dorrance anti-dry Republican ticket in the primary and a lifelong foe of prohibition, has repudiated the Liberal party and come out for Gifford Pinchot for governor.

The Liberal party is supporting only one candidate for election in November: John M. Hemphill, Democratic nominee for governor.

SEES UTILITIES SCHEME

Adams issued a statement today declaring the prohibition issue is being used for political gain by the public utilities in the gubernatorial campaign. He said:

"Ignoring veteran anti-prohibitionists, the Dorrances and Colemans are 'window dressing' the Liberal party with a 'country club atmosphere.' The silk hats, stuffed shirts and tuxedos in the Liberal party show windows should appeal to the boys in overalls.

"The public utility interests in control of the Liberal party movement, by force of money, have thrown overboard the Phillips-Bohlen county leaders, replacing them with 'pink-tea' lawyers and lobbyists. Between Pinchot, a sincere dry, and a sham anti-dry candidate, a right-thinking and decent citizen can make but one choice.

HEMPHILL ASSAILED

"John M. Hemphill, an unknown in Pennsylvania politics, was selected as a 'dummy' Democratic candidate to insure Francis Shunk Brown's election in the event the latter won the Republican nomination.

"If prohibition were the real issue in this campaign, the Liberal party ticket would be filled from top to bottom with nominations of anti-dry candidates for every office from United States senator and congressmen to assemblymen.

"The Liberal party should be 100 per cent anti-dry in its nominations of candidates and not one-half of one per cent, as it is today with its sole indorsement of Hemphill, the pet of public utilities."

MAGEE QUITS CRUSADERS

Former Congressman James M. Magee has withdrawn from the executive committee of the Crusaders, a political organization opposing Gifford Pinchot for governor.

Magee explained in a letter to Wilson S. McClintock, chairman of the executive committee of the Crusaders, that he consented to be a member of the committee in the belief that the organization's purpose and program was to support legislation which proposed to bring about a change in the present prohibition laws.

After an absence from the city, Magee returned to find that the Crusaders' committee had indorsed Pinchot's opponent, John M. Hemphill, Democratic and Liberal party nominee for governor. Magee stated:

"Although I am pro-wet, this is much farther than I had any idea of going or will go. I am a strong party man and the nomination of my party, certainly for such an important office as the governorship, means a great deal to me.

"Mr. Pinchot won the Republican nomination fairly. While he differs from me on this dry and anti-dry issue, he, as Republican nominee, will most assuredly have my support. I cannot see why he was singled out for opposition as he is but one of a number of dry candidates.

Shop Lifting Charge Gets Pair $25 Fines

Accused of shoplifting, Mrs. Anna Millband, 28, and Mrs. Anna Change, 26, of Bridgeville, were fined $25 by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today. They are alleged to have taken merchandise valued at $30 from Frank & Seder's.

Unable to explain her presence in the Women's City Club at the William Penn Hotel, Sarah Clark, 25, alias Frances Peach, was held for further investigation.

W. Z. Foster, in Jail, Communist Nominee

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP)—A petition bearing 28,272 signatures placing William Z. Foster, of New York City, in nomination as the Communist party candidate for governor was filed in the office of the secretary of state here today. Foster is serving a term at Hart's Island in consequence of a riot at Union Square, New York City, March 6. He is expected to be released October 21.

Culver Academy Head Dies at 57

CULVER, Ind., Oct. 3.—(AP)—E. R. Culver, chairman of the board of trustees of the Culver Military Academy, is dead following a heart attack at his summer cottage on Lake Maxinkuckee, near here. He was 57 years old. He succeeded to the management of the academy after the death of his father, H. H. Culver, its founder.

We Must KNOW Our Groceries To Protect YOU!

Last August when you were told by a certain Pittsburgh food store that "with crops ruined throughout the country canned fruits and vegetables will be scarcer next winter," they tried to scare you into taking old 1929 pack foods off their hands. Then we had to KNOW conditions, KNOW crops, KNOW packers, KNOW our groceries to warn you promptly of the deliberate attempt "to pull a fast one." We were absolutely right when we said:

PAIR JAILED IN SHOOTING

RIDGWAY, Pa., Oct. 3.—As a result of the hearing of Carl J. Malloy, at Emporium, under accusation of shooting John (Rainey) Myers of Ridgway last Sunday, with intent to kill, the accused was committed to the Cameron County jail for trial at the next term of Quarter Sessions Court in default of $10,000 bail. Mrs. Malloy, who was formerly Mrs. Myers, was held in custody in the Cameron County jail in lieu of $1,000 bail as being an accessory to the crime.

Mr. Myers, who had not been living with his wife, who at present was living with Malloy, went to Beechwoods on Sunday to secure his daughter. The daughter made her home with the Malloys. Mr. Malloy refused to give the girl up to her father, and in the ensuing trouble it is alleged secured a revolver and shot Myers. Mr. Myers is now in the Ridgway Hospital, and will probably recover from the wound.

JAPANESE NAVY MINISTER QUITS

TOKIO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Admiral Jakeshi Takarabe, minister of marine, today tendered his resignation to Premier Hamaguchi, who appointed Baron Kiyokaru Abo as his successor.

Admiral Takarabe's resignation was the outgrowth of the long controversy over the naval treaty, which was finally signed and ratified yesterday by the emperor. Admiral Takarabe, who was a delegate at the London Naval Conference, claimed that Japan's naval defenses were unnecessarily weakened by the terms of the treaty.

Baron Abo was naval advisor to the Japanese delegation at London and was a member of the supreme war council.

Society Leaders Get Reno Divorce

RENO, Nev., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Marie T. Wing, New York City and Baltimore social leader, was granted a divorce today from S. Bryce Wing, New York clubman and polo enthusiast.

She alleged extreme cruelty, charging Wing had become cold and indifferent after 10 years of happy married life. Mrs. Wing was given custody of two minor daughters. A property settlement was made out of court.

State Aid Wanted In Highway Link

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 3.—In the proposed extension of the Rochester - Freedom boulevard through Beaver Falls, city council will ask the State Highway Department to designate Ninth avenue as a part of Route 18 and pave 18 feet of the avenue. The new highway would relieve the traffic congestion in lower Seventh avenue, which is now a part of the highway route.

3 Killed as Plane Crashes in Field

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Three men were killed as an airplane in which they had taken off from the Cumberland airport, nine miles west of here, crashed into a field.

The dead were William Skelly, pilot, who was observing his twenty-eighth birthday; Fred Lease, 37, and Glendon Huff, 24.

Gunmen Rob 2 Bank Runners in Canada

MONTREAL, Que., Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Two messengers of the Banque Canadienne Nationale were held up today by three gunmen, who escaped with $7,400 in cash and securities. The messengers fired on the gunmen as they escaped, but it was believed none of the shots took effect.

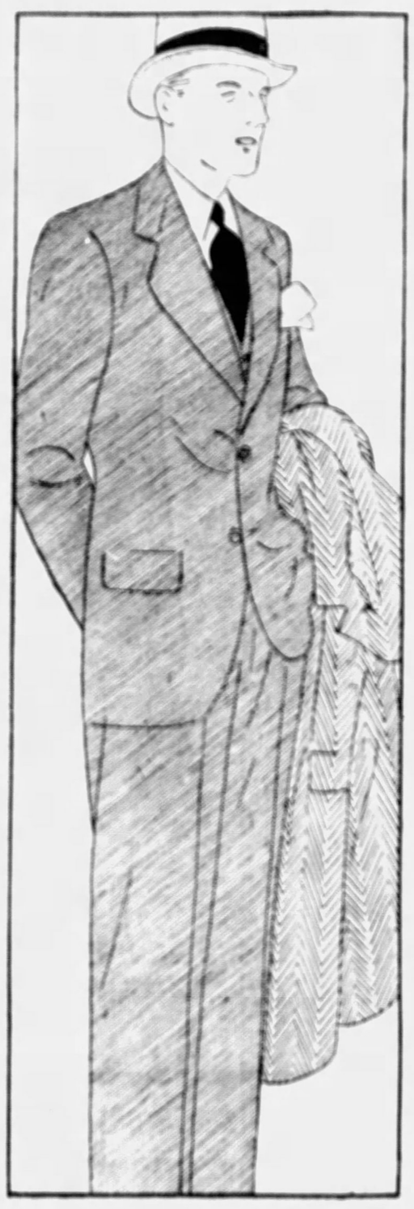
It's the "Constitution" of

STEELCRAFT



Topcoats and Two-Trouser Suits

That Makes Them Such Wonderful Values for

"Style" in boxing, football or clothing is a fine thing. But stamina . . . take-it-iveness . . . is necessary to "last the route."

The stamina of Ste. craft comes from a sound constitution of quality.

Fabrics are chosen for sturdiness. Tailoring is by hand at every point essential to the fit and service of the garment. Button-holes, lapel edges, every innermost stitch, are carefully executed under our direction. No trainer ever laid down more stringent rules than does Horne's in specifying the details of Steelcraft clothes.

Wear a Steelcraft this season and see how well it wears. If you wish, we'll date the label inside the coat pocket . . . and then you'll know to a day!

Last Day Tomorrow—Sale of

A.M.C. Pre-Shrunk Broadcloth Shirts

$1.55 3 for $4.50

Collar-attached or neckband styles. Sizes 13½ to 18.

Second and last day of the two-day introductory sale—arranged by the Men's Store for the sole purpose of introducing to more men the merits of these famous shirts.

They are of fine-count, lustrous white broadcloth—thoroughly preshrunk, beautifully tailored and nicely finished.

If you have never worn A. M. C. shirts, try some at this very special price. (We're quite selfish, we admit, in making this offer, for once you wear them you are almost sure to come back for more!) And if you hate worn them, here's your chance to lay in a supply at a positive saving!

... Horne's, Men's Store, Main Floor ...

You'd Pick These Blindfolded!

If you closed your eyes and tried on a half-dozen STRATE-EIGHT models in succession—you'd probably pick the Executive. That's a fact! It will fit eighty-five per cent average shaped feet. Hugs the ankle snugly—gives plenty of play for toes—and what's more, is pleasing to the eye. Smart, conservative, sturdily built—like its brother STRATE-EIGHTS, the Executive is doing yeoman service in teaching men shoe economy. $8.00.

Here are those popular jumper frocks in velvet, with silky pique blouses—as smart for "special occasions" as woolen jumpers are for school . . . here are flared one-piece knitted dresses for school, in flecked patterns that look like tweed . . . and lovely silks in bolero effects—in fashionable fall colors, with frilly collars and cuffs.

Green, wine, brown, black—in sizes 8 to 16 years.

HOUSE SPEAKER PRAISES ERK

Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the House of Representatives, has forwarded to Republican County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong a letter congratulating the Republican committee of the Thirty-second Congressional District in the selection of Edmund F. Erk as nominee to succeed the late Congressman Stephen G. Porter.

Referring to Erk, who has been Porter's secretary for nine sessions of Congress, Longworth said:

"He has had an experience that most new members acquire only after years of devotion and is unusually well informed as to the best interests of the constituency.

"His record as clerk of the Committee on Foreign Affairs in the House has given him a knowledge and an acquaintance in Washington and abroad that will be particularly valuable and equip him for national service of a high order."

FETES TO OPEN 2 ROAD LINKS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—Celebrations are booked in this district of Westmoreland County to observe the opening of two highway links.

One of the celebrations is scheduled for Herminie, where the new two-mile stretch connecting with the Greensburg-West Newton road will be opened October 14.

In the Indian Creek Valley between Fayette and Westmoreland Counties a big celebration is being staged today where the new stretch of highway between Normalville and Mill Run is being opened.

Real Estate

A large stone and frame residence along Greentree road near the head of Potomac avenue, Greentree, has been sold by W. H. Heselbarth and Sons to Lillis Hammill for $30,000. The lot is 93x208 feet.

In Brentwood, the Brentwood Land Company sold for Samuel L. McRoberts to James H. Spotts a new five-room brick and tile residence and garage on 29x150 feet at 2526 Homehurst avenue.

A brick residence at 523 Clemesha avenue, lot 30x128 feet, has been sold by Paul Coleman to Frank A. Stein.

O. W. Goodwin has sold to Theodore Stein a house on 30x122 feet in Hoeveler street, Eleventh Ward.

In Brookline, Harry W. Meyer sold to Peter Sodenquist 30x120 feet in Woodbourne avenue.

A house in Woodstock avenue, Swissvale, lot 25x115 feet, has been conveyed by Morris Fivars, et al, to Otto O. Friedman for $8,000.

In Bellevue, J. O. Bower sold to Frank J. Schlarp, Jr., a six-room brick and shingle house on 30x100 feet at 693 Forest avenue.

A property in South Home avenue, Avalon, lot 23x81 feet, has been conveyed from William C. Dinsmore to John A. Rose.

THE BEST PLACE TO SHOP, AFTER ALL

OPEN HOUSE Tonight

Home Furnishing Departments Open From 7 to 10 P. M.

For those who have found it inconvenient to attend our observance of National Home Furnishing Style Show during the day, our furniture, rug, china and glass, lamp, housewares, drapery, linen and bed coverings departments will be open tonight from 7 to 10 o'clock.

No goods will be sold, no orders taken. It is an evening for visiting, for viewing the new home furnishing fashions. Our staff of interior decorators will be in attendance; they will gladly answer any questions and furnish any desired information.

A special dinner will be served in the Tea Room from 5:30 to 8 p. m. Have your dinner here and make a pleasant evening of it.

Ross Crane Here

Mr. Crane, one of the country's most eminent authorities on interior decorating, will speak in the Auditorium tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. on "What the Proper Accessories Do for a Room," and at 2:00 p. m. on "Modernizing a Nondescript Living Room." You are invited.

First Saturday of the October Coat Sale

And What a Treat Is in Store for Women and Misses Who Need New Winter Coats

$58 $78

$118 $138

Women and misses who will see the coats for the first time tomorrow, will be convinced that there is something new under the sun, after all, by way of coat sales.

They will see coats more richly and lavishly fur-trimmed than for many a year, at these low prices . . . They will find fashions delightfully changed, and more models copied after or adapted from Paris couturiers, than we have ever shown in a similar event — Bruyere, Lanvin, Patou, Heim, Worth, Mirande. . . . They will find that more attention has been given to handsome fabrics.

But the substantial principles of the sale remain the same as always. Principles which have made our October Coat Sales noted for the quality and newness of the merchandise, for the authenticity of the styles, and for wide choice at the very time when fall coat buying is at its height.

MILK SUPPLY HERE PURE

Pittsburgh's milk supply for purity is equal to any in the United States according to Dr. C. B. Maits director of the Department of Health. Dr. Maits said that on a recent visit Dr. Clarence Smith, Department of Commerce Washington in charge of investigating the nations milk supply, complimented the city's health department on the things done in Pittsburgh to keep the supply pure and at a high standard.

Discussing the subject of Milk Dr. Maits said

"If anyone is laboring under the impression that the milk supply is being tampered with they are in error. Our supply is in excellent condition and reports of our chemists so indicate. The law requires that milk contain 3.25 per cent butterfat. As a matter of fact the dairy companies are supplying milk containing from 3.43 to 3.46 per cent butterfat. Our department is constantly on the alert to see that the city's supply is kept pure. And it is pure, notwithstanding weather conditions and a below normal rainfall."

Furnishing Your Home

Dining Room Fashion Points

In any analysis of dining room fashions these things come up as interesting and important home furnishing fashion points.

In the dining room the period influence has quite as much importance as in the living room or any other room.

A check of fashion-knowing homes will show that one of the most important dining room furniture periods is the Federal American period.

In this are the American adaptations of the famous Eighteenth Century English designers such as Sheraton Heppelwhite and Chippendale. And Duncan Phyfe who was the leading American designer of the period.

Of course copies of these periods are obtainable at moderate prices they are not high-hat fashions. Group combinations of Sheraton Heppelwhite and Chippendale designs in chairs sideboards china cabinets and serving tables are often used with a Duncan Phyfe table in fashion-knowing dining rooms. This table as you know is rectangular with two tripod pedestal supports.

These dining room suites have one or two arm chairs the other chairs of course being side chairs.

There is a trend toward combinations of harmonizing period styles in dining rooms.

This we predict will grow in popularity. Living rooms can have different types of furniture so long as they agree pleasantly with each other. There is no reason for all dining room chairs being alike is there?

Fashion-knowing dining room tables are rectangular in shape. (The round dining room table with few exceptions is now way down the list in fashion.) Usually a china closet is used. The sideboard is growing smaller than sideboards used to be. And of course there usually is a serving table.

The curtains in fashion-knowing dining rooms are usually simple tailored things often of cretonnes in bright colors. The rugs are often plain broadloom in green rose taupe or blue.

Plan to Make Air Field Easy to Find

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—Because an airplane pilot who wanted to land at Waynesburg's airport recently had a hard time finding it, a movement is under way to remark the field and keep it in first class condition. The port is two miles east of the town.

Monongahela Trade Drops in September

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 3.—September commerce on the Monongahela river here aggregated 1,158,754 tons, a decrease of 40,102 tons from August. The slump was attributed by rivermen to the fact that September was a 30-day month.

Two Youths Hunted In Seward Holdup

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—State police are hunting two youthful bandits who held up and robbed Joseph Klevensky, proprietor of a general store at Seward. The robbers took a large quantity of clothing and some cash at the point of a revolver and escaped in a small yellow roadster.

Emsworth Teachers, Parents to Meet

The Parent-Teacher Association of Emsworth will present movies of Byrd's South Pole expedition tomorrow afternoon in the school auditorium for the pupils of the first six grades.

Auto Lacks Motor Number; Six Prosecuted

REPUBLIC, Pa., Oct. 3.—Decision in a unique motor law case has been reserved until Monday evening by Squire J. B. Wyatt, Republic, wherein six defendants are charged with having owned an automobile that carried no motor number. Four of the defendants own auto agencies in Fayette and Washington Counties.

Frank Glass, Brier Hill, last owner of the automobile, is prosecutor of the case. He discovered the flaw when about to replace a part on the motor.

Attorney Chosen Democrat Chairman

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—J. Hilary Keenan, Greensburg attorney, has been elected chairman of the Westmoreland County Democratic Committee, succeeding J. Clark Bell, who was not a candidate. Mrs. James E. Dunn of Greensburg was named vice president.

South Brownsville Man Heads Chiefs

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 3.—Fred J. Chalfant, South Brownsville, has been named president of the Southwestern Pennsylvania Fire Chiefs' Association to fill the unexpired term of the late George Wilhelm, Republic.

Pianos To Loan FREE

Frankly, we have too many pianos now in stock. Of course, we would like to sell them. Some new, some used instruments. Every piano in the sale will be sacrificed at a price almost unbelieveable. The slashing reductions on Grands, Players and Uprights should cause many to be sold immediately. All pianos not sold outright will be placed in the homes of families interested in owning a piano in the immediate future, particularly homes where there are children. You must call at the store to file your request.

Positively No Charge Of Any Kind

We, of course, reserve the right to select the homes in which the pianos are to be placed and they may be used indefinitely until we need them.

First Prize	$250.00
Second Prize	150.00
Third Prize	75.00
Fourth Prize	50.00
Fifth Prize	25.00
25 Prizes at $10	250.00
100 Prizes at $5	500.00
100 Prizes at $2	200.00
Total (230 Cash Prizes)	$1,500

FOLLOW THESE RULES:

1—Everyone is eligible to participate in the Title Hunt except employes of the Sun-Telegraph and members of their families.

2—Every day from September 7 to October 6, inclusive, ten Ripley "Believe It or Not" pictures (without description) will be published in addition to the regular Ripley feature. The descriptions for each picture will be published in the Classified Ad columns.

3—The Title Hunt consists in finding the descriptions in the Classified Ads, clipping them out, and placing each under the picture to which it refers. The words making up each description will appear as a single unit in one place.

4—Hold all of the pictures until you have thirty complete sets of 10 each—300 pictures in all. Then send them into Ripley's Title Hunt Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square, Pittsburgh, Pa.

5—All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, October 31. No entries will be returned to the sender.

6—$1,500.00 in cash prizes, in accordance with the complete prize list published herewith, will be paid to the persons sending in the most nearly correct and neatest complete set of pictures at the close of the Title Hunt.

7—A committee of judges will be appointed by the Sun-Telegraph to determine the successful contestants. All entrants agree to accept the decisions of the judges as final. In case of ties, a duplicate award will be given each tying contestant.

8—It is not necessary to purchase the Sun-Telegraph to compete. This newspaper may be examined at any of its offices or at the public libraries free of charge, and if you wish you may copy or trace the pictures as well as the descriptions from the Sun-Telegraph and then assemble the sets from the copies you have made.

DRY ISSUE MAY FACE LEGION

BOSTON Oct 3 —(AP)— Prohibition as an issue which the American Legion has shunned steadfastly today appeared almost certain to be brought up at the national convention of the Legion here next week.

Representatives of the New York delegation placed before the national policies commission a resolution calling on the Legion to go on record as favoring the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Contests for the leading offices of the Legion and its auxiliary and the choice for the place of the 1931 convention were taking form already here today as delegates began arriving.

Five candidates for the presidency of the Legion have been listed. They are J. Minnor Johnson South Carolina Ralph O'Neil Kansas City Frank Sheller Wisconsin Col Roozwell Virginia and Emmett O'Neal Kentucky.

RAILWAYS FIGHT WATER ROUTES

WASHINGTON Oct 3 —(INS)— The railroads of the country have inaugurated a relentless attack to destroy the rapidly developing inland waterways system of the country Senator Brookhart (Rep) of Iowa declared in a statement today.

The Iowa senator answered the criticism of government policy made by Fred W Sargent president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, before the American Bankers Association.

He referred to Sargent's declaration that the government by expanding the waterways and running barge lines is taking business from the railroads thus confiscating their property in violation of the prohibitions of the Federal Constitution.

Shot Hits Passerby, Man and Wife Held

John Freeman 24 and his wife Gene 29 Negroes of 803 Linton street were held in Center Avenue Police Station today as the result of the shooting of Philip Stewart 28 Negro at Elm street and Wylie avenue shortly after midnight. Police said Mrs. Freeman fired three shots at her husband during a quarrel on the corner and that one bullet struck Stewart in the right leg. He was treated at Passavant Hospital and sent home. The Freemans were charged with being suspicious persons.

These Brand New Sets Have All These Latest Features:

POWER DETECTION—
The "A-C Dayton" circuit eliminates the noisy first audio stage, giving power detection without distortion.

PUSH-PULL AMPLIFICATION—
In using two of the new 247 tubes, it gives a velvety, smooth tone with tremendous power.

"PRE-SELECTED" TUNING—
This exclusive "A-C Dayton" feature filters out the noise and interference before it is amplified.

11-INCH SPEAKER—
An oversize 11-inch electrodynamic speaker makes the A-C Dayton tone far superior and absolutely humless.

TECHNIDYNE CIRCUIT—
This extremely high-grade circuit is exclusive with the "A-C Dayton" in its price range. Heretofore used only in the most expensive radios.

STEEL CHASSIS—
The "A-C Dayton" chassis is built like a bridge, for a lifetime of uninterrupted service. It weighs 36 pounds.

OVERSIZE RESISTORS—
The "A-C Dayton" has Metalbon self-healing condensers, fuse protection, this makes it always dependable.

...and what a magnificent cabinet, worthy indeed of the high grade chassis

FAMOUS FLIERS VIEW GLIDERS

ELMIRA, N. Y., Oct. 2.—(AP.)—The air was full of gliders here today in honor of distinguished visitors to the national glider contest. Pilots spent more hours in the air than at any other time during the contest.

Among the visitors were C. S. "Casey" Jones, president of the Curtiss-Wright flying service; Robert T. Walker, representing William B. Mayo, president of the National Glider Association; Capt. Frank M. Hawks, holder of transcontinental airplane speed records, and Capt. Edward Rickenbacker, America's ace of aces.

Wolf Hirth, of Germany, and Jack O'Meara, of Akron, O., demonstrated glider maneuvers, and Kenneth Doe, New Jersey, Roy Nass, New York City and Wallace Franklin, Detroit, tried spot landings, with Franklin coming within less than four feet of the mark.

W. Hawley Bowlus, national gliding champion, flew a glider with silk inset wings built for Col. Lindbergh. It was sent here after Bowlus wrecked his own glider.

URGE PROJECTS ON NORTH SIDE

A diversified program of public and civic improvements was discussed last night at the monthly meeting of the North Side Chamber of Commerce in North Side City Hall.

Prominent among the contemplated improvements of the North Side is the new Public Safety Building, which was explained by H. F. Burnworth, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce committee interested in the proposed project.

Mr. Burnworth reported that preliminary arrangements, which included discussion of the building with the Mayor and Council, had been made, and that all opposition to the building nad been successfully met.

"Transportation" was the subject of M. W. Cpol, engineer of the Pittsburgh Railways Company. Following his talk, a resolution was passed to ask the traction company to erect passenger platforms at Federal and Ohio streets.

F. E. Tencate, president of the trade body, presided.

French General Visits West Point

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—General Henri Gouraud, military governor of Paris and noted figure in the World War, paid an official visit to the United States Military Academy here today. He was met by Major General William R. Smith and his staff, and a cavalry detachment escorted him to the plains, where he reviewed the corps of cadets. His coming was saluted by 13 guns.

Today, General Gouraud and five other French army officers will go to Washington. They will leave there Saturday for a brief visit to Princeton University, and then will go to Boston to attend the American Legion convention.

Convict, Free Day, Returned to Prison

LANSING, Mich., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Gerald Dykes, 19, convict in the insane ward at the State Penitentiary here who with Kenneth Thomas, 27, also a convict, braved a hail of buckshot from a guard's gun to escape from the prison, was returned to the penitentiary last night following his capture in Kansas City. He was free less than a day.

Thomas was shot in the legs by a guard and failed to get away. Officers said Dykes told them he swam across the Missouri river at Leavenworth and walked to Kansas City. He still was wearing his prison garb when captured.

We SING of VALUE and VARIETY in the new Wise OPERAS styled as well as those at $27.50 made as well as those at $10.00

but priced at only $6.00 at Wise!

THE opera meets every mood and moment of the day's events... and scores a triumph in evening chic. Because of its classic, youthful beauty Fashion calls for it on all occasions, and gives each opera at Wise a sublime new note of distinctive charm.

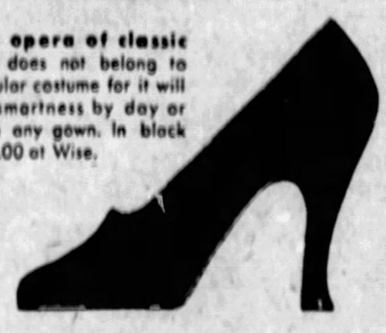
ALLEN ROGERS Ph. D.

University of Pennsylvania, Head of Department of Industrial Chemical Engineering, Pratt Institute, and one of the country's foremost leather experts, has compared these operas with others bought in the open market at $10.00 and says,

"The Wise $6.00 Shoes are every bit as good in materials and workmanship as the $10.00 shoes".

Spectator sports opera with leather heels and genuine alligator trim to make it even smarter. In brown suede and at this very low cost—at Wise—$6.00.

The new novelty opera in suede has gunmetal trimming and a graceful line that any opera at any price would like to have. For all its qualities it costs but $6.00 at Wise.



The new opera of classic simplicity does not belong to any particular costume for it will enhance smartness by day or night—with any gown. In black suede. $6.00 at Wise.

Now... DULMODE the better stocking costs only $1

Dul-Modes fulfill all the obligations of a smart stocking—stay dull, last long—always clear, smooth, sheer in texture. The important shades of the season. 3 PAIRS 2.90

EDISON GIVEN PLANE LESSON

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Assen Jordanoff, airplane pilot and designer, returned here after a flight to Menlo Park, N. J., where he gave Thomas A. Edison his first lesson in ground school aeronautics.

Observers who saw Jordanoff take off on the trip believed Edison would go for a flight, but the pilot said the inventor confined his studies to theory, and even turned the tables on his instructor by holding forth on inventions for seeing in fog.

The flier said Edison showed keen interest in the design of the Curtiss Bleecker helicopter, which is undergoing final ground tests here. He compared the description of it with details of a helicopter machine which he patented in 1910, saying the helicopter, able to land and take off from small enclosures, would answer the airport problem. He said he considered the airplane, as now used commercially, neither practical nor safe under unusual weather conditions.

GALLO GUILTY IN MURDER

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Samuel Gallo, of this city, was found guilty of first degree murder, and Gangi Cero, formerly of Brooklyn, N. Y., was found not guilty by a jury in Suffolk County Superior Criminal Court before Judge William A. Burns.

The verdict ended one of the most unusual murder cases in the history of jurisprudence in this state, Gallo and Cero having been both charged with the murder in 1927 of Joseph Fantasia.

The verdict was reached after only two hours' deliberation by the jury. Gallo broke down when the verdict was pronounced.

Both men had been previously tried, convicted and sentenced to the death chair but a new joint trial was granted as the result of the eleventh hour testimony of Miss Philomena Romano, who subsequently vanished.

Provincetown Safe From Forest Fire

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A failing wind and the setting of back-fires saved this picturesque town from a forest fire. The fire had swept to within half a mile of the residential section and a general alarm had been sounded for the townspeople to stand ready for an emergency.

Late in the day a state fire warden directed the setting of back fires and these, with a decrease in the wind velocity, brought the flames under control.

Spanish Cabinet Shakeup Impends

MADRID, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Announcement by Elias Tormo, minister of education in the Berenguer cabinet, of his impending resignation threatened to bring on a ministerial shakeup in Spain. Observers predicted that Premier Damaso Berenguer would seize the occasion to reorganize his entire cabinet.

Minister of Justice Etarada and Minister of the Interior Marzo were said to be slated to go with Tormo.

Constable Held On Extortion Charge

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Clarence Baker, constable of Mead Township, near here, was arrested by deputy sheriffs on warrants sworn out by State Examiner H. M. Hastings. Baker is charged with extorting funds from John Bernowski, of Flushing, under promise of stopping conviction on liquor charges pending against the Flushing man.

Boys Set Grass Fire; $65,000 Houses Burn

LAUREL, Del., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Fire, said by police to have been started by boys burning grass on a football field, destroyed nine dwelling houses here. Ten other buildings were slightly damaged. The loss is estimated at $65,000.

Firemen from six nearby towns aided in fighting the flames.

Loan Officials Hold Annual Convention

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A number of social events here opened the annual convention of the Pennsylvania League of Building and Loan Associations.

Charles Wilcox, Pittsburgh, the president, was among the first arrivals. Business sessions will begin this morning and continue through Saturday.

GIRL CLEARED IN GANG DEATH

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—A 22-year-old blonde was inferentially cleared of complicity in the assassination of her gangster sweetheart. She is Margaret Reardon, whose liberation was granted at the request of the state because the grand jury failed to return an indictment.

Jack Costa, Miss Reardon's sweetheart, was shot and killed September 13 in the courtway of an apartment where he occupied a flat with Miss Reardon and her sister.

His assailants fired from a window of a flat rented a few days before by two men. While passing from one section of the apartment building to the other Costa was slain.

Because the woman had walked just ahead of him, police believed she had indicated him to the killers.

BANKER SCORNS FASCIST PERIL

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former president of the German Reichsbank, scoffs at the idea that Fascist gains in the recent German elections might seriously interfere with constitutional government.

Arriving here on the liner Resolute to start a speaking tour and to place his 20 year old son, Jens, in a Chicago bank for training, the German financier said his country's problems were economic, not political, and intimated he doubted that the indemnity payments asked of Germany were feasible.

Process to Reduce Coal Mining Dust

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 3.—The Jamison Coal and Coke Company will introduce a new coal treating process at its Jamison No. 20 plant at Pleasant Unity. Domestic coal will be sprayed with a solution of calcium chloride to reduce dust during the mining operations.

MASS MEETING ON TEMPERANCE

A mass meeting sponsored by several hundred business, professional and clerical leaders in Pittsburgh will be held in Memorial Hall, Oakland, tonight in the interest of temperance and law observance.

Pastors and laymen of most city churches have interested themselves in organizing to combat what they term mass propaganda for repeal or modification of the dry laws.

Dr. Mark A. Matthews, Seattle, Wash., pastor of the largest Presbyterian congregation in the United States and former moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly, will be the principal speaker.

Members of the advisory committee include R. D. Campbell, W. U. Follansbee, J. W. Claudy, John C. Hill, W. H. Schuette, S. K. Cunningham, W. S. Horner, Frederic B. Shupp, Charles A. Fisher, H. Lee Mason, Jr., and William S. Wise.

PARENT SOUGHT AS KIDNAPER

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 3.—Ellwood City and Butler police were searching today for Mrs. Mary Lachetski, of Ellwood City, who is wanted for taking her 2-year-old daughter, Mary, from the custody of the child's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lachetski, of Butler.

The child was seized last night when playing on the lawn at her grandparents' home by a woman whom Mrs. Peter Lachetski recognized as the mother. The child was driven away in an automobile.

A court order by Judge James O. Campbell, of the Butler Court, this week took the child from the parents, Mike and Mary Lachetski, and gave her to the father's parents.

GUFFEY BEGINS 'CHEER' TOUR

Joseph F. Guffey, former Democratic national committeeman, today began a campaign tour of Western Pennsylvania with visits in Laurence and Butler counties. Commenting on the trip, he said:

"My principal object in these visits is to impart the message of good cheer that our reports from other sections, particularly in the eastern part of the state, justify. In all the western counties our organizations are practically complete and ready for the active campaign due to start.

"While the Democratic platform is as complete and concise as any voter could demand, we realize the voters will determine the issues and in this election will grade their importance as they see fit.

"Due to the press daily giving so much space to the question of prohibition, this, the voters may decide, is to be the dominant issue. The Democratic platform on this is very direct in its stand for repeal of the laws responsible for the present agitation in the nation."

DAVIS TO STAY AND REGISTER

James J. Davis, secretary of labor, in the city today, will remain over tomorrow to register in his home district, the Fourth District of the Twenty-ninth Ward.

The secretary will attend funeral services for Dennis Harris, theatrical leader, at Crafton, and planned conferences with several political backers in his rooms at the William Penn Hotel. Tonight he is to address the National Safety Congress at a banquet in the William Penn.

Secretary Davis has a speaking engagement in Montgomery County tomorrow night, but indicated he might change his plans and return to Washington.

Spanish Artist's Daughter Marries

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Lucia Zuloaga, daughter of Spain's foremost modern painter, was married at Villa Zumaya to Enrique Suarez Rezola, engineer.

The setting was arranged by her father, Don Ignacio Zuloaga, whose work is internationally known. Among the 200 guests, who included society people as well as artists and native dancers, was the famous bullfighter, Juan Belmonte.

Britain to Redeem War Loans Jan. 15

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The British treasury announced the redemption at par on January 15, 1931, of the 4 per cent war loan due in 1929 and 1942, amounting to £77,000,000 (about $375,000,000.)

The treasury also announced the issue by tender of an unlimited amount of 4 per cent treasury bonds redeemable in 1934 and 1936.

Reopened Rosemont Mine Employs 300

GRAFTON, W. Va., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Operations have been started at the Rosemont mines of the Consolidation Coal Company by E. P. Reppert, who has leased the property, idle for two years.

Fourteen steel hoppers of coal were loaded the first day, and after the workings have been cleaned up it was said production would increase to 35 cars a day. The mine employs 300 men.

Stunning Fall Frock
Pattern 1853
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Nothing is smarter or more comfortable on glorious October days than a simple coat dress worn with a fur scarf. Today's sketch presents just such a model, slendertizing, easily made, inexpensive, and extremely chic. The long collar and the cuffs use contrasting material, an important style note this season.

Pattern 1853 is stunning made of silk or wool fabrics—a few suggestions are wool crepe, tweed, jersey, marocain, canton crepe, in solid color or mixture. You'll enjoy brown trimmed with yellow, black and turquoise, navy and white, green and beige, etc.

May be obtained only sizes 16, 18, 20, 24, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 40-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Write plainly your name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE WANTED.

SEND FOR OUR NEW FALL AND WINTER FASHION BOOK, containing exquisite models for aadults and children and an excellent assortment of transfer patterns and stamped novelties. Price FIFTEEN CENTS. Expurgates Bible So Girl Could Read It

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Frank R. Chandler celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary yesterday and commented upon his "Twentieth Century Bible," recently published. He said:

"In it I have expurgated all immoralities, indelicacies and irrelevancies. I have left stars to denote the deletions. For instance, in the Bible it says Noah got drunk. Why do we need to say that? As the Bible stands now I would not want a daughter of mine to read it. But expurgated, as I have made it, it is fine literature."

FIRM HERE BUYS MICHIGAN LAND

Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company recently purchased property at Marysville, Mich., north of Detroit, but has no definite plans for construction of a plant and does not intend to make any use of the property at the present time, H. S. Wherrett, president of the company, said today when questioned regarding reports from Detroit that a $20,000,000 construction program is under consideration.

Wherrett stated that the announcement made in Detroit probably was due to a desire on the part of real estate operators to sell property in the vicinity of the company's holdings. The company has acquired 325 acres with 1,500 feet frontage on the St. Clair River.

The Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company has no definite plans for expansion at other points at the present time, Wherrett indicated, but an expansion program may be worked out in the near future.

AFRICAN MOVIE EXPLORER HERE

Paul E. Hoefler, leader of the Colorado-African expedition sent out by Denver residents, appeared at the Warner Theater today to tell about his experiences in filming "Africa Speaks," the first "talkie" ever brought out of Africa.

Mr. Hoefler made two trips to Africa, spending eight months there during his first visit, studying the Bushmen. On his second trip he spent 14 months filming the jungle feature.

Believed to be the first white man ever to cross equatorial Africa from coast to coast, he is a member of the Explorers' Club of New York. Tonight he will speak over KQV radio station. He will leave for St. Louis by plane tomorrow.

Gunman 'Gets' Man But It's Wrong One

OAKLAND, Cal., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Victor Russo, on his way, he admitted to police, to "get" a former partner against whom he had a grievance, accidentally shot and killed Harry L. Clark, Los Angeles business man aboard a ferry boat as it left the Oakland slip today. Police quoted Russo, who is 65 years old, as saying the weapon was discharged accidentally.

Northcliffe's Bust Unveiled in London

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Peering down on Fleet Street the late Lord Northcliffe's face is visible to thousands of newspaper workers. A bust of the publisher has been unveiled in the forecourt of the Church of Saint Dunstan in the West, Izaak Walton's Church.

POSES AS HEIR TO MILLIONS

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A claimant to the estate of Raymond Jackson, Seminole freedman heir to millions from Seminole oil lands, was missing after appearing in Federal Court here.

A Negro youth who acquaintances said, actually is named Raymond Jackson but who was born and raised in Fulton, Ky., instead of in Seminole County, Okla., made the claim.

He stoutly maintained he was the missing heir until he spied in the courtroom some old Kentucky acquaintances, including Dick Thomas, of Fulton, on whose farm he had worked many times. Thomas was ready to testify, but Jackson made it unnecessary by fleeing. His attorneys withdrew the case.

The Seminole County Jackson's allotment is immensely valuable, more than $1,000,000 in impounded royalties having accrued to his credit since oil was struck on the land. Jackson disappeared before the oil was found, after being implicated in a shooting case.

SEEKS TO BRING SUSPECTS HERE

Assistant United States Attorney Zeno Fritz is in New York today representing the government in a proceeding before the Federal commissioner there, to have John Disposcito, Sebastina Passalacqua and Santo Leone, of Brooklyn, brought to Pittsburgh to answer a charge of passing counterfeit $20 bills on merchants in Cambria and Somerset Counties.

The three defendants are opposing the efforts of the government to have them brought here. Angelo Passargo, of Jenners, Pa., another defendant, is under bond for his appearance in court here. About 40 of the spurious notes were passed at Jenners and other places, according to United States secret service operatives.

Communist Inquiry Group in Seattle

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Headed by Hamilton Fish, Jr., a special congressional committee investigating Soviet propaganda agencies in the United States has arrived to open hearings. In the party were Fish, Carl G. Bachman, Edward Eslick, John E. Nelson, Robert S. Hall, G. S. Graham, J. G. Roberts, W. L. Reynolds and P. H. Vrook.

They refused to discuss evidence gathered so far.

4,500 Massacred In Kurdish Raids

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—A total of 4,500 men, women and children have been massacred by Kurdish raiders who sacked villages in the Zilan district of Turkey, it was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Jerusalem today. In addition to the pillaging of towns by raiding tribes, bombing planes manned by Kurdish airmen were reported to have killed hundreds of other Turks in isolated regions along the Turkish-Persian border.

Scouts Join Search For Missing Man, 60

HAZLETON, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Boy Scouts of this region have been mobilized to search surrounding woodlands for traces of Alfred Marshman, 60, of 415 Alvin street, Freeland, who has not been seen or heard from since he left his home at 8 o'clock last Monday morning to look for work.

2 DIE IN CHAIR FOR MURDER

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Two Negroes, Lafon Fisher and Leonard Shadlow, were put to death in the electric chair early today for the murder, January 18, 1929, of a 70-year-old bank guard, Martin B. French.

Shadlow, first to be executed, was pronounced dead at 12:08 a. m. Fisher, a cripple, was carried to the death chair and was dead at 12:20 a. m.

The pair had lost one of the longest battles in criminal history of Chicago. Their cases had been taken to the Supreme Court, the Board of Pardons and to the Governor.

Leon Brown, Negro, also convicted in the slaying of the bank guard, would have been taken to the chair with Fisher and Shadlow but for his appeal to the Supreme Court.

Gov. Pollard Offers Aid in Textile Strike

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 3.—(AP)—An offer to appoint a committee which would act as a mediator in the textile strike at Danville has been made by Gov. John Garland Pollard.

In a telegram to H. R. Fitzgerald, president of the Riverside and Dan River mills, where 4,000 workers went on strike Monday, the Governor offered his services in effecting an amicable settlement of the controversy.

'Army' Donors Told To Demand Receipts

Persons contributing 50 cents or more to the Salvation Army home service fund appeal now in progress in the county are urged by Adjutant W. B. Fowle, campaign director, to demand a receipt from the book carried by the worker, detached from the canvasser's book in the presence of the contributor. This is asked to prevent fraudulent solicitations.

Adjutant Fowle said each authorized worker carries a book on which is the signature of George E. Alter.

Oh Boy! What Joy

LIFT CORNS RIGHT OUT

The English Way

Right from England comes the new, better, joyful way to take out corns—roots and all.

Callouses go also and you can rub off that hard skin on heels and toes with your hand—the magic treatment.

Ask Mayflower Drug Stores or any leading druggist for a package of Radox—put 2 tablespoonfuls in a gallon of hot water—do this for 3 or 4 nights in succession—then lift out the corns.

This joyful exhilarating foot bath is simply great—you'll enjoy every minute of it and your burning, sore, tired, aching feet will feel better than they have for years—ask for Radox and foot comfort will be yours.

LAW BOARD TO FACE DRY ISSUE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—(AP)—The offices of President Hoover's commission on law observance and enforcement took on a definite air of activity today as final material was assembled for a meeting of the commission next Wedensday—the first gathering since June. Faced as the commission is with the possibility of being asked to make a definite statemen, on the prohibition problem, all members but Henry W. Anderson, Virginia lawyer, have indicated they would be present when the meeting convened.

Only two members of the commission were at headquarters yesterday. They were Kenneth Mackintosh, former Washington State Supreme Court justice, and Dean Roscoe Pound, of the Harvard law school.

Mackintosh already has announced he would insist the commission make known its judgment of the prohibition law, stating unequivocally whether the dry statute is believed enforceable or what the commission believes should be done if it is not.

Trophy Awarded To Bus Company

A trophy donated by the magazine "Bus Transportation" in its 1930 contest has been awarded to the Blue Ridge Transportation Company on a basis of the company's having displayed the most outstanding examples of progress in equipment, maintenance and practices in motor bus transportation. The company is a subsidiary of the West Penn Electric Company.

Holdup Pair Get Prison Sentences

Will Harris, 35, Negro miner, of Coverdale, was sentenced to serve 7½ to 15 years in the Western Penitentiary when he pleaded guilty of robbery before Judge George V. Moore, in Criminal Court. His companion, Richard Singleton, 33, Negro, of Coverdale, was sentenced to serve 5 to 10 years.

Harris admitted he and Singleton held up and robbed Vincent Riner, a mine foreman, of Library, of $75 and his watch, shoes and sweater.

Arctic Rescue Flier Crashes; Uninjured

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—A heavily loaded Fairchild airplane, piloted by Frank Dorbandt, who recently flew to the rescue of a sick sealboat captain in the Siberian Arctic, cracked up here while taking off on a flight to Seattle. Pilot Dorbandt and his two passengers were uninjured, but the wings of the plane were smashed.

YOUR CHILDREN and

URE DRUGGIST

This Sign Always Says—Your Druggist

CHILDREN take sick more often and easier than grown-ups. They give little if any warning and await no one's convenience. Winter or Summer, housecleaning or vacation time, wash day or party day, "Junior" or "Sis" or "Baby" is very liable to upset all calculations with something that looks serious.

Of course, the sensible thing is to phone Dr. _____, but the doctor is out and will be for several hours on other calls. An already harassed mother is driven almost to distraction.

Then, like a flash, she remembers her own mother's advice—"When you can't reach your Doctor, call Ure Druggist." That takes care of the emergency till the doctor comes, and afterward too.

As an independent druggist, owning and managing his own store, Ure Druggist is intensely interested in the community's welfare. He marks the coming and going of every family. He notes the arrival and upbringing of every child in the neighborhood. He gathers the experiences of thousands of mothers and of many physicians and he becomes a child specialist.

Permanently located as your fellow citizen and neighbor, Ure Druggist will be the same friend and counsellor tomorrow as he is today and was yesterday.

To increase your chances for better health and longer life, make Ure Druggist, Your Druggist in all home needs as well as in sickness.

The LOUDSPEAKER

Talkers High Pay • Sets in Clocks
"Carolina Moon" • Anent Prosperity

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Though the radio is primarily a musical instrument, I am more and more impressed by the fact that the bulkier portion of the microphone's payroll goes to the talkers.

Louis Reid

I never hear the Merry Widow Waltz" that I don't become wistful over the vanished glory of Broadway. I have long ago become convinced not that it matters that the Ritz-Carlton will be the last place in America to shelter a microphone. Whenever in a mood for melodious Irish music I invariably ask my man to set the dial to Victor Herbert's "Eileen." I have often speculated on what type of jazz James J. Walker would be busy with today had he continued his career as a songwriter.

Radio Shortens Boop-de-Doop Vogue

I am very grateful to radio for having shortened the vogue of the boop-boop-de-doop type of melody. Though I have no records to prove it I am convinced that "Turkey in the Straw" has worn out more fiddle strings than any tune known to man. The best wisecrack from Capitol Hill so far as it applies to radio was in my opinion, the recent comment of Senator Watson who upon being told the Nit Wit Hour had been cancelled for his talk replied:

"This is the first time I knew the Democrats had an hour on the air."

Of all the countless tributes that have been paid in song to Carolina we cast our vote for "Carolina Moon." I have about reached that state of skepticism where I believe I shall never hear the Hon. J. Thomas Heflin on the microphone. Only once have our ears caught a song called "St. James Infirmary." One was enough. We cannot agree with those listeners who believe the loudspeakers are too filled with Tschaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite" and Dvorak's "New World Symphony." Wonder what has become of Gilda Gray?

It is still a matter of curiosity to me why the broadcasters do not air more often that stirring chant of the plantations, "Jubilo" or the Spanish-American War songs, "Good By Dolly Gray" and "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," or the tunes of the luscious old musical comedy, "Havana," or a medley of campaigns songs. The most stirring march written in America in the past years in my opinion, is George Gershwin's "Strike Up the Band." I invariably tune into the speeches of Pa Harriso., and George H. Moses just to get an earful of their tantalizing skill as political snipers. I have never heard Texas Guinan on the air.

Receivers Concealed In Clocks Now

The most novel radio set to catch my dimming eyes at Madison Square Garden last week was concealed in a grandfather's clock. I would not be surprised to find next year that radio receivers have been successfully installed in a family album and a paintng of the Horse Fair. It is still my conviction that the most exciting sports broadcast this summer was the hoss race at Saratoga when the 100-to-1 shot Jim Dandy showed his heels to Gallant Fox. I am not on speaking terms with any master of the musical saw.

We are unable to understand why the radio men do not dangle their gold in front of George M. Cohan in an effort to induce him to write songs for the microphone. Julia Sanderson possesses for me the most wistful voice in radio land. Whenever I hear "O Promise Me" I am vividly reminded of the vogue the song once held at wedding ceremonies throughout the land. Of all the sentimental songs favored by baritones, "Duna" soothes our ears the most.

Vincent Lopez will continue to receive an approving nod from us so long as he interrupts his programs with caresses upon the pianoforte. Just as I was despairing over the lack of new ear-tickling songs on the air, along comes "Sing Something Simple." Nearly a year has passed since I heard the seductive ballad "Deep Night." It was "Deep Night," more than anything else, that brought an incomparably wistful light to women's eyes whenever the maestros picked up their megaphones and established crooning as a major industry in America.

Plenty of Prosperity Talks at Hand

It is my belief that Dr. Julius Klein has enough prosperity material on hand to last the lifetime of the Republican National Committee. I am willing to wager my ear trumpet that no tune ever struck off by man equals the "Blue Danube" in inspiring the palsied to toss aside their crutches for a fling on the dance floor. I have never been able to understand why the thrill of bagpipe music is not conveyed more often to the arm-chairs. We have waited years to read of a comedian buried to the strains of the "Funeral March of a Marionette."

-:- By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

Mayor Matt Thompkins comes to town today to tell us what the "Real Folks" are doing at Thompkins Corners. With him will be the effusive Effie Watts. They'll entertain at the Radio Show in Duquesne Garden this afternoon and tonight. Their act will be broadcast. Bugs Baer, humorist, who writes daily for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, is starred in the Radio Follies over WJAS at 10. "My Husband at Home" is the subject of Mrs. Graham McNamee's talk on KDKA during the Armstrong Quakers' program.

Don Bestor

Cameron McLean, Scotch baritone, widely known as "the Celtic Chaliapin," is to sing "Mary," "On the Road to Mandalay" and "The Floral Dance" for Henkel Velveteer listeners on WCAE and WJAS at 7:30.

Don Bestor, idol of Pittsburgh dancers, is expected to arrive in the city today. He is scheduled to play over KDKA tomorrow night at 7:30.

Don's initial radio program is to consist of numbers selected by our readers. The selections have been turned over to Walter Myers and the program will be arranged by Don tonight.

A play-by-play description of the Pitt-West Virginia football game from Morgantown, W. Va., is a KQV feature tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Paul Miller and Jack Buchheit will announce.

George Frame Brown (Matt Thompkins) is one of the foremost rural characters on the air. In receipt of fan mail, he rates fifth at the National Broadcasting Company in New York.

We derived an extreme pleasure talking to Mr. Brown last night in his hotel.

He is a rather tall man weighing about 174 pounds, brown hair, gray eyes, a genial spirit. He talks about simple, homely phases of life and has ideals, tastes rarely associated with a popular entertainer.

* * *

We encouraged Mr. Brown to tell more of himself in the following story dictated especially for "We Now Present" readers:

By GEORGE FRAME BROWN.

I was born in Seattle, Washington. My father, a former school teacher and cattle man, was a merchant. My boyhood was spent in a spacious old house, where I had all sorts of pets...a pony, a rooster, a trained goose and a cow.

All kinds of persons used to come into our home. Swedes, Italians, Irishmen, colored people, Chinese, and Japanese. I used to mimic their dialects and, unknowingly, trained myself for an acting career.

After public and high school, I entered the University of Washington, where I completed the freshman year. Then came service in the Army. I was a corporal in the Twenty-fourth Engineers and served in France.

Following the armistice, Lloyd Warren, a brother of Whitney Warren, the architect, made it possible for a certain number of A. E. F. men to attend the Beaux Arts school in Paris. His idea was to improve the American taste.

Well, it certainly improved mine. For on my return to Seattle I refused to reenter the university, merely because I didn't like the architecture of certain terra-cotta buildings being erected on the campus.

After knocking about a bit I joined the Little Theater Company of Maurice Browne, the producer of "Journey's End," as a scene builder. He gave me my first opportunity to act in the role of an Irishman in Shaemas O'Brien's "Matchmakers." Browne advised me to become an actor of dialect roles.

I took him seriously and came to New York in 1921. For a while I almost starved, but at last managed to eat by unloading bananas on the docks and later working as a clerk in a department store.

* * *

After a tour of Canada as a member of a Shakespearian repertory company I joined the famous Provincetown players. Then I came into intimate contact with such personalities as Eugene O'Neill, Harry Kemp and others equally well known.

Joyce Benner, an unusually talented woman, who was a continuity writer and play director at WABC, was responsible for my entry into radio. This was in 1925. She obtained an audition for me at her station and there I did monologues and appeared in plays.

My first rural types were portrayed in a series known as "Luke, the Philosopher." Here I also did a Chinese characterization in "The Music and Musings of Dr. Mu." In the meantime I also wrote a three-act drama, "The Skid Road," which was produced by Frank Shay and Cleon Throckmorton in Provincetown.

During 1928 I created and acted the role of Luke Higgins in twenty-six "Main Street" sketches. Then came a controversy with the management of the station and I transferred my activities to WJZ, where you may hear me every Wednesday night as Matt Thompkins in the "Real Folks" skit.

As a writer of radio scripts, I must admit that the air drama is very elementary when compared to that of the stage. There is too much of a tendency to imitate the talk of the theater.

This is wrong. Those who write for radio must remember that they are writing for an audience which cannot use its eyes.

My highest ambition is to write a great play. If I could do that, I'd be satisfied to give up all of the reputation and money brought to me by radio.

"WILL ALWAYS BE A BOOSTER FOR KONJOLA"

Pittsburgh Resident Tells How New Medicine Put An End to Years of Neuritis.

What cheerful news this is for all who suffer from neuritis, and who may fear that they never will find relief from this most distressing ailment.

MR. J. E. CHAMBERS

Take the experience of Mr. J. E. Chambers, 3830 Perrysville Avenue, Pittsburgh, and then hear all about this modern medicine from the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Read the words of Mr. Chambers, who said to the Konjola Man:

"Neuritis in my arms and shoulders caused misery for the past two years. My work is outdoors, and I am exposed to all kinds of weather. I tried many medicines that were highly recommended, but could find no relief. Friends advised me to give Konjola a trial, and this I did. To date I have used six bottles, and with the first two came signs of relief. As I continued with the treatment all my pains disappeared, and my bowels were regulated. I highly recommend Konjola to anyone who suffers as I did, and I will always be a booster for Konjola."

So it goes; victory after victory when Konjola is given a chance to show why seven million bottles of this amazing medicine were used in two years. Konjola is a medicine of the aged or the infant; for all the family. That is why Konjola is a household word in tens of thousands of American homes.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public.

Police Hunt 'Match Bandit' After N. S. Robbery

SAFETY GROUP STUDIES HOME PERILS

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Probably no star of the stage had more good friends in Pittsburgh than Jack Donahue, the comedian. Among these were Roy Jansen, the newspaperman; Cy Hungerford, the cartoonist; Harry Kramer, the restaurant man, and Dr. Munster.

We never met a more agreeable star. For several seasons he took second billing to Marilyn Miller in Ziegfeld shows and without protest played down his own talent when he and the temperamental Miss Miller occupied the stage at the same time. It was when he was here in "Rosalie" that he confessed he hankered to write. In his hotel room, before and after the show, he pecked away on a typewriter. When later he sold pieces to Cosmopolitan and the Saturday Evening Post the satisfaction was probably greater than any satisfaction he felt in stopping the show.

Donahue liked to tell the story of his young daughter who, so the legend goes, fell into the habit of using strong language, especially at the table. One day Donahue warned his offspring that there was to be no more swearing.

That night the Donahues, at their home at Great Neck, had a distinguished visitor to dinner, a visitor who was startled early in the dinner to hear Miss Donahue demand, "Please pass the dambread."

Jack ordered the erring miss to leave the house and never again darken the Donahue door.

A few minutes later Miss Donahue was standing on the doorstep, a packed traveling bag in hand, when Mrs. Willie Collier, the Donahue's neighbor, spied her.

"How's your mother?" Mrs. Collier asked.

"How the h—— do I know," Miss Donahue retorted. "I don't live here any more."

If you see a city detective walking the streets these days with hanging head and a look of chagrin, it is because he has not been able to solve what Dr. Watson would describe as "The Strange Disappearance of 191 Blocks of Imported Cheese." Consider the case yourself. Some time ago, in the very dark of night, these 191 blocks, or approximately 1,200 pounds of cheese, were stolen from a warehouse in the produce district.

Our city detectives probably measure up to Cleveland's city detectives, or to the city detectives of Wichita, Kan., but here they were baffled. And the need for a Holmes was never more apparent. We are confident that first Mr. Holmes would have ascertained who had a weakness for imported Italian cheese, for such it was. Next he would have set out to learn, from the city's hospitals, whether there had been requests for treatment by somebody who had eaten too much cheese. Certainly one who would dare to steal 1,200 pounds of cheese is going to suffer. Let us, for the sake of agreement, assume that there has been such a request. Holmes seeks out the sufferer, strikes an acquaintanceship, invites the thief to dinner and sees to it that a substantial portion of imported Italian cheese is served with the apple pie.

The thief refuses the cheese with a shudder, which is the signal for Holmes to charge him openly with the theft. The thief breaks down, conveniently, and confesses. Holmes then goes home and plays the violin until daybreak.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

I begged and pleaded with St. Louis not to win that pennant.

Big news to us out here in the legitimate end of the U. S. We are to have mail and passengers delivered to New York in 24 hours. America's whole ingenuity is spent in hurrying you to get somewhere so you will have more time there to study up some other places to go.

Took the pioneers six months to come, but they didn't forget something, and have to be back the next week to attend to it. We aren't getting anywhere, but we are having lots of fun thinking we are.

VICTIM GIVES THUG 'LIGHT,' LOSES $17

Holdups in Oakland, Squirrel Hill Districts Laid to Armed Pair in Auto

North Side police today were searching for a thug who confronts his victim with a request for a match and then robs him.

Charles Munden, of Hardies road, Wildwood, was robbed of $17 by a stranger who stopped him at East Diamond street and East Park way last night. Munden told police the man asked for a match, and when he reached into his pocket for one, he was ordered to throw up his hands.

Two pedestrians, one in Oakland and the other in Squirrel Hill, were robbed by two armed bandits within an hour last night.

Walking near his home, Robert Keiper, of 327 McKee Place, was robbed of $15 and his topcoat by the thugs who fled in an automobile.

The same pair, police believe, robbed Albert Waldan, of 2264 Shady avenue, of $3 in Tilbury avenue, near Waldron street, an hour later.

PAINTER JOHN KANE.. ARTIST ON RAINY DAYS

"ACROSS THE STRIP," VIEW PAINTED FROM THE KANE FRONT PORCH, ACCEPTED FOR THE INTERNATIONAL

Pittsburgh Artist, Again Honored, Calm as His Works Stir Disputes

By PENELOPE REDD

Again has John Kane, inhabitant of Pittsburgh's "Strip," been singled out as one of America's distinctive painters by a group ranking as America's pre-eminent artists.

Again has John Kane been honored as the sole Pittsburgh painter to survive trial by jury for admission to the Carnegie International Exhibition.

John Kane's annual recognition by painters with naught in common other than recognition for the authentically sincere, has both puzzled and affronted local artists.

Penelope Redd

John Kane is, to those perpetual seekers after the proper formula, an enigma.

To the international juries, John Kane is the "find" of our generation. He is apart not only from Pittsburgh painters, but from all others who compete in the international, regardless of their origin or acquired sophistication.

LABORS ON CRATE

Artists of international renown have gone on year after year paying tribute to John Kane, the naturalist, without any knowledge of John Kane, who lives in Pittsburgh's "Strip."

When we talked to him of his admission to the forthcoming Carnegie International, John Kane was busy making a crate to send his paintings to the Corcoran exhibition.

It was a crude crate of rough wood, but it would carry John Kane's paintings safely to Washington, where the polite world would be momentarily diverted from mundane indifference by John Kane's absolute simplicity of spirit. He said:

"For myself the Carnegie exhibition was little matter. My wife wanted that the children should be proud of me. So I am content. When you walk the way of life all your days with the poor as I have, one honor less or one rebuff more is nothing.

IGNORES CRITICS

"Now my neighbors tell me the critics are troubled whether I be impressionist, modernist or classicist, but these things I do not understand.

"I go out and see the hills and the trees and browsing animals and I do even forget the ants that bother me.

"Sometimes when the winters were bitter hard and the men in the construction gangs noisy beyond the ears' bearing, I would think this quiet time when I might paint would never come."

REMEMBERS YOUTH

For John Kane has always sought isolation for drawing and painting from the time he was a wee lad in Scotland. He invariably harks back to the happy memories of his youth far from the grim realities of Pittsburgh's "Strip."

John Kane has the air of having eternity at his disposal in his unhurried calm. There is heroic simplicity in his disregard for poverty and in the humility of his spirit towards painting. These qualities are transmitted into his painting, "Across the Strip" and they bear him onward to the goal of a forlorn fame.

Divorce 'Joke or Tragedy' In Penna., Judge Says

"Divorce in Pennsylvania is becoming a joke or a tragedy. Here is an example of an attitude which has become too prevalent, with marriage being a mockery. This thing must come to an end."

This utterance by Judge Frank P. Patterson was provoked in Common Pleas Court by testimony of Mrs. Sophie M. Flamm, 24, of Cotton way, seeking an annulment of her marriage, after a week's acquaintance with Paul F. Flamm, 40, of Fisk street. Testimony was given to show that the marriage was entered into after several drinking parties.

The couple eloped to Cleveland, June 5, 1928, after driving from Pittsburgh following a night of parties in local roadhouses and cabarets, according to Mrs. Flamm's testimony. The couple returned to Pittsburgh immediately after the ceremony and separated, without having lived together, the wife testified.

Mrs. Flamm stated that upon their return she told her husband:

"I don't like you and won't live with you."

He replied, she testified, that it was all right if that was the way she felt about it. The wife said then that she would get a divorce.

According to testimony, Mrs. Flamm admitted she was intoxicated when she married Flamm, and that she did not realize what she was doing.

Judge Patterson, after hearing testimony, told Mrs. Flamm she would have to show him a law for granting the divorce or that he would have to leave both parties where they found themselves. He directed counsel to file briefs.

BOYS DIG MAN FROM CAVE-IN

Robert Hoffman, 73-year-old Homestead sewer department employe, of 127 East Fourteenth avenue, owes his life today to two youths who rescued him from a cave-in as he was working on a Trautman avenue sewer yesterday.

Hoffman's story, told to Homestead Hospital authorities, recounted how, as he dug six or seven feet below the street level, the ground gave way and buried him waist deep. He told how his struggles only caused more earth to fall around him until he was buried up to his neck.

His yells brought Howard and Joseph Moser, of Trautman street, from a sewer excavation they were digging nearby. While one youth dug to free Hoffman the other with a railroad tie stopped further cave-ins. Hoffman, after a half-hour battle, was removed from the ditch and taken to the Homestead Hospital. He was then taken home.

Motorcycle Patrolman William Fisher, of Munhall, was injured when his motorcycle hit a raised sewer lid while traveling to the scene of the accident. He was treated for bruises at the hospital.

1 DEAD, 2 HURT BY AUTOS

One man was dead and two were in hospitals today as a result of automobile accidents last night.

William Herbert, 60, of 1127 Island avenue, died in St. John's Hospital several hours after he was struck by an automobile at Columbus and Beaver avenues, deputy coroners said. George L. Stout, of 51 Overbrook drive, Mt. Lebanon, alleged driver, was arrested and held for the coroner.

Two men were injured when an automobile in which they were riding overturned after being struck by another in the 4000 block Beechwood boulevard, police said. The victims were James E. Campbell, 21, of 241 Cornell avenue, West View, and Joseph Geyser, 30, of 200 Cedarhurst street. They are in the Homeopathic Hospital.

Police Investigate Death And Question Cathie

CHAPTER XXXV.

Cathie stood up stiffly, nodded gravely to the two inspectors. She was deathly pale, but perfectly composed. She went up to Chester and tried to take hold of his hand. "Oh, I'm so sorry," she said. "You're father, Chester. Do you see? He's dead. I didn't like to leave him alone, but now that you're here——" her voice trembled a little, and she turned away because she was afraid she would cry. Chester had snatched his hand away. It was cruel of him to be hostile right now, and his father lying there. . . .

"Just a moment, Mrs. Farnsworth," one of the inspectors said.

Cathie hesitated.

"Oh, my poor darling!" It was Marguerite who rushed to her. "My poor dear! You shouldn't have come. Someone should have been with you when you came in here. I told you I'd come with you to see him, Mrs. Farnsworth, darling. Why didn't you wait!"

Cathie raised her troubled face. "I'm not afraid any more. Besides, I was alone before, you know."

"Just a minute. You were here before, Mrs. Farnsworth?"

Cathie opened her mouth to answer the tall inspector who wanted to know if she had been there before, but the woman Marguerite rushed on her, threw her long, strong arms around her. "Wait till she gets something on!" she cried. "Do you want to kill her? And her half dead already with the shock, and her little arms all gooseflesh—come Mrs. Farnsworth, darling, come—"

Questioned

Police Quiz Cathie About Case

"One minute, please, Maggie—Marguerite. What did you say was the full name?"

"Marguerite Spinney, sir. I told you before."

"Well, then, Marguerite, why did you lie to me downstairs?"

"I never. I'll swear on my—"

"Just a minute—just a MINUTE. . . . You're telling the truth and the lady is lying, is that it?"

"I don't understand you, sir. Please, please let me take her away first and help her dress. Then I'll answer you any more questions you like, sir."

"All right, Marguerite. But we'll settle this first. You said that you and Mrs. Farnsworth found the body together, didn't you?"

"Oh, no," said Cathie. "She's got it wrong. I found him, all alone."

"I said we found him together. My God, don't you remember, Mrs. Farnsworth. We went in together, the two of us—"

Strangers

House Seems Full of People

The short inspector came forward and took Marguerite by the arm. "You'll get your turn later, my girl. Let the lady talk."

"I found him—that's all," Cathie said. "He was quiet dead with a hole in the back of his head. And blood on the pillow." She was trembling violently now. "Blood on the pillow—in the moonlight, from the window. That window. Do you understand?"

She looked from one to the other. There was perfect silence except for the chattering of her own teeth.

"All right," the tall inspector said. His voice sounded tired, and a little sad—as if he were sorry for her, Cathie thought. "You can go and dress, Mrs. Farnsworth."

He took her arm, and guided her down the hall. The other inspector was still holding Marguerite's arm. Marguerite's face was purple. She was struggling futilely and quietly.

The house seemed full of peo-

ACCIDENTS THERE TOP INDUSTRY

Education of Children, Survey, Work of Women Problems for Conference

Revealing that the accidents within the home exceed those of industry, national authorities on home safety today outlined the widespread campaigns being undertaken by national women's organizations to reduce accidents during a special public session of the National Safety Congress in William Penn Hotel.

Child training and its importance, circumstances that cause accidents within the home, and a nation-wide survey about to be undertaken, were among the subjects discussed by the audience. Citing that the pivotal point for all safety work begins in the home, the Rev. Dr. R. M. Little, of Albany, N. Y., former Pittsburgher, presided and led discussions.

WARNS OF FEAR

Warning against implanting fear in a child's mind, Dr. Ada Hart Arlitt, professor of child care and training at University of Cincinnati, stressed among important steps the following:

"Don't paint pictures of terrible things in trying to train the child. Teach it and lead it over the subject. If a matter of crossing the street, go with the child and show it how; stay with it and give it the responsibility of crossing by itself, but watch for its welfare. However, do not give too much responsibility, because that will implant fear.

"Teach the use of its own towel, washrag and tooth brush while very young, and the child will grow to realize the dangers of germs and without being scared. It is merely the matter of setting up the correct habits for the child rather than the wrong ones. Make each subject contain an interesting angle and the child will follow more easily."

WOMEN'S WORK

The safety prevention work of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in conjunction with the United States Bureau of Standards, was described by Mrs. Edward M. Land, president of the North Carolina Federation. Mrs. Land described the state survey made for the general federation.

Mrs. Hugh Bradford [illegible] of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, described the work of her organization in educating the child through the home contacts and school. Miss Gertrude Zurrer, of University of Chicago, explained the national survey that will be undertaken.

BEGIN SURVEY ON BEGGARS

An investigation of the presence of an unusual number of beggars on the streets is being made by the Chamber of Commerce. The municipal affairs committee is seeking information from the city regarding the matter.

Numerous complaints have been made regarding the manner in which the downtown streets are being blocked because of the operation of those engaged in the work of seeking alms from the public. It is reported that some of those engaged in the practice have refused to accept work. The municipal affairs committee is seeking information as to how the practice can be curbed.

Motorman Stricken, Car Crashes Wagon

A Carnegie street car operated by John Ashland, 57, of 133 Wabash avenue, crashed into a wagon when Ashland became ill and collapsed in the cab of the car at Penn avenue and Fancourt street last night, police reported. He was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital by a motorist.

8 NEW MEMBERS JOIN M. E. CONFERENCE

Annual Meet in Mt. Lebanon Church Listens to Bishop Stress Foundation Work

By THE REV. C. T. MURDOCK,
Special Correspondent.

Admission of eight new ministers to the Pittsburgh conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church featured the opening session of the one hundred and seventh annual meeting in the Mt. Lebanon M. E. Church today.

Those admitted into full membership were Edward D. Linn, Frank A. Webb, Virgil Chilcote, Francis E. Turner and Homer M. Clark. Admitted on two-year trial were Alvin W. Davis, Joseph M. Somers and Elmer J. Cook.

BISHOP WELCOMES 8

The conference met in executive session to examine the candidates and the announcement of their admission was made by Bishop Adna W. Leonard, who addressed the class on the necessary qualifications of a Methodist Episcopal minister.

Dr. Sanford W. Corcoran, secretary of the Church Union, read the report of that body. He said the $300,000 fund drive during the year was the most successful in the history of the conference. M. L. Benedum was given high praise for his work in raising the fund, $175,000 of which will go to the Good Will Industries, an organization designed to give employment to aged men and women in the renovation of cast-off clothing and furniture. Albert Curry is in charge of the Industries.

Late yesterday, Bishop Leonard, in an address, stressed evangelism as the central aim in the work of the church.

FOUNDATION HEAD SPEAKS

Dr. Warren F. Sheldon of Chicago, representative of the Wesley Foundation interests of Methodism, the object of which is to provide religious facilities for the large number of students attending the state colleges, also spoke.

Dr. Homer C. Renton, director of the Wesley Foundation branch in Oakland, read his report. He announced the foundation was in the best of condition of its history, and that a start was made this year that was very gratifying. Contributions will be solicited from the entire conference territory for the promotion of the work.

FUND INCREASED

The Sparks-Capper "alien representation amendment," now pending in Congress, was discussed by Dr. George M. Fowles, of New York, who declared 3,000,000 aliens have "bootlegged" their way into the country and, while counted in the census, should not be counted as a basis of representation in Congress.

The Centenary Fund Society, the holding corporation for the invested funds of the conference, announced an increase of $22,000 in the invested funds.

Dr. Thomas Hicks announced that the denomination had set 10,000,000 as its goal for the coming year and that the Pittsburgh Conference was making plans to raise its share of this amount.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society held their anniversary in the afternoon. Mrs. Edgar M. Balsinger presided.

ple. Who were they, and where'd they all come from? Cathie made out voices, rising above the confusion of the crowd downstairs—

"Here's the coroner!"

"Two men from headquarters. Capt. Farley says—"

"Throw that camera man out. No pictures, I say!"

"Suicide? Hell, we thought it was murder!"

"How about that young wife. Don't we see her?"

A Prisoner
Cathie Not Allowed to Leave Room

The inspector smiled faintly. "It's all right, Mrs. Farnsworth. You'll have to get used to the mob scenes. You won't have to see any reporters yet. Take plenty of time, and get dressed, that's a good girl."

She smiled back. A twisted smile. She hadn't known it would be like this.

After he was gone and she was back in her own room again she stood in the middle of the floor, trying to think. A mirror reflected her image, and she was surprised to see that she was still wearing her nightgown—the one that Marguerite had given her. . . . She hadn't thought of herself, or how she looked.

She wished they had let Marguerite come in to help her. She couldn't remember where her clothes were, or what she ought to wear. . . . What a tramping and talking out there! she looked out the window, and was mildly surprised to see that it was daylight, and that there were cars parked on both sides of the street. People too. A tight little crowd, pushing towards the front steps, staring up. . . . Someone caught sight of her, and pointed. . . . She drew back, trembling. . . .

Now there was a commotion close at hand. . . . Lots of people in the upper hall. . . . Low voices . . . The thud of slow-moving feet . . . what were they doing? Oh! They were taking him away. . .

Cathie got up and went to the door. She wouldn't stay here alone. She'd make them send Marguerite—

The knob turned under her fingers, but the door only opened a crack. Someone was leaning against it. She pushed, with all her strength.

An eye appeared in the crack. Cathie stopped pushing. It was a young policeman. "I'm sorry. You can't leave the room, madam."

Dresses Slowly
She Is Unable to Think Clearly

"I want my maid," she quavered.

He shook his head. "I have orders not to let nobody in. His eyes were kind and blue in his sleepy young face. He had not seen Catherine before. He looked at her now, surprised and admiring. She was so young, so slim, so golden haired. "I'm sorry. You'll have to stay in there."

I can't come out? Why not? Why should I be shut up in here?"

His pitying eyes told her.

"I'm a—I'm a prisoner? They think I know something. But I don't! I just found him, that's all. I told those men . . . oh, why do they—"

He didn't know what to do. Everyone else was downstairs. "Do you feel sick?" he asked, anxiously.

For a long minute Cathie fought with herself. Fought for calm, for reason. . . .

"Don't worry, ma'am, it's just a formality."

She looked at him with clear bright eyes, heavy with suffering. "I understand. I won't bother you again."

Presently there was a tapping at the door. "Are you ready?" a man's voice asked.

Cathie looked down at herself. She was still wearing Marguerite's nightgown. She had forgotten to dress. "I'll be as quick as I can," she answered, through the door.

Twice while she was dressing she forgot to hurry. Sat, holding a stocking in her hands, staring at it, her mind a blank.

"We're waiting, Mrs. Farnsworth!"

"Just a minute. Please wait just a minute."

She had discovered that she had put on a dark red crepe—the first thing she saw in the closet. You can't wear a red dress when your husband has just died . . . have to take it off.

Dry-eyed, curiously devoid of feeling, she went back to the closet, and reached for one of lusterless black silk.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question: Fay King says, "The simplicity of naturalness an sincerity—is pleasing everywhere." Do you agree with her?

Miss Kunert

MISS HILDA KUNERT, North Side Clerk—I think Fay King is right when she says this because a person who acts according to his own feelings is naturally sincere and a sincere person is well liked nearly everywhere he goes.

Miss Smith

MISS MARIE SMITH, Lawrenceville, unemployed—I agree with Fay King that simplicity is an admirable characteristic and one that is pleasing to everyone. In my own experience I have met just such a person and she is welcome wherever she goes.

Miss Piasecki

MISS CLARA PIASECKI, Lyonsville, Clerk—I most heartily agree with Fay King when she makes this statement. Sincerity is the foundation of friendships and all worthwhile contracts formed in this world. I believe that a person with such characteristics is pleasing everywhere, at any time.

Mr. Cotti

JOSEPH COTTI, City, plumber—I do not agree with Fay King, because people often misconstrue sincerity for sham and naturalness for forwardness. Of course, as in all cases, there is an exception to prove the rule.

Mr. Carney

TONY CARNEY, East Liberty, packer—Yes, I believe that as a general thing, what Miss King says is true. There are, of course, times when no one would thank a person for being sincere, however. I believe these times are the exceptions.

Miss Nitres

MISS CELIA NITRES, Lawrenceville, unemployed—This assertion seems true to me. A person who is sincere to herself and to others is usually treated in the same way by others.

OBITUARY

John C. Reed.

John C. Reed, 83, former general superintendent of all foundaries of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, died Wednesday in his home at 3706 Brighton road, North Side. Mr. Reed was a pioneer manufacturer and inventor of processes and mechanical equipment important to the development of the enamel sanitary ware industry. He was born in Ireland and came to this city when a child. He started work when aged eight years as a pull boy in a rolling mill. In 1864 he joined the forces of the Union army, enlisting in the One Hundred and Ninety-Third Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry. After the war he became employed as a steam engineer with the Jones and Laughlin Iron Works. In 1883 he founded a jobbing and stove foundry business, but later entered the employ of the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company. He leaves one son, Henry M. Reed; two daughters, Pearl E. Reed and Mrs. William A. McMaster, of Pittsburgh. Mr. Reed was a member of Corinthian Lodge No. 375, F. and A. M., Highland Country Club and the G. A. R.

Golden Funeral.

Funeral services for Miss Ruth D. Golden, for 20 years a teacher in the West Liberty public school, who died at her home, 2805 Glenmore avenue, Dormont, Tuesday, were held last night. Interment will be in Freeport, Pa. She was born in Butler County and attended the old Tenth street school, of which her father, the late John Golden, was principal for many years. Later she attended Slippery Rock Normal School, Harvard and the University of Michigan. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, and the American Legion Auxiliary. She leaves her mother, Mrs. Frances Golden; three brothers, Dr. John F., Edward and Robert S. Golden, all of Dormont, and a sister, Mrs. Fred Hunter, of Allentown.

Walker Funeral.

Funeral services for Robert Walker, 84, who died yesterday, will be held at the home, 1102 Dallas avenue, Natrona Heights, at 2 p. m. Saturday. He was a veteran of the Civil War, serving with the Pennsylvania Volunteers and J. K. Weaver's independent company of mounted scouts. He was a member of the First United Presbyterian Church and Eli Hemphill Post No. 135, G. A. R. He leaves two sons, A. B. and James W. Walker, of Washington, Pa., and two daughters, Mrs. Ada L. Walker, with whom he lived, and Mrs. John T. Shumaker, of Rural Valley.

Mrs. John A. McLain.

Mrs. John A. McLain, died at her home, 1136 Creedmore avenue, Brookline. She leaves her husband and three daughters, Helen M., Jeanne M. and Nancy M. McLain; four sisters and a brother. Funeral services will be held at the home tomorrow at 1:30. Interment will be at Claysville, Pa.

TWO ARRESTED IN CAR THEFT

Arrested in an automobile, which, police said, they had stolen from the North Side a short time before, Steve Boler, 16, of 1124 Sawmill way, and Frank Kocian, 17, of 1119 Sawmill way, were being held for a hearing in Morals Court today.

The pair was arrested at Library and Fairhaven roads, Overbrook, last night by Lieut. Barnard McArdle after the machine, owned by J. C. Kirshman, of 5314 Mamelia street, had stalled.

ARMSTRONG REFUSES TO INSPECT POOLE CO. PROGRESS

Final Plans for Eucharistic Day at Forbes Field to Be Made Sunday

PARISH LEADERS TO COMPLETE PROGRAM

Carnegie Music Hall Organ Accompaniment for Hymns and 800-Voice Choir

Final plans for Eucharistic Day, Pittsburgh Catholics' tribute to the Eucharist—cornerstone of their faith—will be made Sunday night at a meeting of parish chairmen, to begin at 7:30 p. m, in Synod Hall, Craig street.

The Eucharistic Day ceremonies, to attract between 50,000 and 75,000 men to Forbes Field, will be observed with a religious pageant at 7 o'clock Sunday night, October 12. A special altar and repository will be erected in the field. Special mechanical installations for light and sound reproduction are planned.

Bishop O'Reilly

Bishop Hugh C. Boyle and Bishop Thomas C. O'Reilly, of Scranton, Pa., will be the speakers, with the former celebrant at benediction.

Due to the sponsorship of the religious spectacle by the Holy Name Society and the limited capacity of Forbes Field, women and children will not be permitted within the inclosure.

TENTATIVE PROGRAM

The program will receive its final approbation at the meeting Sunday night or early next week, when it is presented to Bishop Boyle for approval.

Tentatively, the ceremonies will begin with "The Star Spangled Banner," followed by hymns led by a choir of 800 trained voices. The Carnegie Music Hall organ will furnish the accompaniment, with special wires transmitting the music from the hall to the field's loudspeakers.

Included will be a procession of 2,000 candle bearers, altar boys in surplice and cassock. Prelates and priests totaling several hundred will precede the eucharist, or consecrated body of Christ, from the altar. Between hymns, the assembled men will take the pledge as members of the Holy Name Society, in which they promise to hold sacred the name of Christ.

LIGHT CANDLES

At benediction the powerful lights will be extinguished and tens of thousands of candles in the hands of the assembled congregation will be lighted.

The observance of Eucharistic Day follows the trend of Catholics throughout the world, who, believing in the actual presence of Christ in the blessed sacrament, hold an international eucharistic congress every 10 years, and special ceremonies of tribute at appointed times.

Rev. James M. Delaney, spiritual director of the society, will preside at the microphone and announce the program.

3 STATES PLAN CITY EXPANSION

Officials of the Chamber of Commerce conferred yesterday with business leaders of West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania and Maryland on the possibility of expanding the Pittsburgh Metropolitan district into the neighboring states. This would be accomplished through community relationship with isolated communities, definitely linking them socially, economically and culturally with Pittsburgh.

Those attending the meeting were President James A. Rae and members of the chamber; Joseph T. Miller, president of the Metropolitan Plan Commission; T. D. Harman, vice president of Capper-Harman-Slocum, Inc., publishers of farm journals; A. B. Chandler, Nat Frayne, director of agricultural extension, University of West Virginia; F. J. Hanlan, farm extension service of West Virginia, and Bushrod Grime, farm expert, of Oakland, Md.

Charges Desertion Soon After Marriage

Charging desertion after less than a month of married life, Andrew S. Braznell, of 423 South Braddock avenue, asked a divorce from Jeanne H. Braznell, of 712 East End avenue, in Common Pleas Court. They were married August 19, 1927 and the alleged desertion occurred September 18, 1927.

TURTLE GILDED MEMORIAL HUE

Pete was just an ordinary mud turtle and wasn't any different from the many others of his kind, but today, elegant in a new coat of gilt, he is the envy of goldfish in the lily pond in Schenley Park near the new Westinghouse Memorial site.

The snapper owes his new importance to Henry Hornbostel, architect, busy just now applying gold leaf to the memorial. Pete, entirely out of keeping with the memorial, waddled into Hornbostel's line of vision.

The architect found him inharmonious. He gilded him, and now Pete, symbolizing longevity, and bringing the recollection that it was on the banks of Turtle Creek that George Westinghouse began a great industry, is welcomed as a good omen.

Suburban Hospital Donation Day Set

The Suburban General Hospital has designated October 6 to 11 as annual donation week by the Women's Advisory Board, Mrs. Nellie Robertson, chairman. Tag day will be held October 11 in the North Boroughs and Ross Township. Canned goods will be received at the schools of the district and at the hospital. Money contributions will be received by Miss Eva M. Braun, superintendent of the hospital.

PARIS JOURNEY CHANCE OPEN

Nominations are still open for any girl in Pittsburgh or vicinity who would like to go to Paris with all expenses paid on the tour, sail on the greatest of ocean liners, live at the best hotels in Paris and have extra money to spend for the trip as the guest of Gloria Swanson.

Incidentally, there are to be five trips to tropical Bermuda given away by the Sun-Telegraph, with all expenses paid and extra money to spend.

Although scores of girls have already sent in their nomination blanks, there is still time for others to enter the contest.

These tours — Paris and Bermuda—will be awarded in November and the girls will sail early in December, but now is the time to send in your entry blank.

Girls who have not sent in a nomination blank will find one on page 38 in the Sun-Telegraph today. Carefully read the rules on the blank, and if you are eligible, clip the blank, fill it in and mail it today.

COMMISSIONER SPEAKS FOR SELF ONLY

Says if Others Wish to Check Vote Machine Building Firm Will Welcome Them

Asked if the county commissioners expect to make any inspection of the Poole Engineering and Machine Company to check progress of their work on the 1,000 voting machines ordered by Allegheny County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong said:

"I can only speak for myself and I certainly do not intend to make any personal inspection. It would be just as sensible for me to personally supervise a road under construction. This company has posted a $100,000 bond to guarantee their contract. If Commissioners Babcock and McGovern intend to personally inspect the plant, that's up to them. The company officials said that the commissioners are welcome any time."

In addition to failing to deliver the "not less than 70 nor more than 75 voting machines" here October 1, the Poole Company also failed to deliver in Fayette, Schuylkill and Northumberland counties.

EXPLAIN DELAY

Officials of the company made no explanation of the delay, except in Allegheny County, where Dudley Shoemaker, vice president of the company, told commissioners that the filing of the suit by Francis S. Guthrie to restrain the commissioners from completing their contract and "harassment from outside sources" made it inadvisable for them to attempt to deliver any machines October 1 as provided for in their contract. They were granted a 90-day extension of time by the local commissioners.

The hearing on the suit of Guthrie is scheduled for Monday in Common Pleas Court.

Suit Asks $25,000 For Auto Injuries

Mrs. Margaret E. Myers, of 3310 Bigelow boulevard, in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court asked $25,000 damages for personal injuries from Clyde E. Orwig and Rose M. Simmons, both of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Myers set forth that on March 21, as she was crossing Bigelow boulevard in front of her home, she was struck by an automobile driveh by Rose M. Simmons, who the plaintiff claims was operating the car at the request of Orwig.

POLICE QUIZ 4 IN MAN'S FALL

While Bernard McKinan, 52, of 909 Wylie avenue, lay in a serious condition in Mercy Hospital today, police were questioning four men in connection with his injuries.

McKinan was found unconscious at the foot of the stairs leading to a second floor pool room at Wylie avenue and Elm street, police said. Simon Whady, alleged proprietor of the place, and three others, whose names were not revealed by police, were held for questioning. Whady was said to have told police that McKinan fell down the stairs while intoxicated.

Bridgeville Women Hire Guard to Watch Over Valuable Antiques

So valuable is the exhibit of antiques assembled by the Bridgeville Woman's Club and now on view at Mrs. J. Frank Murray's home that the club has engaged a guard to watch over the display. It was opened yesterday and continues today and tomorrow. Supper will be served tonight.

From a cane that is 100 years old and a snuff box that is 50-year-old, to the gorgeous old gowns and the lovely furniture, each with its bit of interesting history, the exhibit carries both beauty and historic value.

A Bible owned by the Rev. Dr. S. W. Carson, of Gladden United Presbyterian Church and said to be more than 300 years old, is carefully preserved in a glass case.

Brookside Farms has contributed a number of pieces, among them a canopy cradle, quilts and coverlets, china and early glass. Mrs. Samuel Patton and Miss Nellie Poellot are showing a bonnet and parasol that were new more than 100 years ago. Mrs. George P. Murray is exhibiting luster and chinaware and the hostess and Miss Cora Murray have many interesting pieces that have been in the Murray family for a century or more.

The display of gowns attracted especial attention at the opening yesterday. One of these, a yellow brocade, was first worn by Letitia Blaus, great grandmother of Mary Roberts Rinehart, in 1820, when she was 18 and a bridesmaid at a friend's wedding in Philadelphia.

Greensburg Hunt Opens Tomorrow

These invigorating, exciting autumn days seem to suggest active and interesting out-of-doors things, and the fall seems to breathe an atmosphere of woodsiness, so that it is not surprising that hunts and horse shows and hunt trials are always scheduled for the one or two months before snow flies.

The Westmoreland hunt is scheduled tomorrow to start from the kennels. And there will be trials every Wednesday and Saturday starting at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The race meet will be held on Monday, October 13, and of course all the hunts of Western Pennsylvania will compete, and they include the Rolling Rock, Westmoreland and Indiana hunts. And the meet will be held at the George R. McNary farm. Torrence Miller is the master of fox hounds, and Miss Margaret Coulter is the secretary of the Westmoreland hunt.

And I want to add that after the opening of the Sewickley hunt team season tomorrow afternoon the J. O. Burgwins will give a dinner in the Allegheny Country Club.

Today I have news of a fall wedding, that of Sara Westwood Lewis, daughter of the Bertrand West Lewises, of South Pacific avenue, and James Scott Miller, son of the Harry A. Millers, of Wheaton, Ill. It is to be an event of October 18.

Bridal Party

Mrs. John Calvin Carroll, of Tulsa, Okla., will be her cousin's matron of honor, and Mrs. Earl C. Moss, of Westfield, N. J., sister of the bridegroom-elect, Elizabeth Snyder and Marguerite McLenahan, both of Pittsburgh; Josephine Chandler, of New York; Rachel Hack, of Proctor, Vt., and Marian Koehler, of Wheaton, Ill., will be bridesmaids. And you might be interested to know that the last four girls I mentioned were Sara's classmates at Wellesley.

William T. Cooley, of Wheaton, Ill., will be best man, and Aden G. Gary, Charles Lewis and Charles E. Gates, all of Wheaton; David Q. Lewis, of Hinsdale, Ill.; Elliott G. Coleman, of Binghampton, N. Y., and Clair H. Neff, of Pittsburgh, will be ushers.

The wedding will take place in the evening at 7:30 o'clock in Christ Church Methodist Episcopal, and will be followed by a reception in the home of the bride-elect's late grandmother, Mrs. Thomas J. Wood, of South Graham street.

There are quite a few out-of-town guests arriving to attend the wedding of Katherine Schley and H. Allen Machesney, Jr., which is taking place at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning in St. Paul's Cathedral. And they will, of course, be present at the reception after the ceremony, in the Hotel Schenley.

Wedding Guests

The John Langdon Gateses, of Cincinnati, O., will be among the guests, as will Sara Chew, of Winchester, Va.; William Hyde, of Hagerstown, Md.; Mrs. Francis S. Chambers, of Elizabeth, Pa.; the Frederick A. Yeagers, of Johnstown, and Mrs. Charles Walter, of Chambersburg.

Katherine, who is being feted at many parties during this weekend, will be tendered a buffet supper on Sunday evening by the Samuel Brainard Wests.

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Last season crepe de Chine was quietly creeping into the best wardrobes. This summer saw its popularity increased and now it is one of the leading contenders for material honors. Most of the smart houses on both sides of the Atlantic are using it for some of their most important models. In fact it is the American woman's penchant for this fabric that has caused it to be so well liked here. The same is true of lace. It was not much shown by the best houses, but the insistance of American buyers and individual clients for dresses of fine lace has been the main factor in creating a demand for lace frocks. Heavy crepe de Chine lends itself gracefully to clever handling and deft manipulation and is the ideal compromise between sheer fabrics and somewhat heavier ones. A good crepe de Chine frock should be included in your wardrobe for it will render fine service, and is generally quite at home, whatever the occasion at which it is worn.

TO SHOW HOW SUITABLE crepe de Chine is for even the most formal occasion, we are showing a sketch of a formal afternoon frock as created by Redfern. It is of heavy crepe de Chine in a medium shade of mauve. It is most interestingly cut with narrow epaulets and a triple applique at the front of the skirt falling into circular godets. The high-necked yoke—which is very new—is of white chiffon lightly starched, as is the novel upstanding frill.

NEARLY every house knows evening frocks in various shades of pink. The model here depicted is in shell-pink and is of crepe-belia, which is a sort of heavy crepe satin. It is by Lucile Paray. Although there is a belt the lines of the dress are quite clinging in princess fashion.

THE DEEP, flaring flounce is slashed to a point midway to the knee at intervals all around the skirt and it trails slightly in back. A heavy panel of the material is shirred at one side of the bodice and looped down and across the back to be caught in the side drapery of the trailing flounce. It is more than an ornament for it can be released to form a long train.

Eastern Wedding

Because of the recent death of the bride's grandfather, Henry Phipps, one-time partner of the late Andrew Carnegie, only relatives and a few friends attended the marriage yesterday afternoon of Peggie Phipps, daughter of the John H. Phippses, of New York, Westbury, L. I., and Pittsburgh, and Gordon Douglas, Jr., son of Gordon Douglas and of Mrs. Grafton W. Minot, of New York.

The ceremony was performed in the Cathedral of the Incarnation, Garden City, L. I., by the Rt. Rev. E. L. Stires, and followed by a small reception in the Phipps Westbury place.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an Empire model of ivory satin, with a short-waisted bodice, finished with a V neck, and short puff sleeves. The skirt ended in a three-yard train over which fell her veil of tulle. She carried gardenias.

Mrs. John H. Phipps was her sister-in-law's matron of honor, and Barbara Phipps, daughter of the Henry Carnegie Phippses, Phyllis M. Byrne, Evelyn Whitehouse and Elizabeth Bliss, all of New York; Henrietta Sedgwick, of Boston; Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, Mrs. George McK. Schieffelin and Mrs. James Cox Brady were bridesmaids. Sonia Phipps, daughter of the Henry C. Phippses, was flower girl.

Barclay K. Douglas was his brother's best man, and John H. Phipps, Hubert B. Phipps, Michael G. Phipps, Ogden Phipps, Raymond Guest, Austen Gray, Francis P. Kinnicut, Robert O. Bishop, Howard G. Cushing and William T. Wetmore, all of New York, and Forrester A. Clark, of Boston, were ushers.

The church was decorated with masses of camellia trees with the home decorated in American beauties and dahlias. Before an arbor of Easter lillies, ferns and palms the young Douglases received. Tonight they sail on the Ile de France, and upon their return will be at home in Sutton place, New York.

I know of a dinner dance to be given tomorrow night in the Pittsburgh Country club by the Pressly C. Dowlers. The guests of honor are the Samuel A. Kennedys, of Salt Lake City, Utah, sister and brother-in-law of Mrs. Dowler, and Dr. and Mrs. William Marshall. Mrs. Marshall was formerly Mary Louise Warner before her marriage in July.

Several Pittsburgh people will be present at a wedding in Buffalo tomorrow afternoon. The bride is Eleanor Lucille Carson, daughter of the John L. Carsons, of Buffalo, and formerly of Pittsburgh, and she'll marry Douglas Parker Hall, also of Buffalo. The wedding will take place in the Carson home in West Delevan avenue, at 5:30 o'clock. The bride will be attended by Mrs. John L. Carson, Jr., of Snyder, N. Y., as matron of honor, and Edna Dolbur, of Philadelphia, a classmate at Smith, will be the maid of honor. Frederick Hall will be his brother's best man and the ushers will include Edward Hall, John L. Carson, Jr., and Dale B. Carson.

On Monday night Miss Dorothy Mary Burgess, daughter of Mr and Mrs. William Craig Burgess, of Savannah avenue, Edgewood, will become the bride of Parkin R. Jones, son of Dr. R. R. Jones, of Edgewood, at 7:30 o'clock in the Mifflin Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church. The Rev. Charles J. Whitlatch will officiate.

To Wed Monday

Mrs. Luke D. Patrick has been chosen as matron of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Miss Margaret Eicher, Mrs. John A. Buck and Miss Virginia Landgraff. Russell R. Jones, Jr., will be the best man, and the ushers will include Theodore R. Koenig, John A. Buck, Paul M. Crawford and David A. Riggs. There will be a reception in the Penn-Lincoln. After a Southern wedding trip Mr. Jones and his bride will be at home after October 15 in Braddock avenue, Edgewood. Mrs. William R. Riggs, of East End avenue, is giving the rehearsal dinner tomorrow night.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

POPCORN PUDDING—Put 2 cups of freshly popped corn through the food chopper. Add 2½ cups of milk, 3 well beaten egg yolks and 2 whites, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup sugar and 1½ tablespoons butter. Pour into a well-greased baking dish. Set in a pan of hot water and bake until the custard is set. Remove from the oven, cover with a meringue made of 1 egg white and sugar, sprinkle the top with popcorn and set in the oven to brown lightly.

PEANUT POPCORN FUDGE—Cook ½ cup peanut butter, ½ cup milk and 2½ cups sugar to a soft ball stage. Add 1 tablespoon butter, 1 cup of coarsely chopped popped corn and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool, beat until creamy and pour into buttered pans.

GOLD COOKIES—Two cups cake flour, sifted, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ cup butter or other shortening, 1 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, unbeaten.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and sift again. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add flour. Chill. Roll into balls ¾ inch in diameter. Roll some balls in mixture of chopped nuts and cinnamon, and remaining ones in tiny colored candies. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 minutes, using lower grate during first half of baking period and upper grate during last half. Makes 3½ to 4 dozen cookies.

Beneficial Qualities Are Found in Fruit

Many fruits are particularly advantageous for sufferers from various organic disturbances. Everyone should plan to eat some fruit every day.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City
United States Senator From New York

In early fall, our markets are filled to overflowing with all manner of good fruits. From the sloping hillsides and valleys, from along our great rivers and lakes, come every sort of sun-ripened fruit. Probably no country in the world is more blessed with climate and soil to produce variety and flavor.

We need much of what are known as "protective" or "activated" foods. These foods have special qualities which some other foods do not possess. They effect certain changes in the body which make for health and vitality. Fruit is one of thes most important foods.

Of course the protective foods other than fruits, such as milk produced from properly-fed cows which have had some direct sunshine daily, eggs from hens that are properly fed and live in sunshine, codliver oil and fresh green vegetables, are highly valuable. But today I should like to emphasize the reasons why the average person should include in the diet more of these activated fruits.

Why are such fruits so good for us?

I cannot do better than quote one paragraph from an eminent scientist. Speaking from the botanical standpoint, he says, "A fruit is the ripe or ripening ovary with its contents and any closely adhering parts. The fruit nourishes the young seed, and protects it during its development. The green fruit does not differ very much from the leaf in composition, but under the influence of sunlight in the process of ripening, there is a remarkable change in size, color, texture, composition and flavor as the ripening fruit begins to absorb oxygen and to give out carbon dioxide."

These ripening processes perfect the fruit and render it suitable for our use. They store up in the fleshy substance mysterious elements which make for our well-being.

AIDS DIGESTION

Fruits, either raw or cooked, should be eaten every day by most people. Raw fruits should always be fully ripe and fresh. In that condition they have a natural combination of acids, sugar, pectin, and mineral salts that make them indispensable in the diet. They contain the vitamins so necessary to our well-being.

Their organic acids assist in digestion by increasing the flow of saliva, and indirectly, the gastric juice. They increase the secretions of the liver, the pancreas and the mucous lining of the intestines.

VALUABLE TO THE SICK

For those who suffer from general debility and anemia, fruits are particularly valuable. There are some fruits which are excellent in the diet of persons suffering from gout and rheumatism. Stewed fruits, from which the seeds have been strained, are often prescribed for persons who are recuperating from an illness, or one who has a digestive disturbance. Cooking softens and modifies the fibers and starches of the fruit, and they are better assimilated.

lemon-colored. Add lemon juice and rind. Mix sugar, flour and salt and add to lemon mixture. Stir in melted butter and milk and fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Turn into pie tin lined with crust and put into hot oven (450 degrees). After 10 minutes reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) and continue baking 20 minutes longer, or until filling is firm.

FOUR-FRUIT SALAD—One package of lime-flavored gelatin, 1½ cups boiling water, 1 orange, sections free from membrane and diced; 1 banana, diced; 1 apple, pared and diced; juice of 1 lemon, ¼ cup sugar, dash of salt.

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Chill. Combine remaining ingredients. When gelatin is slightly thickened, fold in fruit mixture, turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise, or serve with whipped cream as a dessert. Serves six.

BAKED BROCOLLI — Soak broccoli heads down, in cold water. Cook, heads up, in boiling salted water in uncovered kettle, for about 7 minutes, or until tender. Prepare a medium white sauce, put broccoli in baking dish, cover with white sauce and sprinkle with crumbs mixed with grated cheese. Bake in moderate oven until crumbs are brown. Sprinkle top with chopped parsley and pimento before serving.

VEGETABLE AND COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD—Chop fine ½ small head of red cabbage, also ½ small head of white cabbage. Mix ¼ cup of vinegar and use to season the cabbage. Pile the white cabbage in the center of a salad plate, surrounded with the red cabbage. Grate 4 carrots. Cream 2 tablespoons of butter.

Jerry Takes Raquel to Meet His Family

CHAPTER LXIX.

Jerry thought they should run up to Boston for a few days.

"I want you to know my mother," he said. "She's been asking for you, and she's not equal to the trip down here. She had a bad fall a couple of years ago. It has left her more or less helpless a good deal of the time. She won't admit it, though. She's a great little fighter, mother."

"Do you think it would be safe to leave Pancho?" Raquel asked. She was a bit frightened of Jerry's family. And Pancho was doing so well, was showing such facility and ease with his new life, that Raquel feared to leave him out from under her watchful eye.

"That is one of the main reasons for the journey," Jerry said. "I want to find out just how your father feels about it all. We haven't given him time nor opportunity to think and act for himself."

"He might bolt. He thinks one of the gang turned the former. Vengeance is strong in him——"

"You need not fear that." A note in Jerry's voice caused her eyes to widen to seek his.

"Has—something—happened?" she asked, the giddiness upon her again.

"Nothing that need worry you, dear girl," he said kindly. "That uncanny intuition of yours has saved you the trouble. There was a little expedition across the border night before last. From Hermosa. The marauders were surrounded."

"But they'll tell everything," Raquel gasped.

He took her in his arms.

"No," he said gravely, "that can never happen."

Meets Jerry's Mother

"How do you know?" drawing back in fresh alarm.

"The band attempted to shoot its way out. There were only five of them, it seems."

Now she understood. Limp, dark bodies in the dust. Glazing eyes staring up at the desert stars they would never again see.

But for her, and for Bill Johnson, Pancho—

"Does he know?" she whispered.

"He knows. There was a story in the papers this morning. That is why I feel it is all right now for us to go to Boston. To leave him to his thoughts."

The big white frame Boston house with the many-paned windows and the fan-shaped glass above its paneled door brought a feeling of solidity to Raquel. This was Jerry's home. On this broad stretch of clipped velvet lawn Jerry had romped as a baby. He had played hide-and-seek among the clumps of lilac bushes tree-sized now.

There was a bronze tablet on one corner of the house. A Revolutionary Parker had grabbed his musket from behind the paneled door and rushed through in defense of the big white house and all it held that was dear to him. He had returned—with a tattoo of British bullets in his chest.

Jerry was so much like his mother that Raquel's heart warmed to her instantly.

"Welcome home, my daughter," the gray-haired woman said simply when Jerry had drawn up proudly to present to her this newest member of her treasured family. Raquel bowed her sable head over the frail white hand on which blue veins wove a delicate tracery.

Sister Doesn't Approve

In this house of tradition and family treasure she was like some vivid tropical flower in an old-fashioned garden. Yet she felt strangely at home in it. Jerry's mother managed to make it so.

Jerry's sister was more difficult.

"We're glad to welcome Jerry's wife," she said, when she came in with her tall, distinguished husband to greet the homecomers.

She had not missed a single detail of Raquel's attire or of Raquel herself. Her only brother's marriage to this unknown had not met with her exacting idea of noblesse oblige. The Parkers married in Boston. They chose their mates from other big white houses whence Revolutionary heroes had gone to glorious death or glorious victory. Her own husband was from the big white house across the Common.

"I suppose you'd call her beautiful," Nancy Parker Alden told John Alden, her husband, when they were alone. "If you care for that type of beauty. To me it seems—well too acute. Not offensive, of course. Her skin's too pale for that. But sort of compelling and not quite comfortable."

"I thought she was the most exotically lovely woman I have ever seen," said John Alden, with genuine admiration.

Nancy looked at him with raised eyebrows.

"I didn't know you cared for exoticism," she said crisply.

John was uncomfortable and showed it.

"I should have preferred Prudence Rankin," his wife said. "She was in love with Jerry, you know. I believe she always thought Jerry would come back to Boston in the end. And when he did he would find her waiting for him."

Then she was a very foolish woman, continued Jerry never gave her reason to harbor such a hope. Anyhow, he seems to have picked the right one. I've never seen him so completely happy about anything as he is about his wife.

There was to be a gathering of the clan about the polished mahogany table in the dining-room of the big white house. It seemed to Raquel that she could see the dim faces of the Parkers who had gathered around the board for generations reflected in its mellow glow. Grave faces turned expectantly toward her. She nodded to them. A little flustered, but unafraid.

"I must wear something that will tone me down," she told Jerry when they were dressing for the family dinner.

"Why," he asked, coming to where she was rifling a closet for a gown she thought suitable to the setting.

"I don't know. Except that I feel odd—like a high note in a soft murmur of music."

"Nonsense," said Jerry. "I want to give the family a treat. Mother will enjoy it. She told me once she was the first girl in Boston to wear black lace mitts. Try that white thing, the shiny one that makes you look like a lily with a black cloud for a hood. I've sent for gardenias. Somehow they seem a part of you."

If Jerry wanted to give his kinfolks a thrill, he succeeded beyond his most optimistic hope. The dark beauty of this foreigner among them furnished a topic of wonder and concern for months to come. She was like a breath from some far-off tropical island. Faintly scented, luminous, unforgetable.

A Poisonous Dart

A woman with fair hair and haughty eyes sought Raquel out.

"Jerry gave us all a tremendous surprise," she said. Despite her trained smile Raquel could see that the surprise as this woman regarded it, was not altogether pleasant. "We had come to think him a hopeless bachelor."

"Then you made a great mistake," Raquel countered, and saw the weariness in the woman's eyes beneath their hauteur. "Jerry is what one might call a constitutional husband."

"He's always had a fancy for the extraordinary," said the woman and turned away. Raquel smothered her smile. Let the woman aim this little poisonous dart if it gave her satisfaction. Raquel had read the secret in weary eyes.

"The woman in blue loves you," Raquel told Jerry that night when the clan had dispersed and they were gossiping in the room that had been Jerry's.

"Prudence Rankin? You're dreaming, dear. I've known her since we wore bibs."

"Then you should know what I say is true." A pause. "She would have made a splendid mother for your son."

Jerry took her by the shoulder, forced her to look up into his gray eyes.

"If I ever have a son," he said, his voice deep and firm, "if I am ever so blessed, only one woman could mother him. And that woman is my wife."

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

The Etiquette of Distinct Articulation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you settle an argument, please? A maintains that pronunciation is included in the world of etiquette. B insists that it is not. And you, what do you say?

A MAN.

A wins, sir. It is good manners to articulate distinctly and it is bad manners not to. Not to speak distinctly is unkind and often irritating to the person spoken to, and that means a disregard of others, which is bad manners.

Making the World A Pleasant Place

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it necessary to thank a man when he holds the door open for you in any public place? I mean a stranger who happens to be walking in front of you.

A. T.

Yes, indeed, you should thank for this courtesy. A mannerly person invariably thanks any one who does her or him a courtesy, no matter how slight. If more people thanked graciously and enthusiastically for this kind of courtesy, more people would do this kind of courtesy. And then—"What a nice world this would be."

Comfort Beats Applause—Beauty Has Its Disadvantages, Says Fay King

By FAY KING

Being plain has its advantages, just as being beautiful has its disadvantages.

Often when I curl up in my chair to enjoy a quiet evening with a good book, and nibble away to my heart's content, I think it beats being a beauty and starving for the movies.

Beauty naturally seeks a limelight. It should. But I don't envy those beautiful creatures who night after night must change a dozen costumes and stalk the stage.

Comfort beats applause so far as I am concerned. To fall in love must be doubly keen if you are beautiful. The plain girl can at least console herself with the thought that if she were a handsome young man, she wouldn't choose herself, either!

Pair Thoroughly Enjoy Matching Wits With City Detective

Mr. Hasbrouck's story of the detective's activities bore out the "reconstruction" of his friend Train in several details.

"I think he suspected something all along," Mr. Hasbrouck said over the bountiful breakfast which Mrs. Train did not have to urge unduly upon him. "He had more brains than we gave him credit for, and when the tire went bad on the road he gave me a dirty look, and I saw he was sort of mulling over my wanting to go to Kingston with him. Then after you met us he kept looking back as if he expected to see somebody coming. I guess he figured you might trail him."

"Of course I knew better than to go clear to the ferry, but I got as far down this street as I dared past the railroad tracks and almost to the street that turns off to the bridge. I told him that was the corner I wanted and as soon as he was out of sight, I doubled over to the place of a friend of mine who keeps a little shop on that street. He let me sit in the window and watch the shops so near the corner that you can see this road as well as the one to the bridge, so I knew I could spot his car if he came back from the ferry.

"It wasn't but a few minutes," Mr. Hasbrouck went on, "before he came poking back, driving real slow and looking from one side of the road to the other, looking for me. I reckoned and came back again, looking over all the houses and when he spied the shop near the corner, he drew up on the opposite side of the road and got out. I just had time to tip off my friend and get into the back room when he opened the door and came in.

"'Is Hasbrouck here?' he asked as cool as a cucumber. He told me to meet him here.'

"'What's the name?' he asked.

"'Hasbrouck. Hasbrouck up Phoenicia way,' the fellow shot back, sort of riled-like. 'I know he came in here. He said you were a friend of his.'

"'If you know that, you know more than I do,' my friend said in a sort of tired drawl. 'There hasn't anybody by that name been in here that I know of. Hasbrouck, did you say?' there are Hasbroucks all through this section thick as spatter, but I don't know any of 'em. And there have been only two people in here so far this morning. Was this Hasbrouck a little man with a gray mustache?'

"'No, he wasn't,' the fellow snapped and he got himself out of the shop quicker than he came in. He got in his car and whisked around the corner onto this road, only headed this way. My friend watched him through the window for me while I was telephoning from the back room. I got hold of the man at the ferry. I know the fellow who is on in the early mornings, and he said the man I described was inquiring about three women in a blue sedan, and when he found out they hadn't been over yet he turned around and beat it.'

"Why! that's just what Mr. Train said he would do."

"Oh, Train's a regular Sherlock Holmes," Mr. Hasbrouck said jovially.

"I'm glad I called the turn," Mr. Train said, his eyes gleaming. "But that's not important. What did you do next?"

"Then I got hold of my boy. It took some telephoning to get him out of bed, and told him to beat it down to where I was on his motorcycle, but to keep his eyes peeled for the black roadster and the man I described to him. When he got down here I had him hide his motorcycle behind the shop, and then told him what was up. He said he had seen the roadster parked outside one of the hotels and had watched until a fellow like the one I described came out, got into it, and went around to another hotel. Then Ed beat it down to me."

I turned to Mr. Train again with respectful admiration that was not feigned.

"That's just what you said he would do," I said, and Mr. Hasbrouck struck his hand against his knee.

"What do you know about that?" he inquired. "I tell you, Train, if they knew their oats in this town, they'd make you chief of police. You wouldn't let much get away from you."

"You're not such a slouch yourself," Mr. Train replied, and it was Mr. Hasbrouck's turn to preen his feathers a bit.

"Well! I didn't let him put anything over on me anyway," he said. "Ed had planned to go to New York anyway, and was glad of a chance to trail this fellow for the fun of it.

"It will be for more than the fun of it. I went on earnestly. Whatever you and Mr. Train decide this unusual service is worth I shall be glad to pay."

"We won't quarrel about that," Mr. Hasbrouck said, and Mr. Train nodded a vigorous assent. "We'll figure out the actual expenses and the bill for the rooms and meal here. That's business. The rest is pleasure—for us. I'm having the time of my life, and I know Train is too."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, October 4

With most of the planets in adverse positions on this day by lunar aspect supported by a sinister solar figure, it will be difficult to make much progress and avoid the shoals unless by sheer shrewdness, resolution and dogged application. The latter will be sustained by a friendly Saturn, the only sidereal help to be looked for. There is a menace of fraud, duplicity and furtive attack as well as a threat of open enmity.

Those whose birthday it is may expect to be confronted by a year of difficult and hazardous situations which may only be circumvented by hard work, strict attention to business and the exercise of a mind alert to deception, fraud and enmity.

A child born on this day should be industrious and shrewd, with secret and inner leadings to apprise it of danger spots to which it may be subject through treachery and malice.

Love—and Nature Study

Consider the kitten, my Daughter. Observe her ways and be wise.

She toileth not, neither doth she gold-dig. Yet, all the days of her life, she dwelleth in ease and luxury, feedeth upon cream, and is coddled and flattered and called pet names.

For behold, she is filled with wisdom and subtility. She knoweth her groceries!

Lo, her eyes are the eyes of a child and a siren. Yea, they speak worlds! But her tongue is silent and clacketh not. She keepeth her own counsel and giveth not herself AWAY. She is more fascinating than a mystery story, whereof the blurb hath not revealed the plot!

* * *

Her paws are of velvet and her manners are softer than silk. But her WILL is of cast iron, and NO man or woman hath ever prevailed over her.

She doeth as she darned pleaseth!

She accepteth her petting and returneth it not. She asketh not for "more," but is content therewith.

When a wooer appeareth, she runneth not to greet him with cordiality and rejoicing. Neither doth she pursue him, but sitteth afar and looketh inscrutable. She sheweth not her HAND.

She falleth not into his arms; neither doth she seek to lure him with dinner dates, nor torment him with telephone calls.

For Nature hath taught her that the male of the species rejoiceth in the chase and despiseth the aggressive female, and that a man will forgive a woman for anything save for loving him too QUICKLY.

Therefore is she patient, difficult and coy, and self-complacency is her Middle Name.

For the Lord hath made the female of the species to rule over the male by tact and subtility rather than by boldness and forwardness.

And, if girls WILL be boys, then boys can only be on their guard against the snares of matrimony.

* * *

As a cat runneth from a bone that is flung at its head, so doth a man flee in terror from a woman that flingeth herself at his feet or throweth herself upon his neck!

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

That "Tired Feeling" in the Morning

It isn't a good sign to be tired all the time. It isn't natural to get up in the morning tired as you were the night before. You just cannot compete with the rest of the world when everything looms large before you, when you are just able to drag yourself around.

DR. COPELAND

There are plenty of reasons for these symptoms. The condition often comes from lack of proper sleep and rest. It may be that you keep late hours or are overworked, overanxious and worried about something. Of course, if you cannot sleep, you are going to be tired the next day.

Perhaps no two things have caused so much ill health as chronic constipation and indigestion. They are the most common causes of that "tired feeling."

You cannot hope to absorb for days and weeks the toxic poisons thrown off by waste material in the intestinal tract without having real trouble. Nothing breaks down the vigor and vitality more quickly. It will depend upon your powers of endurance of "your constitution" just how long you can hold out against these insidious poisons.

Kidney, heart and liver troubles bring with them a sense of fatigue. Here again poisons infect the system and heart weakness reduces the power and force of the circulation of the blood.

The first thing to do in a case like this is to consult your doctor. He will find the cause of your tiredness. When the seat of trouble is found you should abide by the doctor's advice and treatment. That tired feeling will disappear only when the cause is removed.

Pus formations of any description will set up poisons in the system. These produce fatigue and bad health. It may be an abscessed tooth or pussy gums. Perhaps it is diseased tonsils. Sinus or ear troubles are far-reaching in their bad results. Any of these toxic poisons may be carried to every part of the body by the blood stream producing bad health.

None of these things should be neglected. The trouble cannot be removed too soon. Nose and throat should be examined by a competent doctor, and the eyes and ears come in for his scrutiny. A thorough examination is necessary to be sure there is no hidden trouble.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

It's an Empty Mind That Can't Do Anything but 'Knock.'

Do you think all the rest of the world is a joke?

Do you wonder, audibly, where the woman in the next seat got that goofy hat?

Do you call the gang to look at some poor kid's skinny legs?

Then here's Olive, with plenty for what ails you.

Dear Miss Martin:

"I've just got to bust out on this pet peeve of mine.

"And what is the peeve? Knockers! People who laugh at other folks. You spoke of tolerance in an article lately. Couldn't you put up a few thousand bottles of it and distribute them? I'll admit I could take a dozen or so bottles myself. I need 'em when I think of these darned girls and women who seem to get such a kick out of ridiculing the rest of us.

"And most of them don't know what privation or unselfishness is. They laugh at other folks' clothes, or the things they do, or the ideas they have.

"I don't dress so hot myself. Circumstances have never worked out so that I could spend all I made on myself like some of these dames can do. Still, I make as much as most of 'em and my clothes are no indicator of my character or my intelligence.

Being feminine, I've dreamed of clothes . . . a dull lavender ensemble, a dark gray fox, gray shoes, blouse, bag, gloves. I've admired that finished picture . . . in my dreams. But you can't appear in public clad in a gossamer stuff of dreams. And you can't wear a placard, informing the world that you're clothed by the stern and homely taste of necessity, not by your own desires.

"But the way I feel when they give hostile stares or make too-plain comments on clothes, isn't a candle to the way I feel when it's personal deformities they're snickering at. Then my blood simply boils! Are any of us personally responsible for . . . or able to overcome . . . the fact that we are too tall or too short or too thin or too fat?

"There's just as much longing for romance and happiness, and just as much right to peace of mind behind an ugly or deformed face as any other. And there is just as much, if not more, intelligence, good sportsmanship and ability to be a comrade and pal in a homely person as in a pretty one. But none of these cats seem to consider that. Honestly, I hear so much knocking going to and from work that I wonder sometimes if that is all women can do or think of.

"And I happen to know a young girl—she's only 17—who has been sick for years, and who for that reason is painfully thin. She won't go out of the house any more. It's no use telling her it doesn't matter what people say and think. And if you walk down town with her you see that it is a little too much. One day I was with her, and two pretty, beautifully dressed girls stopped right in front of her. One grabbed the other's arm, and hissed audibly, 'My Gawd! What is it?' The other tittered—'Must be a circus in town. It's a skeleton.' If I had legs like that I'd keep 'em home.'

"They went on down the street laughing and chattering. But the poor little skeleton went home in tears.

"I wonder if it would have made any difference if these girls had known they were hurting her? I wonder if people don't realize or don't they care, what effect their mean remarks have?

"Where do women hide their charity? And their much advertised 'intuition?' And why do so many of them spend all their time picking other people to pieces? I'd like to give them a good poke on the nose every time I hear them at it. I hope you'll print this. I think the world needs it. 'Olive.'

You bet I'll print it, sister! I'd like to take a poke at 'em myself.

And now how about you, Irene? Gussie? Mary Jane? Do you go around snickering and tittering and pointing at the bird on Nellie's hat? If so, how do you get that way? And how would you like to have the tables turned?

COOKED CEREAL

Nutrition experts tell us that a steaming bowl of cooked whole wheat cereal, served with orange juice and a glass of milk, furnishes, in good proportion, all the elements of a well-balanced meal. The proteins, minerals, roughage, everything needed in the diet is found in these three simple foods.

This delicious, complete breakfast is the one that you know will best start them off with the proper preparation for a full, active day.

There are many ways of varying a hot whole wheat cereal so that a different breakfast may be served each day in the week. Puffed on seeded raisins, stirred into it during the cooking period makes perhaps the most common of these variations. Chopped prunes or dates added to the cereal shortly before removing it from the fire make an unusually delicious dish. Honey, syrup, mapleine or even vanilla put into the whole wheat porridge as it is taken from the heat, add flavors that are delicious and "different."

Left over cereal may be poured into molds and set aside to chill. When thoroughly "set" it may be turned into a dish, covered with fresh or stewed fruit and served as a cold breakfast cereal or as a simple dessert for children. Sliced, dipped in egg and uncooked cereal and sauted in a small amount of fat, this cold cereal may be made into a delicious breakfast or luncheon dish.

When children resist using their full quart of milk a day, part of the quota may be given to them by cooking their cereal in half milk and half water. Made in this way a whole wheat cereal is one of the most delicious of foods.

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

They keep telling me I should quit taking advantage of Ethel Barrymore. That she hasn't a newspaper with which to fight back. That she is America's greatest actress, after all. After all what? Helen Hayes, Pauline Lord, Jane Cowl, Ruth Gordon and the others? What do they mean she hasn't a paper with which to fight back? She appears to get her opinions jotted down in many of them. She must be exploitation-crazy.

She hasn't a sane reason to tiff with a newspaper man, except me. . . . And the critics have been very patient at times. And the reporters haven't printed rumors about her. So how come she turns "Rock-Woman" and brands the entire profession? That's gonna get her a lot. When an Associated Press interviewer asked her what she thought of her profession, she growled: "I consider it the highest in the world, just as I consider yours the lowest!" Very cute. A little nuts but cute. Her intimates say she likes a good fight. Me too. Fight any woman my weight. And Ethel is so much heavier than I.

So Detective Owen is looking for me. They look for me everywhere except at the office where I usually am after sundown. . . . I'm supposed to know where Crater is, someone told him. I wish I knew. What a beat that would be! I don't believe Crater is dead at all. I believe he will knock himself off, though. Rather than come back and face it—and the fraud. . . . It must be terrible to be found out, especially when you still love your wife. It must be terrible even when you don't.

What a dope I'd be to tell it's up to me. I was only thinking last night that if I ran into him I would make believe I had a rod in my coat pocket and kidnap him. And lock him in my office until the first edition made the street. But that would be asking too much of Dame Luck. Who has been most tolerant and generous.

Clever actor that Arthur Sinclair in "Gilhooley." Came here with the Irish Players a few years ago and now led Harris co-stars him with Helen Hayes. Other actors might watch him and learn. Reminds me of Sime on Variety—same map. A brogue thicker than Paddy's Market, and he's Jewish! An Erin-born middle.

Good old Elsie Robinson. Her stuff is plenty syndicated for which thank heaven. Elsie imagines blessed events. I mean publishing them before they arrive. The expectant mother says Elsie was supposed to act as though nothing was happening in the "old days B. C." (before columnists). "Believe me," columns Elsie all over the world, this sort of play-acting was a considerable strain on a sensible woman, but if she didn't do it she was considered unkind. Now since blessed events got themselves syndicated, she can obey her natural impulses and tell everyone that she is going to have a baby. "And," adds Els, "I'm telling you it's a grand and noble relief. Walt himself doesn't know what a relief. He didn't have to have a baby in the 1905 blush period the way I did."

Glad Elsie is glad. Never could quite figure out why anyone should be opposed to my publishing stork stuff. Marlew Pew, editor of Editor & Publisher, is strenuously opposed to it. People ashamed of having babies shouldn't have them. A guy by the tag of Teddy Roosevelt once gave people hell for not having babies. Called it race suicide. Brisbane strings along with Teddy on that subject. I'll string along with Brisbane.

Which reminds me of that editorial in the Boston Herald a few weeks ago. The one about Archibald Butt, military aide to Presidents Roosevelt and Taft. The Boston fan called Butt's letters "gorgeous gossip" and said that Maj. Butt knew that the world would be interested in the to-dos of the White House, and he wrote his notes "like a polite political Winchell." Which offsets raps like the one by Mr. Harris of San Francisco, who detests gossip, but reads it.

Everything in the N. Y. Times one of our better rags is gossip. . . . According to column F, page 1058 of Funk & Wagnall's Standard Dictsh, "Gossip" is defined in many ways, including "To write in a pleasant, newsy manner." If it is flattering, then it isn't gossip. According to the childish five-and-ten-cent-store word bouquet that Rudy Vallee presented to Mr. Fraser of the Albany papers. . . . Rudy's testimonial is advertised like this: "If more columnists were like yourself, I think my work and my ideas would be better understood."

Seems a pity to make those talented youngsters in the hot-spots chorus it in the nude. Most of them can do sizzling specialties. But jobs are not plentiful. . . . Parade in a brassiere or keep warming casting agency benches. . . . "You ought to play more," Texas said. "you're overdoing it". . . . No can play and enjoy myself. . . . Tried it the other night and what happened? . . . All play and no notes makes dull columns and not much Jack. . . . When you play you drinkee. . . . When you drinkee you get drunkee. . . . When you get drunkee you no can thinkee and when you no can thinkee your stuff gets junkee. Wonder why Hammond told them he didn't think I'd live another year!

Twenty-minutes-to-five already. Well, hel-lo little toothache! . . . Where've you been all these weeks, you unfaithful thing? . . . Go ahead, try and make me cry. . . . Having fun? That's fine. Always have fun, little toothache. Go ahead, jump up and down and have yourself a mess of jolly moments. . . . Ah-ah, now! Not that hard, you dope! You see how nice I am to you? Know why? Because you try to be as cruel as a heartache and you're a flop. When you get a heartache, kiddo, then you get a rough idea what an ache really is.

All I gotta do to even matters, sweetheart, is to take you some place where you will get a stiff shot of novocaine and then when you wake up you will find me gone. Then see if you can find somebody as nice as me. Do you think when people know you are no longer part of me they will give you a tumble? . . . You'll find out. . . . Tell you what I'll do, though. . . . I'll introduce you to some people so you can jump up and down and have fun. . . . I'll have you meet Rudy Vallee. . . . Or Miss Barrymore. . . . On one condition, however. That if you do connect with them, honey, that you only jump up and down when they are trying to go to sleep. . . . Promise!

DAHLIA EXHIBIT ARRANGED

A dahlia exhibit by the Pittsburgh Florists and Gardeners' Club will be held next Tuesday night by the Civic Club of Allegheny County, on the club floor of the William Penn Hotel. This date will mark the thirty-fifth anniversary of the organization of the Civic Club, and has been planned as a reception for members and friends in place of the usual anniversary dinner.

While You Sleep!

When a headachy, bilious, or a gassy condition tells that bowels need help, there's nothing like cascara. Doctors say this marvelous substance actually strengthens bowel muscles. That's why candy Cascarets bring constipation sufferers lasting relief. A Cascaret contains cascara in its most palatable form. No griping, no discomfort or sickening effects when you use Cascarets. Just quick, sure help for sluggish bowels. Both upper and lower bowels are cleansed. Coated tongue is soon cleared; breath sweetened; eyes brightened; the whole system benefits from a candy Cascaret. Try one tonight and see for yourself!

More Stage Fright Seen In Los Angeles Than On Broadway

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.

Stars of the footlights claim to suffer more from stage-fright in Los Angeles than they do in New York.

They can't forget those movie magnates out front who might be impressed into offering them four-figure salaries.

It is a matter of record that many stage people have stepped right out of a Los Angeles theater into the rosy nebulous movies. Kay Johnson for instance was signed after M. G. M. officials saw her in the local production of "The Silver Cord." Basil Rathbone is another example. The studios fell over each other to take him out of the cast of "The Command to Love."

Kay Johnson

There are many others. Dorothy Burgess stepped from "The Squall" into the first out-of-door epic, "In Old Arizona." Ruth Chatterton won a role in "Sins of the Father" because of her performance here in "The Green Hat." Fredric March was promptly signed after "The Royal Family" made its local bow. Both John Cromwell and Edward S. Robinson won movie contracts for their work in "The Racket." Another thriller, "The Front Page," brought offers to Roscoe Karns, Rolfe Harold and James Donlan. John Garrick, then Reginald Dandy got his first offer due to his work in a limping operetta, "The Wishing Well."

The list might be extended almost indefinitely. Dozens of players have found the Los Angeles stage a stepping stone to contracts in the talkies.

WILL TALK NOW

Since this department printed that Marlene Dietrich was to be exploited as a woman of mystery, Paramount has changed its mind. Miss Dietrich now is to be available to interviewers, although it is carefully explained she will never seek them. The studio is emphatic that they are not doing a "Garbo."

IN COMEBACK

After all, Hollywood is a sentimental community. The entire film colony is holding a wish for Marjorie Rambeau, who seems on her way to stage a real comeback in the films.

This writer can testify that she gives a fine, sensitive performance in Pathe's forthcoming "Her Man."

And now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is reported to be giving her an important part in Greta Garbo's new picture, "Inspiration."

AMES IN "DRACULA"

It will be Robert Ames instead of Lewis Ayers as the romantic lead in Universal's production "Dracula."

Robert Ames

The change is laid to two things. Universal doesn't want to associate Ayers with this kind of a picture after "All Quiet," it surely can't be the gruesomeness they object to; and secondly, production is ready to start on "Mississippi" in which Ayers previously had been cast.

Ames will be remembered as Johnny Case in "Holiday."

AMUSEMENTS.

NEW FULTON THEATER TO OPEN TOMORROW

The new Fulton Theater, located in Sixth street, will open tomorrow morning. It is the latest addition to Pittsburgh's list of first-run motion picture houses. The opening bill will feature the talking picture, "Manslaughter," Claudette Colbert and Frederic March have the leading roles.

For several weeks a large force of architects and workmen have been busy transforming the theater into an up-to-date and beautiful cinema palace, and from marquee to stage, the Fulton is a completely renovated house. It is a happy medium between the huge motion picture cathedrals of today and the smaller houses of a few years ago, it is stated. It is being equipped with modern sound screen apparatus also.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

Murders at the Circus

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Beller, ringmaster of the Beller & Swarney Circus, is killed under mysterious circumstances. Emily, an ill-tempered elephant, tramples him to death. Queen Anne, the star aerialist, is attacked in her wagon-home by an unknown person. Dale, called in by Swarney to investigate, learns that Beller's death was probably not accidental, but deliberate murder. Swarney admits bitter arguments with Beller over ownership of the circus. Beebo, the master clown, believes his daughter, Tito, was wronged by Beller, whom he also hated over a grievance of his son. Cap. Wiegle, the animal trainer, and Queen Anne's husband, is in love with Adele, Beller's widow. Queen Anne refuses Dale any information about her midnight assailant. On the night of Beller's death Emily's watchman was found intoxicated and was discharged. During a night performance Queen Anne misses the trapeze and crashes to the ground.

Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER V.

Nothing could be done for Queen Anne. She had broken her neck in the fall. Above her broken body the trapeze swung idly to and fro.

They held the clue, they and the drum which fixed them in place. Dan McLaughlin and Swarney took immediate charge and it was soon learned that, through accident or otherwise, the drum had been turned . . . the trapeze had been raised. The death trap had been set!

There was the usual police examination. They quickly disposed of the case as death due to accident, unavoidable accident it was called.

But Dale and Swarney and McLaughlin knew it was otherwise. Who else knew it? Another accident; another death that could not be proved; another murder with no chance to confront the diabolical murderer!

At midnight Robin Dale sat in No. 2 with Roy Swarney. There began to be factors that Dale could take a grip on. There were a few rather delicate questions for Swarney to answer.

"Just before Queen Anne started her act you were standing near the drum—didn't you see anyone tamper with it?"

"No one went near it, that I saw. You see, I was only there a little while—Adele was finished and going out so I went along with her, wanted to talk to her."

"There wasn't a sign of anything suspicious when you left? . . . no one near the drum?

"Not that I noticed. McLaughlin may be able to tell you, he's usually at that spot, watchin', during the performance."

"You can account for Adele, too?"

"Yes, I was with her until the accident, ran out with her when we heard the shoutin'."

"How did Adele seem while you were talking to her?"

"What do you mean, nervous or anything like that? She seemed all right—we was only discussin' a little personal matter."

Robin Dale went out and sought McLaughlin. The crew boss was in the mess tent getting a late bite. Dale sat down and had a cup of coffee with him.

"Mac, did you see anyone near the trapeze drum tonight? That is, after Swarney went out with Miss Adele."

"Yeah, Cap Wiegle stood there for a while. He usually comes out about that time to watch the show and get his cue—he went on after Queen Anne got through. Cap seemed to be more interested in watching Swarney go off with Adele—but we're used to that an' don't pay any attention to it."

"Used to what—just what?"

"Both of 'em are gone on Adele. Beller was always chasin', so nobody blames her. But I guess Cap's got the edge."

"Oh . . . anyone else come near the drum?"

"Most all of 'em pass near it goin' in an' out. Beebo comes off with his gang o' clowns as the trapeze act goes on—an' the riders about the same time. Who'd a thought to keep an eye right on that drum?"

"There's another thing, Mac—Queen Anne knew something about Beller's death. Do you know any reason why she should have kept quiet about it?"

"Damn if I do. But if Anne shut up she had a good cause for it. She was a deep one."

The affair kept going around in circles. That night and for a number of nights following Robin Dale strove helplessly to uncover an actual, tangible clue to the guilty party. But it eluded him, like a firefly on a summer's night, suddenly showing light for an instant and then as quickly disappearing into the blackness. It was bewildering.

A week passed. The circus pulled up, early on a Friday morning, at Bethel, in Cahcunga County, New York. Bethel was a two-day stand. Robin Dale was familiar with the locality having worked an assignment a year or so earlier at Botsford, the county seat. Botsford was about eight miles from Bethel.

Between the evening and afternoon performance on that Friday, an incident transpired which finally led to the heartless murderer. It took place in Swarney's wagon.

Quite frequently Swarney took his meals in the wagon. On this occasion he had invited Dale to join him and they were, as usual, discussing the inexplicable tragedy which hung over the circus. One of the kitchen help brought the food. Swarney kept two dogs of whom he was extremely fond. They happened to be in the wagon at the time.

When the food was brought up the dogs jumped about their master begging for something to eat. Swarney played with them a little while and finally took some slices of meat from the platter before him and made them bark for it and then jump and grab it. Swarney and Dale laughed over the antics of the animals, when suddenly, as they watched them devour the food a strafling thing happened!

One of the dogs crumpled to the floor of the van, kicked its feet out helplessly, and rolled over dead!

For several moments the two men sat as if paralyzed. The dread thought of poison whirled through Dale's brain. He felt the chill of the breeze coming through the window as it caressed his moist brow. Thank God; he had not taken a mouthful. Suddenly, above the haze of thoughts he heard Swarney's voice. It sounded almost like a roar.

"We've got to get that fiend!"

Swarney rushed out of No. 2. Dale followed. They ran across the grounds to the galley. The helper who had brought the food was quickly found. His story was simple and straightforward. He had two messes to deliver. Adele, who nearly always had dinner in her wagon, had Cap Wiegle with her . . . the man came straight from her to No. 2 wagon. No, he had not left Swarney's food for an instant. There were no other stops on the way. Yes, he was positive no one had touched the food after he left the galley, because it was never out of his hand.

RUSSIAN SETTINGS COPIED FOR GUILD

Books dealing with the stage settings of Russia point out that some of the finest scenes were executed by M. S. Dobuzinsky. It is this artist's settings for "A Month in the Country," coming to the Nixon Monday, that the Theater Guild commissioned Raymond Sovey to produce in replica.

So meticulous is Ethel Barrymore, who appears in "Scarlet Sister Mary" in the Shubert-Alvin next week, that she sent her musical director, Maurice Nitke, and her scene designer, Watson Barratt, to South Carolina last summer to get actual information to carry out their work on the production.

"Elizabeth Sleeps Out," the comedy to be presented by the George Sharp Players next week in the Pitt, was produced originally in New York under the title, "Murray Hill."

Wins Prize

H. M. Addison, managing director of Loew's Penn Theater, has just been advised by the Loew New York office that he is one of the winners in the "Summer Contest" sponsored by the Loew organization throughout its chain of theaters, numbering several hundred.

MILTON SILLS' LAST FILM CURRENT IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Milton Sills lives on in "The Sea Wolf," new film in the Stanley. It is a picturization of the Jack London story. It is melodrama with a punch to it.

The picture is action. It is adventure. It is, in a way, Mr. Sills' best screen achievement. He puts life into the character of Wolf Larsen.

This Wolf Larsen is cruel and unrelenting. The survival of the fittest—that's his creed. He sails the seas and roams the waterfront. He takes what he wants; throws away what he doesn't want. Nothing is sacred to him—least of all, life.

FOOD FOR THE SHARKS

He knocks men down with his fist. He kicks them. He throws them overboard ship to the sharks. What does he care! He's the master. A he-man he is. But a brute man. There isn't much to be admired about Wolf Larsen. But the way Mr. Sills portrayed him—this calls for admiration.

The picture gets gruesome at times. When a shark gets his man. When a cripple goes dragging along, insanely bent on poking human eyes out with a red hot poker.

ROMANTIC ANGLE

Raymond Hackett and Jane Keith are present. They put in the happy romantic angle. But the romance is just one episode in a panorama of brawling melodrama—a melodrama that has a strong, cruel man, who reads Schopenhauer, as the center of it all.

"Garden of Girls" is the new stage show in the Stanley. Ed Lowry, continuing in his master of ceremonies role, is prominent. There are girls who dance and they reach the finale marching down a flight of gilded steps like drum majors on parade. Peggy Bernier, "personality girl," appears for a second week. Other entertainers include Billy Gleason.

Organ and orchestra music by Bernie Armstrong and David Broudy, respectively, is on the bill.

E. North Side Plans Halloween Fete

An old-fashioned Halloween parade has been planned by the Business Men's Association of the East North Side. According to George A. Schumaker, chairman, the plans will include a street parade of masqueraders and decorated floats. The affair is to be followed by a street dance. Prizes will be awarded to the masqueraders and cups will be presented to the float winners.

Carnegie Coach Talks to Builders

The first Fall luncheon of the Pittsburgh Builders' Exchange, held yesterday at the Keystone Athletic Club, was addressed by Robert Waddell, football coach at Carnegie Institute of Technology. He told the builders the same kind of courage that makes success in business counts on the football field. L. H. Lee presided at the meeting.

Arrange Puppet Show for Children

The Jean Gros French Marionettes will hold a special performance for children tomorrow afternoon in Carnegie Lecture Hall. They will present "The Yellow Knight of Oz." The puppet show is being presented through the May Beegle concerts.

STREET SHOWS POOR GENERALSHIP

ABOARD WORLD SERIES BASEBALL SPECIAL EN ROUTE FROM PHILADELPHIA TO ST. LOUIS Oct. 3.—Unless there is a marked and immediate improvement in generalship as well as in playing form on the side of the St. Louis Cards the 1930 World Series will go the way of all the others during the last three years, and the National League will continue to look like a minor organization in comparison with its younger rival. It looks pretty much that way now, in view of the fact that it has won only a single World Series game out of the last 15 played and is threatened with the loss of the title stakes for the fourth year in succession, and the resemblance is bound to become even stronger unless there is hurried wising up on the part of Gabby Street.

Gabby Street

Giving the A's all due credit for their victories in the first two numbers of the present set, the fact remains that better generalship might have enabled the Cards to make the thing more of a real fight up to date. Keeping Jim Bottomley in the cleanup position in the batting order when not hitting a lick has been one glaring mistake, and failing to lift Flint Rhem earlier in the second game was another.

JUDGING FROM THE [illegible] showing he made as a starting flinger against the A's it would have been a fortunate break for the Redbirds if Rhem had again taken [illegible] the hands of his favorite kidnapers in time to keep him out of the game. But even if it is granted that Street was warranted in starting him, no good reason can be offered for the pilot's failure to derrick him before the bout was hopelessly lost.

It was evident from the time Cochrane cracked his second homer of the series over the right field fence in the first inning that Rhem would not be able to get by, and a second reason for lifting Flint early developed in the St. Louis half of the second round, when, after George Watkins had hit for the circuit, singles by Mancuso and Gelbert put Cardinal runners on first and third bases, with one out and only one run needed to tie the score.

THAT LOOKED LIKE the ripe time to remove Rhem from the picture and send up a pinch hitter in his place. An ordinary fly to the outfield would have brought in the tying run and a fourth straight hit might have caused Earnshaw to wobble and start a sizable rally.

Flint Rhem

Rhem did not look sufficiently promising as a hitter to produce even the necessary sacrifice fly, yet Street allowed him to bat with the result that Flint killed the golden opportunity by striking out. Both runners were left stranded on the bases when Douthit popped to Bishop for the third out.

SENDING RHEM BACK to pitch after that only made matters worse, and the game was gone beyond redemption when he was finally yanked in the fourth. In the light of Earnshaw's great pitching and the fact that the National Leaguers made only one run during the afternoon, it may be argued that an earlier pitching change by Street would have availed little. But a pinch-hitter for Rhem in the second might have tied the score or put the Cards ahead, and there would have been at least a fighting chance for victory later behind the splendid relief hurling of Jim Lindsey and Sylvester Johnson, neither of whom allowed a run or a hit. It sounds like second guessing now, but even at the moment when Rhem came to bat in the second the advisability of a shift was apparent to everybody in the park, except Street.*

BUT NATIONAL LEAGUE shortcomings should not be permitted to detract from the credit due the Athletics for their success on this or earlier occasions. They have not yet won the present series, and it is within the bounds of possibility, if not probability, that they may stumble before the finish and perhaps be beaten out, but they have defeated National League champions six times in seven games and it must be admitted that for that period of play at least they had the best ball club.

It is all the more to a team's credit ... it is able to make the most of its breaks and take full advantage of the other side's mistakes. Connie Mack deserved to win both last year and up to date in the present series because he did not make such errors of judgment as can be charged against the National Leaguers. He was lucky to get through with Lefty Grove on Wednesday, but has done everything right, and so far this fall has added another chapter to the long World Series story that shows the senior league being outsmarted as well as outplayed each year.

GEORGE EARNSHAW is the only American League pitcher whom the National League pennant winners have beaten in three World Series and part of another. The lone defeat suffered by the American League in the last 15 title games, the three to one decision that Guy Bush handed the Cubs on October 11 last year in the third game of that series, was charged against the big right-hander of the Mackmen.

George Earnshaw

But a look at his work in the second game of this year's competition was enough to make you wonder how the Heydler loopers ever managed to beat him. He was just about pitching perfection, with oceans of stuff, control, steadiness, courage, judgment and everything else that goes to make up an ideal slab combination.

MACK AND A number of other baseball men, including Pitcher Ervin Brome, of the Pirates, who was a teammate for a time, have declared Earnshaw to be the best right-hander in the country, and the exhibition he gave against the Cards went far toward confirming that rating. Even an injury to his right foot, resulting from contact with George Watkins' spikes in covering first base on a fast play in the sixth inning, did not shake the big pitcher. He finished the game limping, but his heart and his arm were unaffected. Just for a brief space he faltered, when he walked Mancuso, the first batter up in the seventh, but then he pulled himself together. And during the remaining three innings only nine more men faced him. He was stronger at the finish than at the start, and wound up the game by fanning Watkins and Mancuso for the last two outs.

AND EARNSHAW TRIUMPHED over a flock of adverse breaks, too. The Cards admittedly were outlucked in the first game when Grove got through to a victory though having little more than a glove, but they had no room for complaint on that score in the second event.

The Redbirds got plenty of breaks, but were unable to turn them to account, because Earnshaw would not let them. In the third inning, for instance, when fortune appeared to be smiling on the Cards, the A's made two errors and missed two other chances to retire batters on which they were not charged with misplays, but Earnshaw set the breaks at naught by striking out Bottomley and Hafey and retiring the side without a run.

That illustrates the difference between the clubs in the way they followed up the breaks that fell to them. After Frisch had fumbled Cochrane's grounder in the third inning, when a clean play would have ended the chapter and held the A's runless the Mackmen went right after Rhem and kept after him until they had scored two runs. When bobbles by the A's put Earnshaw in a similar Duquesne, Pitt and Carnegie Tech members of this city's gridiron family, all have something other to do today and tonight. Of the three, the Tartans will have the most time to kill, for the Dukes will be playing and the Panthers will be traveling.

Opening the week-end's program, the Dukes meet Detroit Tech, under the lights at Forbes Field, top-heavy favorites to win over an eleven from a school that has not graced the intercollegiate football firmament for very many years.

Boarding a Baltimore and Ohio train at 5 bells, the Pitt squad will start on the first leg of his jaunt to Morgantown, where tomorrow the boys play ball with the West Virginia Mountaineers. Morgantown is so steamed up over this ball game, and interest and excitement at such a high point, that Jock Sutherland has decided to put his Panthers to bed in Uniontown tonight. This scribe, booked to share a room with Mr. Fred Turbyville, who does at Pitt what Max Hannum does at Tech, namely handle the publicity, looks forward to an evening of watching the smoke curl from the cavernous bowl of one of Brother Turbyville's giant pipes, and meanwhile listening to the resonant snores of Dr. Sutherland's sleeping huskies.

Meanwhile Tech will sit back and load up a flock of punches to lose at the chins of Thiel's battling Lutheran warriors, who appear in the Stadium tomorrow. I have an idea that Tech will go out and get this Thiel club making the victory as decisive as possible. A year ago Thiel made the local Scotch look far from good. If Tech can click against the stubborn opposition certain to be offered by Tink Rowley's boys, it will set them just about right, as far as confidence goes, at least for the game next week with Georgia Tech.

Bud Devinney, Christina, Todd and Paulina in the backfield and Dudzak, Abele, Donahue, Kelleher, Amann, DeCarbo and Barrett on the line will start for the Dukes against Detroit tonight. Coach Layden still is far from satisfied with his kickers, none of whom have developed into consistent booters.

Joe McCarthy, the veteran quarterback, has a bum hip and during the past week has not been able to improve his work. Smoke Abele, the wing, has come along in fair fashion and may get a chance to show what he can do tonight.

Believe It Or Not By RIPLEY

(On request, sent with stamped addressed envelope, Robert L. Ripley will send proofs and details of anything depicted by him in these cartoons.)

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: HARALD BRAGG WAS IN SOLITARY CONFINEMENT FOR 33 YEARS—Harald Bragg, a U. S. Lieutenant of Artillery stationed at Fort Sumter, was convicted of a treasonable act in 1859. The sentence of the court-martial was modified in 1861 by President Lincoln, who directed that the punishment should consist of Bragg's complete ignorance of his country's fate. Accordingly Bragg was placed aboard the U. S. ship "Meduse," outside of the territorial waters of the United States, and although he was transferred twice (to the "Carline" and "Neptune") President Lincoln's sentence was followed to the letter. At the time of his death in 1894, Bragg never knew the outcome of the Civil War.

H. GLENISTER CRAWLED FROM OPORTO TO PARIS—H. Glenister crawled on his knees from Oporto, Portugal, to Paris, France, in 1900, a distance of 1,400 miles. His goal was the Great Exhibition of 1900, and Glenister was one of a great many visitors who chose a highly bizarre way of reaching the French capital in that year. THE GRAMMATICAL ERROR IN THE U. S. CONSTITUTION—The first sentence of the preamble says: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union..." The term "more perfect" is not grammatically correct, as anything can only be perfect or not perfect. The term "more nearly perfect" should have been used.

TOMORROW—THE CHAMPION GOAL KICKER.

REDWINGS COP LITTLE SERIES

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The Rochester Red Wings won the Little World Series yesterday by defeating the Louisville Colonels, 8 to 1, in the deciding game. The victory made it five games for the International League champions to three for the American Association pennant winners.

It was the first time in three attempts that the Red Wings had taken the series from American Association teams.

In the deciding game of the series, which was for five out of nine games, the Wings batted in a commanding lead early and then fought off a Louisville rally in the ninth.

In that inning, Lane, pinch-hitting for Hartley, singled a hot one to center field. Penner was out when Florence caught his foul. Olivares singled, and Lane advanced to second. Herman went out, Grant to Collins. Simons was out, Toporcer to Collins, and Rochester won the game and the series. The score:

RESULTS OF GAMES

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Sheriff Fred Blake had one of his best days yesterday and, with the aid of an elaborate bit of punch hitting by Kiki Cuyler, hurled the Cubs to a 4-to-2 triumph over the White Sox, and an even break in the Chicago championship series.

During the gray, misty afternoon the White Sox batsmen collected five hits off the Sheriff, and two of them came in the ninth when he thought he could ease off a little with his 4 to 1 lead. He squared himself for relaxing by striking out Pinch Batsman Campbell with men on first and third, for the final out, and letting about 25,000 spectators start for home. The score:

SERIES RIVALS ARRIVE IN ST. LOUIS

the outstanding southpaws in the major leagues, with Wild Bill Hallahan the Cardinal choice and Lefty Grove the Athletic selection.

Manager Street today encouraged Cardinal fans by announcing that his star catcher, Jimmy Wilson, will be behind the plate for the rest of the World Series, starting with tomorrow's game.

Wilson, ranked as one of the best backstops of the National League, has been out of the game for several weeks because of an injured leg.

Perhaps the home influences will have just the right effect on the downhearted Redbirds when they carry their scarred banner into action. Home crowds and support should be the proper tonic, yet it cannot be said that Clan McGillicuddy is entirely out of step with conditions at Sportman's Park.

The Athletics and other American League clubs have staged their St. Louis fights at this same Sportsman's Park because the ball orchard, after all, is the home of the American League in the Missouri metropolis. Almost 15 years ago the National League gave up the ghost on a ball park that was a credit to any league.

FAMILIAR WITH PARK

They then effected an agreement with the American League owners of the city to play the games in the smaller and generally poorer field, and this has been going on through all the years. So if there is any advantage in familiar surroundings the A's will not be so badly outclassed.

The Cardinals, nevertheless, will have almost the solid support of the big throngs that are sure to be in attendance. The National League is a heavy favorite here and its boosters will have a preponderance of numbers at the battle scene.

The senior circuit standard-bearers realize the seriousness of the situation and they are governing themselves accordingly. Every man in the Redbird lineup will tackle the world champions with grim determination. Win or lose they will show a fighting front. The Cards realize they were outclassed yesterday, but they and their supporters insist that they were jarred by the uncontrolled breaks of the sport in the opener.

HAMMERING OFFENSIVE

The second battle of the championship set was very much American League. Mickey Cochrane, Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx, Mack's famed triumvirate, supplied a hammering offensive and George Earnshaw pitched with the finesse of a Matty or an Aleck, the Great. If you can beat a merger of this kind, you would have to call in the Sherman anti-trust law. The score was 6 to 1.

The Cardinals had little to offer in the way of punch and their starting pitcher was just out there. Flint Rhem was in the woods from the moment he stepped on the slab until Jimmy Dykes' double chased him to the showers. The lad who replaced him—Jim Lindsey—gave the defeated cause much honor. Big Jim worked two and two-third rounds in such a dazzling manner that nary a Mack hitter was able to reach first base.

Sylvester Johnson, who took up the task after George Fisher had batted for Lindsey in the seventh, also was a hitless pitcher. But all of this good twirling had little bearing on the ultimate result, for Earnshaw had the St. Louis Birds eating out of his hand. The Mackian sharpshooters fanned eight batters.

Cochrane put the Athletics out in front in the first round when he drove the ball over the right-field fence for his second homer of the series. The home guards

CARDS ARE DOWN, BUT NOT OUT—STREET

GABBY EXPECTS HIS TEAM TO RALLY

By GABBY STREET,
Manager St. Louis Cardinals.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—We are two down to the Athletics in the series for the world championship, but we are not out of it by a long shot. The next three games at St. Louis will tell a different story. The defeat in the second game can be told in a few words. The Athletics had fine pitching and timely hitting. We had neither, although our relief twirling was high-class.

Mack's men got the jump on us at the start and after that George Earnshaw kept getting better, our only run coming as a result of George Watkin's home run in the second. That put us back in the game for a time, but an unfortunate break for Frank Frisch, who is playing a fine game in the series, gave the American League champions another opening and they made the best of it.

HIT FOR DISTANCE

As was the case in the opener, the Athletics hit for distance, inasmuch as four of their seven swats were for extra bases. I think the Mackmen established a world record for the title competition in that the first six hits they made off my pitchers were good for extra bases. Three of these extra base raps drove in five of the runs for the American Leaguers.

On the other hand, we were able to get only two extra base hits, Watkins' homer and a double by Frisch, which was wasted in the first.

Rhem did not have his usual stuff, but Jim Lindsey and Syl Johnson gave fine exhibition of relief hurling, and it made it certain that I will have at least two men for relief duty who can go in and stop the men of Mack if I need relief hurling in the remaining contests.

Earnshaw grew better as the game went along. He showed us more than did Lefty Grove. He had fine speed and a good hook ball. After the second inning, when we made three hits, we were able to get only two safeties, singles by Lindsey and Adams. A majority of our swats were pop flies. That Earnshaw had something is evidenced by the fact that he had eight strike outs.

COCHRANE HITS HOMER

A bad break started Rhem off on the wrong foot in the first. He pitched a curve ball way inside, which Cochrane caught near the handle and sent over the right field wall for a home run.

Some of our big sluggers, chiefly Bottomley and Hafey, have not been hitting as they should, but I expect them to get started when we open the series in St. Louis, Saturday. Bill Hallahan will be my pitcher and I am sure that no matter who works for the Athletics we will win, even though it is Grove as has been reported.

We have lost twice, that's true, but we still are very much in the fight. We have been coming from behind all season and we will do it again in this world series. I have too good a ball club and it will prove it in the remaining games. But we will have to fight as the Athletics have shown themselves to be a fine club. But I think my team is a better one.

BELMONT STOPS POPCIG IN FOURTH

Jimmy Belmont, Braddock slugger, scored a knockout victory over Johnny Popcig, of Wheeling, W. Va., last night in the fourth round of the main bout of the double windup show at the Palisades, McKeesport. A hard right to the jaw that sent Popcig flying across the ring against the ropes and then down to the canvas brought the uneven go to a welcome end.

Until the third round, Belmont's punches seemed to carry little steam. Late in that session he dropped Popcig with a hard left hook to the face. The end came one minute and 40 seconds after the fourth round got under way. Belmont weighed 150½ against 150¾ for Popcig.

The real fireworks were produced in the 10-round semi-final in which Young Rudy, of Charleroi, bested Paul Oger, Akron veteran. Rudy floored Oger with a hard right uppercut to the stomach in the second round for the count of nine, but Paul came back strong after this and landed terrific punches on the Charleroi boy's head. Both weighed 145½.

It took Lloyd Clements, of Swissvale, fighting his second professional bout, exactly one minute and 45 seconds to hand the kayo wallop on the jaw of Mike Kelly, of Pittsburgh, in the second bout. Clements scaled 165 and Kelly came in at 163¼.

Eddie Guba, of Clairton, substituting for Sharkey Lesko, in the curtain-raiser, had the best of Leonard Payne, local Negro lad, in a tame bout. Payne weighed 138, while Guba tipped the beams at 132¼.

A's Bend Cards Back Like Magician—Altrock

By NICK ALTROCK,
Famous Baseball Humorist.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Well, the A's bent the Cards back like Thurston, the magician, yesterday afternoon and today the Spirit of St. Louis is just the name of an aeroplane. Uncle Nick will accompany the teams to Missouri, but he is only going as an honorary pall bearer. I figure it will be about next Monday afternoon when the Cardinals get the lilies in their hand.

Nick Altrock

The A's don't get many hits off Gabby Street's mound workers, but they sure cash them in for runs with the paying teller. You put those A's on a miniature golf course, and they would be getting holes in one-half. Flint Rhem started to make the White Elephants roll over, but they turned on Flint like he had fed them tobacco juice instead of peanuts 20 years ago. In the very first inning, Cochrane flipped a home run over the picket fence.

Those Philadelphia dump homers over the right field wall just like Bobby Jones tom-thumbing a putt.

In the fourth, the A's battered Rhem off the slab, but Flint was going to take a bath last night anyway. Connie's boys scored no more runs after that, but the oysters were already in the stew.

BUNTER WILL BE HERO

The only National League run came on Watkins' chip shot over the right field ramparts. That makes four homers in two games played so far, and it begins to look like the hero of this series will be the guy that can lay down a bunt.

I kind of thought Connie Mack might use strategy. Last year, at Shibe Park, the Cubs were worried because every few minutes the center field amplifiers were announcing someone's death. I figured Connie might cross up the experts this year by announcing births. But the only thing that came out of the amplifiers were 75 cent phonograph records. I guess the A's have to win the world championship three times running before they hire a band.

It is a little early to pick out the heroes and the bums, but Mickey Cochrane has already been elected the African Dodger of this series. Wednesday Burleigh Grimes plugged a bean ball at Mickey when he wasn't wearing his mask and yesterday Flint Rhem aimed a fast one at Mickey's skull. The way those Cardinal flingers are dusting Cochrane off you would think they were demonstrating vacuum cleaners.

ONE BIG MISTAKE

It naturally made Mickey sore to have the Card pitchers mistake him for a clay pigeon, so every time he gets sore, he lams out a home run. If those Cards would only apologize to Mickey, they might coax him into bunting three-baggers.

Before the series opened, all the

A'S 'IN,' RUTH SAYS; LAUDS EARNSHAW

By BABE RUTH,
Baseball's Highest Salaried Player.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—I am afraid the series is not going to be as much of a battle as I had looked for. The A's are out in front now and it would take four of the next five games for the Cardinals to upset them. If Street's team is that good there has been nothing in these first two games to indicate it.

Babe Ruth

Earnshaw's pitching today was a very good sample of what George can do when he is right. The big right-hander has a much better curve than Grove and if there is any difference in their speed you can't notice it up at the plate. A fast ball pitched by either of Mack's aces is bad news for any hitter.

When I saw George go through those first three innings today without walking anybody I figured that school was out for the Cardinals. Their hopes from then on were wasted as far as this game was concerned. I though for a time in the seventh that Earnshaw might be going into a wild spell when he walked Marcuso, the first hitter, but he steadied fast and was as strong at the finish as at the start. His two strikeouts to end the game were typical. He is a horse for work when he has control.

A'S MAKE HITS COUNT

Every hit made by the A's in their two games has figured in the run-making. This is unusual and there is no denying that a team is fortunate to get the most out of fairly light hitting. But the A's have been doing it so long in our league that it has become a habit. They have made 12 hits in two games and these were good for 11 runs.

The difference between the two ball clubs in the first two games is that the Philadelphia pitchers have been able to smother the heavy guns of the Cardinals, and the St. Louis boxmen have not been effective against the slugging section of the A's. Bottomley hasn't reached first base except when his team was in the field. Frisch is the only hitter in the top section of the Cardinals who has caused any trouble for the A's pitchers.

HIGH-POWER CLOUTING

Look what those Mackmen have done to the National League pitchers in high-power hitting. Cochrane has hit two home runs in six chances. Simmons has clouted a homer, a double and a single in seven chances, and Foxx has poled a triple and a double in

KID ANSLEM OFF MOOSE CARD

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

An infected jaw has knocked Frankie (Kid) Anslem, New York Negro, out of his scheduled 10-round windup bout with Marty Gold, of Philadelphia, at the Moose Temple tonight. Eddie Covington, another Negro, of Atlantic City, will take his place.

Jimmy Kelly

Anslem, who recently gave Willie Davies a hot fight in the Meyers Bowl, brought Covington with him when he arrived in town yesterday, with the idea of having Eddie sub for him if it was found he was unable to go on. An examination revealed the wisdom of the switch.

Covington himself boasts quite a record. He has boxed Midget Wolgast, the present flyweight champion; Izzy Schwartz, Harry Blitman, Ty Coleman and Emil Paluso, among others.

Another newcomer is in the semi-final tonight, Jimmy Kelly, of Dayton, O., who meets Billy Holt, of Homewood. Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, boxes Eddie Polo, North Side southpaw, in the second bout, and Tom Anderson, of the North Side, and Peaches Gallagher, of Swissvale, meet in the opener.

Gold weighed 113¾ pounds and Covington 112¼ at 3 p. m. today. Holt scaled 143¼ and Kelly 142¾, while Hebner tipped the beam at 136 and Polo at 139¼, and Anderson scaled 125 and Gallagher 132½.

Between Rounds

Canada Lee and Freddie Fitzgerald box the main bout at Erie tonight. Tom Harris matches Piccardo Bertagnole and Steve Kertchel meets Alf Poe in Boston. Tonight Marty Jones Pat Haley in Philadelphia, Joey Lavery tangles with Irish Tommy Jordan and Harry Sankey engages Joe Ryder in New York and Madison Square Garden. New York opens its season with Pedro Sarmo, the Argentine lightweight, getting Ray Miller in the main bout and Pete Sampo against Joe Scalfaro and Archie Bell against Johnny Pena in other 10-rounders.

In other bouts tonight, Chief Mike Payan, the Indian welterweight, boxes Bobby La Salle at Hollywood, Cal., and Big Boy Rawson meets Dan Martin at Dover, N. H., while Johnny Judith boxes King Tut at Milwaukee and Johnny Datto battles Steve Smith at Buffalo.

Motor Square Garden is seeking an opponent for Benny Ross, the junior lightweight champion, for its second show next week from Monday, and tickets will feature Buck McTiernan in its following show.

Joe Glick, of Brooklyn, who boxes Tony Herrera in the 10-round main bout at Motor Square Garden's reopening show next Monday night, is 27 years old and has been fighting for one-third of that time. He has met Jimmy McLarnin twice, Louis (Kid) Kaplan, Lou Vicola, Mushy Callahan, Leon Venarin, Manuel Quintero, Frankie Nielson, Eddie Murdock, Homer Ray Finnegan, Dapper Kramer, Johnny Dundee, Eddie Anderson, Ray Miller, Freddie Mueller, Andre Routis, Mike Dundee, Robbie Garcia, Jack Reinstein, Doc Snell, Johnny Judith, Joey Silvers, Frankie LaFay, Harry Felix, Eddie and Jackie Brady, Mike Ballerino, Rube Stein, Carl Duane, Ted Morgan, Peter Mark, Benny Ross, Benny Gould, Johnny Farr, Stanislaus Loayza, Baby Joe Gans and a host of others. He will be here Sunday for a final workout before the bout. He has been knocked out only three times, by Honey Boy Finnegan, Bobby Garcia and Jimmy McLarnin.

ATHLETICS OUTCLASS CARDINALS—MACK

EARNSHAW HURLS AT BEST

By CONNIE MACK

Manager World Champion Athletics

PHILADELPHIA Oct 3 We have seen Grimes and Rhem the Cardinals two best pitchers and beaten them both As pitching represents 70 per cent of a team's strength we may be pardoned if we think we have outclassed the Cardinals so far

Yesterday with George Earnshaw traveling at his best we scored another brilliant victory over the National leaguers and now have them in a hole for they must win four games to take the world title while two more victories will put us across

Still we are taking nothing for granted The series moves to St Louis and no doubt the Cardinals morale will improve when they play before their own followers

If they improve in their hitting in St Louis they can still make it troublesome and while we had huge success against Grimes and Rhem we may not be so fortunate against Hallahan and Haines

A'S OPTIMISTIC

A lot of things can still happen in a series and while our optimism is unbounded we are not yet out of the woods and won't be until we win two more games

The ball is now up to Hallahan and Haines to see if they have the necessary air-tight pitching to prolong the series

Grove and Earnshaw have already demonstrated that they possess the skill back-bone and poise to prosper in the big baseball classic for they have both come out victorious without in fact materially pressing himself to any great extent

In fact I think that both of my aces will pitch as good if better ball in their next starts against the Cardinals as they have done

Yesterday's game was different than the first contest because both teams have settled down after the distraction of the opening day features They are now used to the cry of the mob and all the side bluster of a World Series

COME THROUGH IN PINCHES

You will notice that my players have not made a great number of hits in either game but you will notice that they seldom fail to come through in the pinch and they still have the driving offensive ardor to start rallies with two men out

They scored four of their six runs after the first two hitters had been retired You have to have plenty of spine to do such things

By this time Cardinal pitchers must have much respect for the way our hitters respond in a pinch

Cochrane Simmons Foxx Dykes and Miller are hitting in this series just as they have done all season which means that they come through with men on bases They won the pennant for us that way and are now rapidly winning the World Series in a similar manner

The fielding did not seem so brilliant because of foul balls getting away from infielders but that can be traced to the strong wind which bothered fielders every time the ball was hit in the air The high sky also bothered fielders

LAUDS FIELDING

Outside of the pitching of Earnshaw and our timely hitting you cannot overlook the splendid fielding of the two third sackers —Dykes and Adams Both made spectacular plays

The batting of the Cardinals was not impressive Frankie Frisch being the only player who has troubled us for he hit the ball with vigor all afternoon

Watkins must get credit for hitting his home run but you will notice he did not hit in other innings and was just like the rest Douthit and Bottomley have failed to break into the hit column in two games

Our pitchers feel that they have something on the St Louis hitters and it would surprise them indeed if the series became close although there is a chance for improvement on the part of Street a men in St Louis

Our boys boarded a train for the Missouri metropolis superbly confident that they will bring home the championship

WATKINS GETS HOMER

George Watkins youthful right-hander of the Macks hit a homer over the wall in the second his wallops indicating that the visitors might solve Earnshaw but the Athletic star settled down and allowed only two singles through the remaining rounds

The A's scored twice in the third after two were out Frisch's fumble putting Cochrane on base Watkins played Simmons' drive poorly and it went for a double Cochrane scoring Foxx was passed purposely but Miller singled to left to score Simmons

The home team put on the finishing touches in the fourth Bayley made a lucky hit when Gelbert failed to throw him out on a hard grounder that flickered off the shortstop's grasp into the outfield Earnshaw fanned but Bishop walked and Dykes came through with a double to score both of his mates

BIG SCHOLASTIC GRID CARD SLATED TODAY

CITY LEAGUE GAMES HEAD MENU

The week-end's interscholastic football program will get under way this afternoon with a trio of City League engagements heading the bill, well supported by W. P. I. A. L. and non-league contests throughout the tri-state district.

Tomorrow a heavy card of battles provide what promises to be rip-snorting football throughout the entire section.

In Section I, City League tussles this afternoon. Westinghouse takes on Fifth Avenue at Malone Field and South meets Peabody in the Westinghouse Stadium. In the lone City League contest played to date, Schenley defeated Dormont. Westinghouse and Peabody hope to gain even standing with the defending champions, Schenley, by turning in triumphs today.

Over in Section II, Carrick and Oliver tie up on the North Siders' gridiron, with Oliver a slight favorite to finish on the long end of the score.

Other City League elevens either play in non-league frays today or wind up preparation for battles tomorrow. Allderdice and South Hills meet in an intersectional battle, the result of which will have no bearing on the sectional ratings. Perry moves on Jimmy Robertson's Shady Side Academy gridders.

Tomorrow Allegheny makes an invasion of Ohio, taking on Steubenville High's Big Red machine in Steubenville. Schenley leaves the city for a battle with Norwin at Norwin.

Beaver Falls meets Monaca at Monaca, Freedom takes on Rochester at Rochester and New Brighton plays at Midland in other Valley games.

NON-LEAGUE TILTS

Topping the out-of-town card for today is the meeting between Harding High, of Aliquippa and New Castle, under the lights at New Castle this evening. Nate Lippe's team held Charleroi to a 6-6 deadlock in a nocturnal encounter last week, while New Castle started off by trouncing Grove City.

Catholic High, of Pittsburgh, furnished the opposition at Charleroi this evening and in a third night game, Scott High, of North Braddock, meets East Pittsburgh.

OTHER GAMES

Other games today include the Canonsburg-Monessen battle at Monessen, Millvale at Springdale, Nant-y-Glo at Kittanning, Etna at Ben Avon, Monongahela at Washington, Mt. Lebanon at Bridgeville, Bellevue at Dormont, Fairview at Waynesburg, Stowe at Crafton, Homestead at Clairton, South Union at Point Marion, Bentleyville at Elizabeth and Arnold at Edgeworth.

Tomorrow, Moe Rubenstein's crack Ambridge High team, which has downed Monaca and Rochester in fine victories to date, faces an old rival in Beaver High. Rubenstein has built a snappy machine in the Bridge town this year, and appears to be headed for the Beaver Valley title.

Verona makes its annual stand against Parnassus at Parnassus in another feature encounter. Butler appears at Ellwood City and Uniontown plays McKeesport at McKeesport.

MY 50 YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK, MANAGER OF WORLD CHAMPION PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

INSTALLMENT NO. 23.

As the season of 1902 wore on, I began to see that the weak point of my team was the pitching staff. My team looked good in the field, but I did not have enough dependable pitchers to hold the opposing hitters.

Connie Mack.

Along in June, while the Athletics were playing a series in Detroit, Jack Sheridan, the veteran umpire, came to me with a suggestion.

He knew that I was hard pressed for pitchers., so he walked up to me and exclaimed:

"How is it you have forgot all about Rube Waddell? Don't you know he is pitching for an outlaw league in Los Angeles? Go grab him."

In the exciting days following the unfavorable court decision, the memory of Waddell had entirely escaped my mind. I needed no further urging, for I was well aware what a valuable man the Rube would be for me.

I thanked Sheridan for the suggestion and that night wired an offer to the Rube. The next morning there was a laconic reply from the lefthander. It read:

"Send me $100 and transportation."

This was done immediately and I ordered the Rube to join us in Chicago. I was complimenting myself on the fact that I was finding it far easier getting Waddell out of Los Angeles than I had experienced getting him out of Punxsutawney two seasons earlier.

GOES AFTER WADDELL

I fully expected to see Waddell in the lobby of our hotel on arrival in Chicago but there was no Waddell. One couldn't get him that easily.

Instead of the Rube, a young man stepped up to me and told me that Waddell had asked him to explain why he had not joined me. This man happened to be on the train bound for Chicago.

He told me that Waddell had duly boarded the train, but just a short time before it pulled out a delegation of Los Angeles baseball men, learning that he was going to desert the club, rushed into the coach and soon had the lefthander believing he was an ingrate in leaving the club so precipitately.

He said Waddell had actually cried and declared that he wouldn't leave them, and would return to the Los Angeles club. So the Rube got off the train with the ticket to Chicago and $100 of our money in his pocket.

I immediately called on President Johnson, whose headquarters always were in Chicago, and told him the story. Ban put on his hat and took me around to the Pinkerton agency in Chicago, where the story was told over again.

LANDED BY PINKERTONS

The Pinkertons immediately agreed to attempt to get the Rube out of California. Knowing Waddell as I did, I was able to give the detectives some good information on how the Rube should be handled.

The Los Angeles club was playing in San Francisco, and the Chicago agency of the Pinkerton organization sent a long wire to the San Francisco agency.

The upshot was that Pinkerton men smuggled Waddell out of San Francisco in the dead of night and got him aboard a train for the East. The detective agreed to accompany the Rube as far as Kansas City.

As our team then was in St. Louis, I took a night train for Kansas City to meet the Rube and accompany him the remainder of the trip.

I found Waddell on the train fraternizing with Young Corbett, the fighter; Frank Newhouse, his trainer, and others in his retinue. Corbett earlier that year had knocked out Terry McGovern at Hartford, Conn., and was regarded by many as the new featherweight champion of the world.

RUBE IN FOLD AGAIN

Corbett's destination was Kansas City and I had my troubles getting Waddell to part with him. At that time there were two clubs in Kansas City and Waddell insisted on pitching for one of them in order to convince Corbett he could do it. I had to use strategy to break up this plan. The Rube and I actually went to the ball park that afternoon. Corbett and Newhouse were there and the Rube insisted on pitching. The club owners were willing, but I finally persuaded the Rube to change his mind.

That night I finally got him on the train bound for Baltimore, which was the next stop of the Athletics after the St. Louis series. Waddell pitched on the day he arrived in Baltimore. Powers caught him and the Rube lost, undoubtedly because he was trainitred, for he had traveled to the Atlantic seaboard all the way from San Francisco.

I let him rest and did not use him again until we arrived in Philadelphia. Baltimore again was our opponent when the sidewinder made his first Philadelphia appearance with the Athletics.

This game found Waddell at his best and he shut out the Baltimore club, 2 to 0, allowing only two hits. In the ninth inning with two out and Pitcher Jack Cronin, who was a good hitter, at bat, the Rube posed in the box with both hands raised and motioned to the spectators to go home.

The crowd was in an uproar as Waddell fanned Cronin on three pitches and ended the game. This bit of clowning caused fans to rush out on the field and they carried the pitcher to the bench.

That made Rube an immediate idol and drawing card. The Rube was never to lose his popularity as long as he stayed with us.

Not only was he a big favorite in Philadelphia, but throughout the circuit he was acclaimed by the fans. Waddell could clown and cause waves of laughter during a ball game, and, when he backed this up with amazing pitching skill, his name became one of magic in the American League.

Whenever we announced Waddell was going to pitch, it always meant a big increase over normal attendance.

Boxer Collapses, Dies During Iowa Bout

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A preliminary boxer, known by the ring name of Battling Nelson, collapsed and died during a bout with Kid Leonard, Moline, Ill., welterweight here last night.

Leonard was exonerated of blame by Coroner R. A. Vorpahl, who held death was due to over exertion. Nelson, who was 25 years old, was a resident of Waterloo, Ia.

Sammy Mandell, former lightweight titleholder, won an easy 10-round victory over Spug Meyers, of Pocatello, Ida., in the main event.

FREDERICKSON VISITS HERE

By CARL W. SHATTO

Frank Frederickson, manager of the Pittsburgh Hockey Club last season, arrived here from Winnipeg this morning to confer with Attorney Frank Callahan, president of the Pirates, regarding the local ice team's plans for the 1930-31 campaign.

Frederickson and Callahan are to leave tonight for Chicago, where a meeting of the National League is carded for tomorrow.

The Pirates' program probably will be arranged at this meeting. It has not yet been decided whether the Bucs' home games will be played here or in Philadelphia, or whether they will be transferred to Chicago and play as a second Chicago entry in the National circuit.

P. R. R. Baseball Crown at Stake

The third and deciding game for the baseball championship of the Pennsylvania Railroad System will be played at Altoona tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock between the Fort Wayne, Ind., team and the Long Island Railroad club.

Each team has one victory to its credit. Long Island won the opening contest of the series on Fort Wayne's home diamond and the Indiana team turned the tables by winning the second tilt, played last Saturday at Hollis, L. I.

CAROLA TURF VICTOR

NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Mrs. Corlette Glorney's Carola, at odds of 10 to 1, won the Rous Memorial stakes, valued at $60 sterling (about $1,500) with extras, today by half a length from Lord Woolavington's Balance. Mrs. Beers' Twilight and eight others. The distance was 5 furlongs.

A'S 'IN', RUTH DECLARES

six attempts. Bishop is proving the same old problem with that eagle eye and two of his three walks were quickly cashed in at the plate. Douthit, on the other hand, has reached first base once, and then by forcing another runner.

On cold figures, the Cardinals are outhitting the A's, but the Mackmen are hitting so hard and so timely that they have won both games by comfortable margins. Naturally, I hope the A's win, but I would like to see the series develop into a real struggle.

As I said before, I figure the A's will win early. Mack is in a position to use Walberg, Quinn, Mahaffey or Shores in the next game, and any one stands a good chance of winning. Then he will have Grove ready for the fourth game, and I think you will see better pitching from Lefty on his next time out. He won the first game, but he wasn't at his best. He will be o. k. for work again Sunday and Earnshaw will be ready Monday. In the meantime, either is available for relief work. I didn't get much of a kick out of today's game. Dykes and Adams made great plays, but for the most part it was just a ball game with never any real doubt about the outcome. The early splurge put the Cardinals under a heavy handicap and Earnshaw's great pitching held them that way.

BARTLEY & SONS, BOOT MAKERS, 495, OXFORD STREET, LONDON, W.

Regal Shoe Co., Whitman, Mass., U.S.A.

Dear Sirs:

We beg to confirm receipt of your esteemed order, placed today in London for 42 pairs of our Genuine Wax Calf Oxford Shoes, at £4 15s. per pair.

Due to the expense of preparing this leather, its use has been largely confined to the exclusive Bespoke makers of the West End of London.

To preserve properly the characteristic brilliant finish of French Wax Calf, these shoes should be boned occasionally, and, of course, dressed with real Blacking Polish.

With Compliments,

We are, dear Sirs,

Yours faithfully,

Bartley says: "Genuine Wax Calf Shoes should be 'boned' occasionally and dressed with real black polish."

So we reproduced Bartley's own formula for English Blacking and we imported all the Scotch Stag Bones that we could find in London.

THREE CONFERENCE GRID BATTLES SUNDAY

DUMMER LOST TO WEST VIEW ELEVEN

By TOM BIRKS

Three games are carded in the independent gridiron conference for Sunday. Burns A. A. will clash with the McKeesport Olympics at Rainbow Gardens. West View meets the Ambridge Mystics on the latter's grounds, and East Pittsburgh hooks up with the Majestic Radios at Sullivan Field. All of the games scheduled will start no later than 2:30 p. m.

Each contest finds the visiting club playing in new surroundings. The Fazzio machine has never played before at the Fair Oaks enclosure, and Manager Pat Comore is looking for a wonderful crowd. At Rainbow Gardens, with Uansa and Parkinson slated to do their stuff, another fine crowd is expected. College stars galore will decorate both lineups in this game.

KLINZINGS TO PLAY

Boots and Moon Klinzing will be wearing the Black and White of Iverson's team for the first time, and Bill Lohr, of last season's Pitt team, also will be in a Tube City uniform.

When Art Rooney takes his club to Sullivan Field, the popular North Side boy will be taking his players into new territory. The Majestics always have been a typical North Side aggregation.

Whitey Dummer, West View's star lineman, may be among the missing at Ambridge Sunday. Dummer pulled a ligament in the last play of the game against the Olympics.

Manager Muzzio also expects to have to battle Ambridge without the services of Stan Berkman, the Parkers' quarterback. Berkman was injured in the opening game at West View and Schacker will be calling signals.

The loud speaker, with the popular Jack Harrison at the mike, proved to be an innovation at Parnassus High School Field. The writer, Jimmy Smith, home manager, Paul Muzzio and others were called to say "Hello" to the large crowd. Seeing that Jack Harrison is quite an expert official, he made it possible to follow the game from the stands.

UANSA POPULAR

Everyone in sandlot circles seemed to be at the Burns game. Fred Iverson and Bull Boyer were scouting the Burns team and the Tube officials have more than a smattering of the plays called by Toby Uansa.

Uansa is popular with sandlot crowds. Every time the former Pitt star was in position to carry the pigskin, the crowd seemed to get a thrill.

Jimmy Smith is to be commended upon his arrangements for the opening game. The field was in perfect condition and the seating and lighting arrangements were all that could be desired.

NICK ALTROCK ON SERIES

experts were afraid Frankie Frisch would have a reserved seat in an invalid's chair on account of his lumbago. I have watched Frankie fielding and batting the first two games, and, if it is lumbago that makes him play that way, then Gabby Street had better inoculate the rest of his squad with sciatic rheumatism germs.

Frisch has always been a great money player in a World Series and it looks to me like instead of lumbago, he was only troubled with hives itching his palms.

Your Uncle Nick left Philadelphia last night for St. Louis, and I figure I would be a sucker to buy a round-trip ticket, even if I got a reduced rate.

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—The West Virginia Wesleyan football squad left last night for New York, where New York University will be encountered tomorrow.

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

COACH GETS ACE

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Oct. 3.—(AP.)—George R. Holstrom, Muhlenberg grid coach, joined the Hole-in-One Club at the Brookside Country Club yesterday.

Sport Vignettes

Cardinal fans' only regret is that Flint Rhem wasn't kidnaped before yesterday's game. St. Louis is a tough town when the home boys are losing, and Gabby and his crew may look for chillier weather there than they encountered in Philly. Maybe if the National League would draft the Homestead Grays to send against the American League champs in the World Series it would help.

They call the indoor golf course at Motor Square Garden a country club, and it's a pretty layout, evoking a lot of favorable comment.

There is something that is a reminder of Jack Sharkey and Jim Corbett about Burleigh Grimes, former Pirate pitcher, who talked so glibly before the World Series opened about what he would do to those Athletics. . . . . It probably wasn't all braggadocio. . . . . Instead, he likely was just working a little psychology on the boys, and he might have got away with it if all of those five hits he allowed the world champions had not been extra-base clouts. . . . . Burleigh never has been accused of being a fool in a pitching sense, and he probably reasoned that it wouldn't be a bad idea to let the enemy know he didn't fear them. . . . . Jim Corbett similarly taunted John L. Sullivan before he toppled the enraged Nobles: Roman of Them All at New Orleans, and Sharkey likewise has swaggered his way to almost a million dollars without winning a title in the heavyweight ranks. . . . . Of course, when the boasts are not made good the man behind them appears foolish, but then, when the stake is high, the gamble is worth while. . . . And don't forget that the Duke of Burleigh will have at least one more chance to make good his proud, invective-filled boasts in this series.

Grimes has the courage of a lion. . . . . With the bludgeoning hats of the Athletics forcing his words down his throat on Wednesday and the raucous razzing of the Philadelphia fans dinning in his ears, he bore down as only he can to the finish and, to boot, collected two hits in three trips to the plate for the best individual batting record of the day. . . . . He's a fighter down to his toes, this Grimes fellow, and you have to admire his grit, whether you like him or not otherwise. . . . A great competitive spirit makes him a tough loser, and have you or haven't you observed that tough losers seldom lose? . . . . . It takes nerve to toss one at a batter's head to chase him back from his toehold at the plate in a pinch with a hostile crowd barking at your heels, and no one ever heard of Burleigh letting the hitters crowd him. . . . . Say what you will about a fellow who will throw at their heads, but it's part of the game, especially when, as stated above, the stake is high.

* * *

The local union printers, who recently staged the international printers' baseball tournament on local diamonds, will toss a banquet as an aftermath of the event at the Henry Hotel one week from next Tuesday night and are getting up an elaborate program for the affair . . . It strikes us that the time is ripe for the local promoters to begin bringing in some first-class opposition for Battling Gizzy to fight . . . This human windmill is too good for the men he has been called upon to face recently, as he demonstrated when he cleaned up Chet Smallwood, the last of the lot of district foes, at the Moose Temple a few nights ago . . . How about matching him with Tony Herrera or Sammy Mandell or some one of that caliber at Motor Square Garden? . . . It's a good bet a bill of that sort would just about sell out the place, and at the same time it would give the fans a real line on whether or not Gizzy is another Harry Greb in the making . . . We'll never know how good the Donora Terror is until we see him in action against a few of the game's best who can extend him.—HARRY KECK.

JOE M'CARTHY LIKES BUCS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—Joe McCarthy, five years in the saddle as manager of the Cubs and now a free lance, yesterday was still dodging bids for his services. The most insistant seekers are the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox, but there is reason to believe that the man who lifted the Cubs from eighth place to a pennant is holding off in hopes that the Pittsburgh Pirates might come through with an offer.

McCarthy, through no fault of his own, has almost stolen the thunder of the present World Series. The baseball writers from New York have dogged his every step and even gone so far as to declare that everything already is arranged for him to manage the Yanks next season.

McCarthy admitted that he was thinking both of New York and Boston, but that he was going to hold off on the signing of a contract. He wants to sleep over the matter, as Joe puts it.

The general belief is that McCarthy, feeling his prestige was hurt by his discharge, from the Cubs, wants to go to the team offering the best pennant possibilities. The Red Sox have nothing like that to offer. The Yanks have. So have the Pirates.

REPORTED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—While it was reported that Joe McCarthy, formerly manager of the Chicago Cubs, was in New York today to confer with Col. Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, Ruppert denied he had seen McCarthy or that he intended to see him. The Yankees' owner denied he had signed McCarthy as his manager.

Reports current were that Ruppert had already signed McCarthy and that announcement would be made of the deal after the World Series.

Meanwhile it was reported the Boston Red Sox had offered McCarthy a contract at his own figure. Some had it the former Cub manager was debating whether to sign with the Sox at $40,000 a year.

FIGHT RESULTS

At McKeesport—Jimmy Belmont knocked out Johnny Poetic, 4 rounds; Young Rudy defeated Paul Oger, 10 rounds; Lloyd Clements knocked out Mike Kelly, 1 round; Eddie Gubs defeated Leonard Payne, 6 rounds.

At Barberton, O.—K. O. Kelly knocked out (technical) Mike Dempsey, 3 rounds; Jack Rose knocked out Hoots Burger, 2 rounds.

At Philadelphia—Joe Anderson defeated Vincent Forgione, 10 rounds.

At Cincinnati—Freddie Miller defeated Johnny Farr, 10 rounds; Pete Petrosky defeated Tony Lafosse, 6 rounds.

At Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Sammy Mandell defeated Spug Meyers, 10 rounds; Kid Leonard knocked out (technical) Battling Nelson, 5 rounds.

At Chicago—Edgar Norman knocked out (technical) Frankie Clark, 6 rounds.

At New York—Kid Kola defeated Marie Leiner, 10 rounds; Joe Kelly knocked out (technical) Joe Calucci, 6 rounds.

Long's Sport Comment

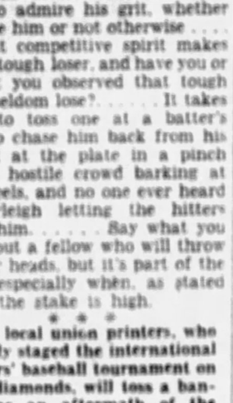
hole, he just put on steam and struck out the next batter. It is taking advantage of the openings and breaks and keeping men from being left on bases that spells a real ball club, and thus far in the series the A's have proved themselves far superior to their opponents. In two games the White Elephants have made only 12 hits, but have scored 11 runs, whereas the National Leaguers have made 15 hits, but scored only three runs.



Jim Bottomley

YOU CAN'T WIN ball games when your runners are allowed to perish on the sacks. The A's have been knocking them in, while the Cards have been leaving them out there. True, some unusual fielding breaks have appeared against the Redbirds in this respect, notably Boley's stop for a force play and Bishop's catch of Frisch's liner in the first game, and Dykes' snaring of Frisch's line smash for a double play in the second encounter, but in the main, the Macks have shown more of a punch than their foemen in the pinches. The Cardinal cause in that direction has been sadly hampered by Street's persistence in keeping Bottomley in the clean-up role. Bottomley has had a poor year and there was every argument for removing him from the clean-up notch. In the two series games he has gone hitless and failed to reach first base in eight times at bat, has fanned twice and has knocked only one ball out of the infield. In the 1928 series also he was a bust, making only three hits in 14 times at bat. Keeping a weak or slumping hitter in fourth place, instead of putting him near the bottom, kills many a rally.

THERE IS NO question that the champion hard luck hitter of the series is Frankie Frisch. The St. Louis second-sacker shows up well enough in the averages with the healthy mark of .375, but that doesn't do justice to his stick-work. With ordinary luck he would be hitting .625.

Just because two fiery liners off his bat went straight toward enemy infielders, whereas a difference of a few inches either way would have made them safe hits, Frisch has been robbed of two extra-base drives. In the first game, Bishop took a triple from him, and yesterday Dykes pulled down a smash that would have been good for two sacks, and turned it into a double play. At that, they didn't keep Frisch from breaking a World Series record. His double in the first inning of the second game gave him a total of 43 hits in World Series play, beating the old mark of 42, which was established by Eddie Collins.

STERLING LAUDS CHICAGO FETE FOR HEARST

Illinois Lieutenant Governor Offers Thompson Aid For Thursday's Event

Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling arrived here to lend the power of the state of Illinois in making the official reception to William Randolph Hearst next Thursday an outstanding event. He said:

"Gov. Emmerson authorized me to say that the state desires to share in this deserving tribute to that great American, Mr. Hearst.

"If the legislature were in session, I am sure we would all feel greatly honored to have Mr. Hearst address the two branches. Since we cannot expect him to come to Springfield we are coming to him in Chicago."

The Illinois Staats-Herold, a newspaper printed in the German language, said in a front-page editorial yesterday that "Chicago will be honored" by Mr. Hearst's visit.

The editorial stated that:

"Mr. William Randolph Hearst is the outstanding American of today. He has done more for this country in advancing American principles than any other individual."

Heads of a score of organizations of Americans of German extraction were making arrangements to have large delegations accommodated at the Soldier Field stadium. They acted in accordance with a resolution adopted by the officers of the groups at a meeting in the council chamber.

Mayor Thompson will speak about the program in an address over KYW from 8:15 to 8:30 Saturday night.

HARRIS BURIAL TOMORROW

The Rev. Father E. J. McGonnigle, former Pittsburgh pastor, is coming from Bonesteel, S. D., to participate in funeral services tomorrow for Dennis Harris, theater executive, who died Thursday night in Mercy Hospital following an operation. The priest officiated at the marriage of Mr. Harris.

Services will be held in St. Phillip's Roman Catholic Church, Crafton, at 10 o'clock.

Assisting the pastor, the Rev. Father W. C. Kelly, will be Father Forney, as deacon; the Rev. Gilbert, sub-deacon; Father Fuller, as assistant to the pastor, and Father McGonnigle.

Friends of the family will visit the Harris home, Harris Terrace, Crafton, between 9 and 10 o'clock. Interment will be in Calvary Cemetery, Hazelwood avenue.

AUTOS KILL 38 DURING MONTH

The report of Coroner W. J. McGregor for September shows 38 persons were killed by automobiles in the county, for which eight drivers were held for the grand jury on manslaughter charges. Two were killed in bicycle accidents, three died of burns, four drowned, falls were fatal to 23, five died in mine accidents, accidental poisoning killed two, rail fatalities numbered two and trolley cars killed two.

There were 14 suicides and 11 murders in the month and four succumbed to alcoholism.

AIR LINE OPENS ROUTE OCT. 15

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The new transcontinental air line, formed by a merger of the Trans-Continental Air Transport, Western Air Express and the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, will begin operation October 15, establishing an all-daylight 36-hour service from coast to coast, for mail, passenger and freight service. An overnight stop will be made at Kansas City.

All of the stock will be owned by Trans-Continental Air Transport, Western Air Express and Pittsburgh Aviation Industries.

12 PASSENGERS HURT IN WRECK

MUNFORDVILLE, Ky., Oct. 3.—(A. P.)—Twelve passengers were hurt, none seriously, in the derailing of Louisville and Nashville passenger train No. 4 here today.

The train, en route from New Orleans to Cincinnati, struck a broken rail, official reports said, a mile south of here and just a few minutes after it had crossed the Green River trestle. The injured included M. C. Freeze, 30, and Mrs. M. J. Freeze, 26, of McDonald, Pa., minor cuts.

Lonsdale, St. Louis (Mo.) banker.

MOTHER FINDS GIRL SHOT DEAD

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Fifteen-year-old Phyllis Folk was found shot to death outside her parents' home. A .32 caliber revolver lay in a summer kitchen nearby and powder burns on the girl's clothing led police to believe she had committed suicide. The gun belongs to the girl's grandfather.

Phyllis' mother, Mrs. Roy Folk, was visiting at the home of a neighbor when she heard a shot. Rushing back to her own house she found the girl lying dead.

The parents were unable to ascribe a motive to the girl's action. They said she had been removed from school a year ago because of ill health, but that she later recovered.

AIRWAYS RADIO FOR DISTRICT

An airways radio station for the Pittsburgh district is being built on a five-acre plot in Jefferson Township, near the South Hills Country Club, by the airways division of the United States Department of Commerce, according to announcement today.

When finished the station will cost aproximately $100,000. It was designed to supply aviators here with timely weather reports, which are to be sent out through the air every 15 minutes so that fliers may pick them up.

The Pittsburgh station will have direct contact with similar stations at Buffalo and Washington. Weather data will also be given to ground forces at Pittsburgh airports by means of teletype machines.

CONTO SUSPECT HEARING SET

KITTANNING, Pa., Oct. 3.—Constable William Raper, held on a murder charge in the slaying of Joseph Conto, Leechburg soft drink manufacturer, will be formally arraigned at 2 p. m. Wednesday before Justice of the Peace Frank J. Atkins.

Date of the inquest will be set after the hearing.

Attorney E. O. Golden, of Kittanning, has been retained to defend Raper.

Police Chief Martin O'Lear, of Leechburg, visited the scene of the murder on the Shearer farm today, seeking possible clues.

PARKING CHANGE URGED IN VOTE

More than 94 per cent of all members of the Pittsburgh Motor Club who answered questionnaires sent out by the Traffic Problems Committee want a change in parking regulations downtown, Lewis W. McIntyre, city traffic engineer and chairman of the committee, announced.

McIntyre said the questionnaire reflected the motorists' dissatisfaction with the downtown traffic conditions.

Weather Continues To Delay Ocean Hop

HARBOR GRACE, Oct. 3.—(INS.)—Unfavorable weather conditions today again delayed the scheduled hop-off for Europe of Capt. Errol Boyd and Lieut. Harry Connor in the monoplane Columbia.

JAPANESE RICE PRICES SLUMP

TOKIO, Oct. 3.—Due to a bumper rice crop, which is 12½ per cent above normal, prices collapsed, marking the lowest points since 1917 at Tokio. The Osaka rice exchanges closed futures trading. Spots broke 3 to 21 yen during the day. The Tokio stock market also was weak.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—The second shipment of gold to the United States by the Yokohama Specie Bank, amounting to 7,500,000 yen ($3,750,000) will leave Tokio Sunday aboard the steamship Hikawa Maru.

Feedstuff Prices Continue to Drop

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Improved pastures in some sections, lower grain markets and heavy farm feeding of home-grown feed supplies, as a result of reduced farm income, has caused commercial feedstuff prices to continue on a downward trend, the Department of Agriculture announced in a special report on the feed situation.

Feed grains were lower with wheat, but were also influenced by some slackening in demand. Heavy importations of Canadian barley were reported in eastern markets. The corn crop is now generally safe from frost except in a few sections where considerable acreage is still green.

URGES SAVINGS, NOT DOLE, FOR JOB RELIEF

Bankers in Convention Tend Toward Conservatism, Not 'New Fangled' Ideas

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—The spirit of conservatism pervaded the interchange of ideas among the nation's chief money-lenders yesterday at the closing session of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the American Bankers' Association.

Though hopeful of near-term business recovery, the speakers warned against the alleged insidious effect of "new fangled" ideas and half-baked ameliorative economic measures.

For example, Rome C. Stephenson, South Bend, Ind., banker, in accepting the presidency of the association, urged the common man to seek protection against unemployment in a savings account, rather than in a government dole. Furthermore, the vigorous Fred W. Sargent, lawyer by profession, and president of the Chicago Northwestern Railroad, insisted that government subsidy of highways and waterways was resulting in unfair competition to railroads, which was proving confiscatory.

Mr. Rukeyser

KENT HITS SENATE

Fred I. Kent, director of the Bankers Trust Company, New York, deplored the disposition of great masses of half-educated people to follow unbalanced and unscrupulous politicians in finding remedies for economic conditions by methods in direct violation of knowledge gained by experienced men.

Biding his time for many months, Mr. Kent used this occasion as an opportunity to strike back at the Senate, which humiliated him late last year in connection with his remark that Congress was partly responsible for depression on account of tariff delay. On the stand before the Senate Committee, Mr. Kent was embarrassed. Without referring to his own experience, the banker insisted:

"Attempts to tear down the dignity of American citizenship behind the cloak of immunity should be subject to impeachment even in a senatorial body.

"It is more spectacular to 'get men' than to correct abuses and therefore the politician is out to get men. Thereby he often discredits an industry to the detriment of the people and misses the opportunity to correct, without harm, abuses which in rapidly growing industries often arise from speed in development because of public demand and not from wrong intent on the part of any man."

BRANCH VIEWS STAND

The slightly more liberal attitude of the convention on branch banking, which it had hitherto in three resolutions opposed in any form, was emphasized anew this morning, when the resolution, adopted yesterday, was reopened on parliamentary grounds. Opponents of the resolution pointed out that John G. Lonsdale, retiring president, had neglected yesterday to call for "noes." The resolution as adopted yesterday expresses approval of community-wide and county-wide branch banking, and of state autonomy in such matters. It was proposed this morning to strike out the recommendation regarding county-wide branches. The proposed amendment was overwhelmingly defeated, and the resolution as put through yesterday was readopted by a striking majority.

In his inaugural address, given about eight hours before President Hoover was scheduled to address the convention, Mr. Stephenson, reporting the result of his canvass of business sentiment among the 5,000 commercial bankers present from all parts of the country, said:

"It has been definitely encouraging to learn from delegates representing every section of the country, that business is gradually improving in their communities. These reports of better times throughout the country have been an inspiration to us. We shall return to our homes with renewed confidence in the future of business and with a determination to do everything possible to speed the day of its return to normal."

LOANS DECLINE $159,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Loans on stocks and bonds to brokers and dealers by reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City decreased $159,000,000 during the week ended October 1 to $3,063,000,000. This compares with $3,222,000,000 in the preceding week and with the high record of $6,804,000,000 on October 2, 1929.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The New York Stock Exchange reports collateral loans to members at the close of business September 30 amounted to $3,481,452,761, a decrease of $117,180,308 since August 31, when these loans totaled $3,598,633,069.

On September 30, 1929, loans to members amounted to $8,549,383,979, the high record for all time. The low record since publication of figures began, in January, 1926, was established at $2,767,400,514 on May 31, 1926.

ARKANSAS GETS LOUISIANA OIL

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Henry L. Doherty & Co., fiscal agents of Cities Service Company, announced the purchase of the controlling interest in the Louisiana Oil and Refining Corporation of Shreveport, La., for account of the Arkansas Natural Gas Corporation, a Cities Service subsidiary.

The Louisiana corporation is one of the largest refiners in the mid-continent field, and operates modern oil refineries at Shreveport with daily capacity of more than 25,000 barrels. These plants are connected with the oil fields of Northern Louisiana and Arkansas by 365 miles of pipe line, with a capacity of 16,000 barrels daily. Manufactured products are marketed through 154 bulk plants, 1,053 service stations and more than 4,000 dealers in seven southern states.

"For Those Whose Bodies Are Victimized by Constipation And Its Long Train of Evils, "I STRONGLY Recommend Flaxolyn"

DR. HEINRICH RITTER OF SWITZERLAND CALLS ATTENTION TO THE NATURAL POWERS OF FLAXOLYN

Speaking from one of the highest health resorts in the world—St. Moritz, 5,500 feet high in the Alps—Dr. Ritter says of Flaxolyn:

"After thorough examination and test of Flaxolyn, I am happy to make my endorsement. I should say that for those whose bodies are victimized by occasional constipation, and its train of evils when neglected, Flaxolyn is strongly recommended."

Dr. Ritter is one of a number of physicians retained to pass expert opinion upon the merits of Flaxolyn. Others include Dr. Albert Nussbaum of Vienna, the distinguished Professor Dr. Remy Hirsch of Berlin, Dr. Fernando Vivaldi of Rome—all of whom declare Flaxolyn to be a most effective preparation.

Red Cross Doctor Praises Flaxolyn

Dr. Regina Schuman, active on the battle-front with the Russian Red Cross during the war says: "I have known many cases where temporary constipation betrays itself in the complexion and eyes. In fact, I think this is a very common condition, although a physician is, as a rule, required to make such a diagnosis. Keep the body free from constipation at all times, and for this I can recommend Flaxolyn very highly."

Flaxolyn Formula Made Public

Flaxolyn owes its great popularity to one thing—pure herbs in effective combination with highly approved vegetable extracts, bile salts and organic medicinals.

In all parts of the world, native farmers are right now growing their choicest herbs for Flaxolyn. These herbs will be inspected, sifted, cleansed and shipped to the Flaxolyn laboratories to be compounded.

It takes weeks to extract all the good out of the raw herbs, for Flaxolyn. Many processes are gone through before you get your bottle. But at every stage, expert chemists guide the manufacture, and a physician of reputation stands in control.

MARKET GAINS SHARPLY CUT AT CLOSE

Stocks Irregular at End Of Session When Wide Advances Are Pared Off

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—A substantial advance in the stock market today was sharply reduced in the final few minutes of trading by extensive week-end profit-taking.

Although bullish forces derived considerable encouragement from the large drop in brokers' loans and the remarks of President Hoover before the American Bankers' Association, business news was in the main disappointing, and traders were content to take moderate profits.

A long list of stocks was sent up 2 to 7 points, but the late selling movement lopped off 1 to 3 points of these gains. Fox Film was heavily sold in the final dealings, closing 2½ points lower. Montgomery Ward had been under pressure earlier, selling off more than 2, but it recovered slightly. U. S. Steel, after selling up 2½ points, lost half its gain. General Electric, General Motors and Radio closed ¼ to ½ lower. Advances of 7 points in Allied Chemical and Case were cut to 4. American Telephone, Westinghouse, Standard of New Jersey, United Corporation and Woolworth closed 1 to 2 higher. The close was irregular. Total sales approximated 2,000,000 shares.

HOLD DECLINE ENDED

Commission houses were not inclined to look for any runaway bull market, but several felt that yesterday's action tended to indicate that the September decline had reached a fairly definite climax on Tuesday. The brokerage loan tabulation, covering the trading week ended Tuesday, was indicated as bearing out this theory, for the sharp decline in loans at last gave evidence of the weeding out of weak holdings. The preceding three weeks had resulted in a net gain in loans of $112,000,000, despite a sharp contraction in quotations.

While Mr. Hoover refrained from making any predictions as to when better times may be expected, bulls hoped that the reasoned optimism which he expressed would go far toward dissipating the somewhat hysterical pessimism that had reigned in speculative circles of late.

INDICATE SLACKENING

Early samples of week-end business reviews indicated some slowing down of the seasonal upswing noted in previous weeks, but further gains during October were still expected in many lines. Omission of the Richfield Oil dividends was the outstanding item of the day's corporate news, but it had been clearly foreshadowed by the market action of the stock.

Although more dividend reductions and unfavorable earnings statements are expected during the next few months, bullish circles feel that this may have been discounted by the September decline. In the meantime, several large bear traders have not changed their position, and most observers see little if any indication that important banking groups are taking any interest in the market at this time.

Call money again renewed at 2 per cent, but the offering of funds for placement over the week-end imparted an easier tone to the money market.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Grain values scored notably fresh upturns today largely as a result of unofficial estimates that feedstuff losses other than corn have reached a staggering amount with the actual corn crop decline reported as now totaling 632,000,000 bushels, the direct drought loss in corn coupled with the corn equivalent of hay and sorghum decreases, makes an estimated aggregate of 933,000,000 bushels. Under such circumstances, persistent commission house buying especially from sources east was much in evidence, and grains rose to the day's highest level as transactions neared an end.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1⅞-2⅛c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1⅝-2c up; oats, 1-1¼c advanced, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 20c.

Rainbow Luminous Probed by N. Y. Curb

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—The New York Curb Exchange has sent a questionnaire to its members asking details on all transactions in Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., Class A and B common stock between September 24 and October 1. The names of buyers and sellers are requested and the volume of dealings.

The action is a result of the suspension of trading in Rainbow by the Curb authorities yesterday which came about following the suspension of firm of Piperno & Co., which was the principal market sponsor of the stock.

Chemical Company To Call Bond Issue

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—President Bowker, of American Agricultural Chemical Company, announced that not less than $1,000,000 of the company's first refunding mortgage 7½ per cent gold bonds would be called for February 1, 1931, at 102½. The remainder of the bonds are subject to call at 102½.

The bond issue was originally $30,000,000 in amount. Amount outstanding on August 1 last was $8,390,000, of which $223,500 was owned by the company and held in anticipation of sinking fund requirements.

Ohio Standard Oil Refunding Proposed

CLEVELAND, Oct. 3.—Standard Oil Company of Ohio stockholders on October 13 will vote on the issuance of $12,000,000 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock. Public offering of the issue will be made by the Chase Securities Company, of New York.

Stockholders of Standard Oil of Ohio will have no rights on the new issue.

The present 7 per cent preferred issue, of which $7,000,000 is outstanding, will be called for redemption January 15. The call price is $115. The new issue, which will be $100 par, will be callable at $107.50.

Postpones Utility Probe Indefinitely

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 3.—Wheat was dull unchanged to 1 penny lower. The market opened off ¼ penny and at 3 p. m. was down 1⅝ to 1¾ pence.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Stocks climbed cautiously on the Curb today. The favorable brokers' loan figures, now at their lowest total in about three years, increased speculative confidence moderately, but only a in few instances did the shorts exhibit much eagerness to cover. Trading was virtually as dull as in some of the sluggish mid-summer sessions.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Our Leaders Are on Trial: Suggestions

By B. C. FORBES

B. C. Forbes

I WONDER if the men who run things in this country are conscious that they are on trial?

Never before have so many letters come to this column criticising the inaction of America's leaders—government leaders, financial leaders, industrial leaders, business leaders.

If such criticism is unwarranted, it behooves our leaders to convince the public that its judgment is entirely wrong.

Unless something is done to change the present strongly-running tide of public opinion concerning the powers that be in this country a verdict of "guilty" may be definitely pronounced.

SUGGESTIONS GALORE pour in, some of them sensible, most of them fantastic. Those appealed to range from families of small means to automobile owners, merchandise buyers, employers, our two wealthiest citizens, Henry Ford and John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and, of course, government heads.

The one overwhelming impression created by the flood of communications is that more people than ever before feel very bitterly that the highups in the land are altogether too complacent, too indifferent, too inactive, too willing to let things slide downhill without making any heroic, self-sacrificing, patriotic, painstaking endeavor to stop the spread of unemployment, depression and distress.

LEADERS TELL me privately: "Artificial attempts to interfere with the economic processes now at work would only make matters worse."

If that is their conviction, and I believe it is, why do they not take the time and trouble to explain to the public in simple language WHY they feel as they do, WHY they are sure their attitude is unimpeachably sound?

Old John D. Rockefeller learned—rather late in life—this morsel of wisdom (as expressed to me): "Next to doing the right thing, the most important thing in the world is to let the public KNOW that you are doing the right thing."

Will our foremost men of affairs, our largest employers, our most influential financiers, our great industrialists ponder that Rockefeller injunction?

Extracts from letters offering questions:

"Everywhere I go I urge everyone to spend 50 cents extra per week. We have 34,000,000 people who could spend this extra 50 cents and so add $17,000,000 each week to business income. This would mean about 680,000 people could be given work at $25 a week."

"A LEGEND of war time tells how the chief engineers of all the great airplane companies of America were locked in a room in Washington and were not permitted to come out until they had pooled their secrets and released their patents and had collaborated to produce the Liberty motor. Would it not be possible to bring together the chief engineers in the fields of finance and industry and let them pool their secrets and collaborate to produce a plan for setting people free from the recurring cycles of economic depression.

"Is it possible the men with money were the first to show a yellow streak? Wherever a few men are gathered together, whether in smoker, club or hotel, I ask the first crepe hanger if he bought a new car this year. Five out of six say 'No.' Just try it. They will admit in the end they could, without endangering their financial standing. What would it mean to business if you could secure the co-operation of chambers of commerce, boards of trade, Kiwanis and Rotary clubs to canvass their members, make a game of it, and have men that could really afford to buy a new car do so now?"

"TO MY MIND the so-called leaders or captains of industry have degenerated to a multitude of shrimp-spined weaklings.

"While I was sitting at a buyer's desk the shipping clerk came to the buyer five times to report that they were entirely out of five different items which the firm had said their salesmen to go out 1 sell. His explanation to him was that the president had instructed him not to buy. That is commercial suicide.

"I believe you can start a buying epidemic. There are 122,000,000 people in the United States. If each family would buy one bag of sugar at the present below-cost-of-production price, it would help to start something. The same families could easily afford to buy 100 or 200 pounds of flour, now very cheap. Also five or 10 pounds of raisins or grapes or prunes. Many surpluses could be taken off the market within 60 days if the proper campaign was conducted."

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Sugar and Confectionery Sales Good

The deliveries of refined cane and beet sugar to the trade and the sales of candy by confectionery manufacturers during the first seven months of 1930 are compared with the corresponding figures for the past two years. Sugar Sources: The Sugar Institute and the Domestic Sugar Bureau. Candy Source: Foodstuffs Division, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Deliveries of Sugar

The sugar refiners of the United States delivered 76,757,025 one-hundred-pound bags of sugar during the first seven months of 1930, which is 1% under the corresponding deliveries of 1929 but 9% over 1928. This is another industry which is enjoying a normal sales year.

Sales of Confectionery

Due to the varying number of manufacturers (440 to 479) who have been reporting their sales monthly, only the average sale per company will make the figures comparable. During the first seven months of 1930, the average sale per manufacturer was 4.3% under the same period of 1929 and 1.1% under 1928.

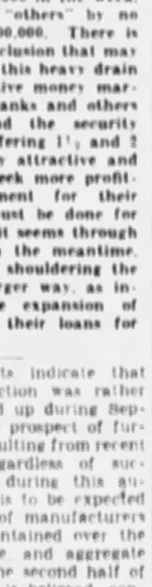
Wall Street Surprised By Contraction in Loan Total



The financial community was not a little surprised by the rather spectacular contraction revealed in the collateral loan total as reported by the Federal Reserve yesterday. A substantial decrease had been anticipated, but few had looked for anything as large as the shrinkage of $159,000,000 disclosed. It was in the corresponding week a year ago that the figures reached their all time peak at $6,804,000,000. At that time loans for own account comprised about 16 per cent of the huge total, advances for out-of-town banks about 27 per cent and loans for the account of others 57 per cent. Of the current total of $3,063,000,000 loans for "others" comprise but 20.4 per cent, advances for out-of-town banks about 19.6 per cent, and loans for local banks' own account fully 60 per cent.

Further heavy shifting of the burden of such loans from out-of-town banks and "others" to local member banks is set forth in the figures. The huge drop recorded, is the net result of equally spectacular changes in the various brackets entering into the total. For example, it is shown that loans for the account of out-of-town banks were cut by $180,000,000 in the week, and those for "others" by no less than $92,000,000. There is at least one conclusion that may be drawn from this heavy drain on the speculative money market. Interior banks and others presumably find the security loan market, offering 1½ and 2 per cent, hardly attractive and are moved to seek more profitable employment for their funds. This must be done for the time being it seems through investment. In the meantime, local banks are shouldering the burden in a larger way, as indicated by the expansion of $113,000,000 in their loans for the week.

Current reports indicate that radio set production was rather generally stepped up during September with the prospect of further stimulus resulting from recent radio fairs. Regardless of success of retailer during this autumn season, it is to be expected that operations of manufacturers will be well maintained over the immediate future, and aggregate production for the second half of the year will, it is believed, considerably exceed that of previous 6 months' period. Earnings prospects are less clearly defined, however, with outlook clouded particularly by recent announcements by R. C. A., General Electric and Westinghouse suggesting that superheterodyne sets will be extensively advertised to the posible disadvantage of the independent manufacturers now in full production with tuned radio frequency and neutrodyne sets.

Estimates place profits of Mack Trucks, Inc., at around $600,000 in the third quarter, or about half the quarterly dividend requirements. Indicated net for the first nine months is $2,500,000 or $3.25 a share. Current estimates indicate a fair profit in the fourth quarter, making an estimate of $4 a share for 1930 seem conservative. Maintenance of the $6 dividend is indicated both in the company's strong financial position and the fact that nine months' results added to those of 1929 will show Mack paying less in dividends for the two years than it has earned.

Continuing the record of increased earnings which started in May this year, American Ice Company for September will show the greatest earnings it has ever had for that month. This will bring net profit for the first nine months to well above the like period last year, which then established a record for the period. It is probable the full year will show earnings exceeded the $3,431,124 or $4.22 per share on 600,000 no par common shares, which were last year's results.

Recent long pull buying in General Foods has been based upon expectations of benefits to the company's earnings from the existing price situation in the commodities market, according to interests close to the company. Inventories of General Foods are declared to be at the lowest levels on record. The company's sales are said to have reached their low point in July and have been in an upward trend since then.

Oil Industry Facing Critical Period

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

PRODUCTION VASTLY IN EXCESS of requirements has created two sets of circumstances for the oil industry. One is favorable, the other unfavorable.

Proration has proved an effective weapon in maintaining market prices in spite of the large stocks of both crude and refined petroleum and the enormous potential output of the leading fields. The industry still has a serious problem, however. It has come to the end of its active season and must now struggle to keep the runs of oil down to a rate which will not demoralize the price structure.

From a long range viewpoint the story is different. The leading oil companies have sufficient potential production to take care of their requirements for a long period. Most companies can serve their markets for several years without being compelled to do any drilling or exploration work.

Expenses Low

IF OIL PRODUCERS are successful in maintaining their proration agreements and if no new fields are discovered, the industry will pass through the winter in good shape. Next year and in the succeeding years the producers can reap the profits of recent development work.

The oil companies for the past five years have been steadily increasing their investments in production facilities. They have reached a point where most organizations will do only the drilling which is made essential for self protection. For several years to come the oil trade will be in a period of liquidation. It will be getting its money out of the vast reservoirs of oil which have been uncovered in the course of expensive drilling campaigns. Stockholders undoubtedly will benefit.

Seeking New Markets

IN EFFORTS TO FIND outlets for their growing production many companies have been seeking new marketing fields and have been striving for more intensive development of old territories. If this is carried too far, it may result in making the distribution end of the oil business less profitable.

While the tendency to seek greater wholesale and retail outlets will increase competition, it is unlikely that the industry will carry this movement to great excesses. The spirit of co-operation, which has been seen in the desire to restrict production, may also become apparent in the distribution end of the business.

Progress Made

IN THE FIELD OF PRORATION encouraging progress has been shown but the industry is still skating on thin ice. In the first seven months of 1930 stocks of crude and refined petroleum increased 4,181,000 barrels. This compared with a gain of 52,693,000 barrels in the corresponding period of 1929.

While output was still greater than consumption up to the end of July, most of this year's addition to stocks was eliminated during August and September.

Under normal conditions stocks should drop during the busy summer months and should gain in the winter. This year the industry has merely broken even up to the end of summer and now has to face several months of reduced demand. The machinery of proration has been increasing in efficiency so that it is reasonable to hope that the gains in stocks this winter will not be too great for the industry to handle.

National Grain Body To Assist Members

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—In view of the apprehension among grain growers in all parts of the country as regards lower prices of wheat, the Farmers National Grain Corporation has advised all stockholder members that it is prepared to extend assistance on margin loans if necessary to prevent forced sale of farmers' holdings.

Tin Plate Prices Reduced 25 Cents

American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, has opened books for the first half of 1931 on Tin Plate which is quoted $5 Pittsburgh, and $5.10 Gary. This is a reduction of 25 cents per base box. Prices are effective as of October 1, and are the lowest since April 1923, when the price was advanced to $5.50 from $4.95.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(AP)—Institutional demand for investment securities carried the best grade bonds forward at a moderate pace today. The volume of business was somewhat under the previous session, ascribed in part to the appearance of several large offerings.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Quotations in the most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, as compiled by the Associated Press from reports of transactions in securities of United States bonds in dollars and fractions of one per cent:

DAILY TRUE STORY

Interest for Life

Dully Nevins went through the routine attending his release. In a few minutes the door of the prison would open for him and he would be free. But the thought brought no quick heart-beat, no thrill of joy to ease the ache in his heart.

For the thousandth time he cursed himself for a fool to have landed in such a mess for a girl he had never seen before and would never see again. He didn't even remember what she looked like. He only remembered her eyes—the stark terror in her eyes. With one bound he had crossed the floor of the cabaret, torn the girl from the embrace of her drunken escort and knocked the fellow down. A brawl, the police—arrest! Of course he had no defense. He had had no right to interfere. The girl was nothing to him. She was probably no better than her escort or she would not have been in such a place with such a swine. Nevins had been sentenced to six months. So much for playing Sir Galahad to maidens in distress, he mocked himself bitterly.

How would he get a job with no reference but a prison record? Six months ago a penniless stranger, he had come to the city to seek his fortune. With confidence, industry and a smile so frank that it revealed the honest soul of him he knew that he would make good. But now his confidence was shaken, his self-esteem bruised, his smile faded. Who would employ him if he told the truth? And if he lied, he would live in constant fear of detection of dismissal. He saw himself for a fool.

Disgusted With Women

The door of the city prison swung open for him. It clanged behind him. He was free. Without looking either to the right or the left he hurried down the steps. He did not see that a girl darted out from behind one of the massive grey pillars at the entrance. He did not hear her light step behind him. In the street Nevins stood uncertainly for a moment, his eyes blinking in the morning sunshine. Then he bent his head and walked on. The girl caught up to him and laid a hand on his sleeve.

"Oh, please—" she began softly.

Nevins stiffened. Someone had seen him leave the prison. He turned and saw the girl.

"I'm so glad you—I'm so glad—" She broke off because she did not know how to congratulate him upon his release without wounding him.

"What do you want?" Nevins demanded frowning. He was sick of girls. "Who are you?"

"Why I—" she smiled tremulously. "I'm the girl you hit that fellow for."

"Oh!" came from Nevins slowly.

"I'm so sorry you got into such trouble on my account."

Nevins didn't remember her at all. There was no terror in her eyes now. They were eager and smiling, blue eyes set in a small face uptilted like a child's, pleading for forgiveness. She repeated.

"I'm so sorry."

"Oh, well——" Nevins turned hopelessly away. But the girl followed him.

"Would you mind if I walked on with you a little?" she begged.

Talks of Self

Nevins shrugged his shoulders. She followed his long stride with short, quick steps. At the sound of her heels clicking behind him he looked back. She was a little thing, barely reaching to his shoulder. He slackened his pace.

"Wouldn't you like a cup of coffee, maybe?" she ventured. "And some pie? I know a place—real home-made pie."

Something stirred to life in Nevins and a ghost of a smile flickered about his mouth. He didn't say either yes or no, but presently he found himself sitting at a snowy table, drinking fragrant coffee and allowing heartily bites of delicious cherry pie. He closed his eyes to keep on dreaming. But it was no dream. The girl was still there.

Her soul shone in her eyes like a mother's soul hovering over a little boy whom she had hurt unwillingly, aching to gather him up in her arms and kiss the hurt away. How could she comfort this great big boy hurt in his pride, in his hopes? She filled his cup again and placed a generous cut of pie on his plate.

"Great stuff!" he murmured, replete at last.

With delight she noticed that his eyes were not so hopeless, his mouth did not droop. She held out a package of cigarets. Nevins took one. She struck a match and held it for him until he puffed the cigaret to life. He leaned back lazily and smoked as he watched her through half-closed eyes. Her attentions soothed him, body and soul. He felt at peace with her opposite him. She knew he had been to prison and why. She knew the truth as no one else would ever know it.

Tell me about yourself, she said. Her voice soothed him like a caress.

Not much to tell, he answered. I'm a stranger here. I walked into this town six months ago. It was certainly an unlucky day for me.

Lucky for me, though, she murmured.

I came here expecting to get a job. I landed in prison. It's the unexpected that happens.

Yes.

To Start Business

"A fine time I'll have getting one with my reference." His eyes were hopeless again; his mouth drooping.

Maybe you could do something for yourself, she suggested. Start something for yourself.

"Start out for myself?" he repeated puzzled.

Yes. Start a business for yourself. It will be easier for you. Any one will take your money and no questions asked.

"You're right," he admitted with a bitter smile. "No one asks for reference if you pay for cash."

"It is a good idea, isn't it?"

He put his hand in his pocket and took out some bills and some silver and laid the money on the table. There were five dollars in all.

"How's that to start a business with?"

The girl leaned forward eagerly.

"Would a thousand dollars be enough?" she asked.

Where would I get a thousand dollars?

Her fingers fluttered over the clasp of her bag. She drew out a paper and laid it beside the bills and the silver. It was a thousand-dollar bond. Nevins stared at it.

"I want you to take this and start some business with it," she said.

"You're so rich?"

"Oh, no!" she laughed. "I'm not rich at all. But I've got a good job and that bond is my own—all my savings." As his eye traveled appraisingly over her natty suit and becoming hat she added:

"I bought this suit and hat special for today. It's such a holiday for you and for me, too. I knew you'd be feeling blue and I wanted to cheer you up. I thought it would cheer you up to be out with someone who looked—nice." She stopped and blushed.

Explains Act

Nevins looked at her shining eyes and smiled.

"You do look sweet," he said. "And you've cheered me more than I can tell you. But I can't take your money."

"Why not?" she demanded earnestly. "Didn't I take six months of your life? I've taken more—your chances to succeed, maybe. Why can't I help you as you helped me?"

She swallowed to keep back the tears.

"Maybe you think I'm bad because I was in such a place with such a beast. But I'm not that kind. He asked me to go out with him and I went because I was lonely. I'm all alone here. I didn't dream he'd take me to such a place and act like—that. When you knocked him down—when the police came—I was frightened. I ran home—glad to get out of it. Then I realized what a selfish coward I was—not to stand by you—to explain. I found out that you had been given six months. I've been eating my heart out ever since—waiting for this day so that I could make up to you for all you suffered on my account. You must let me make up for it. You must. You've been my friend. Won't you let me be yours?"

Her tears fell frankly now. It was Nevins' turn to comfort her.

"Don't—please—" he pleaded, "or you'll have me crying with you. I didn't expect to find a friend today. It's almost more than I can bear."

"Promise that you'll take the money," she sobbed.

"I'll borrow it and pay it back with interest. In fact," His hand closed over hers with crushing tenderness. "I'll pay you interest on this bond as long as I live."

Having said otherwise long enough to convince everybody, doctors have now decided the best way to arrange your diet is to eat what you want.

Which is all very well; but we don't quite see where next year's conversation is coming from.

Furthermore, with unemployment what it is, this is not a very opportune time to let people know they're capable of eating on their own responsibility.

But maybe food specialists will be able to convince the regular customers they should have consultations to find out what they like.

Most of them have probably forgotten, anyway.

Ministers and Religion

This paper is a reverent paper. It believes in religion, it supports the efforts and activities of the churches, and realizes and appreciates the good that ministers of the gospel do in the world.

Nevertheless, there are some occasions when this paper cannot agree with certain ministers, however well-meaning they may be.

The other day a group of Christian ministers got together and denounced the American Legion because it did not mention Christ in the prayers of the organization.

The American Legion is not a sectarian organization. It prays as Christ prayed, to the eternal God.

In fact, Christ definitely and specifically gave his followers a prayer to pray. This prayer is so generally recognized as his prayer that it is called the Lord's Prayer.

In it there is no mention of himself. The prayer is to "Our Father which is in Heaven."

Unless this group of Lutheran ministers is ready to complain of Jesus for not having put Christ in the Lord's Prayer it should not denounce the American Legion for praying according to the Lord's Prayer.

A short time ago another body of Christian ministers got together and denounced those temperance advocates who believe that the policy of permitting the restricted consumption of light wines and beers is a better temperance policy than prohibition.

Here again these Christian ministers seem to forget that Christ has turned water into wine.

We have no record of his having turned any water into whisky or gin or rum or brandy or any hard liquor; but he did turn the water into wine, and as far as the example of Christ is concerned, he did sanction to that extent the use of wine.

Therefore, those who believe that the suppression of hard liquors and the permission of light wines is the best temperance policy can hardly be properly denounced by Christian ministers unless the ministers are ready to denounce the action of Christ in turning the water into wine.

Finally, a body of Christian ministers got together the other day and denounced the whole public because the attendance was falling off at some Christian churches, and because the people generally were not supporting these Christian churches and their Christian ministers as they should.

This paper desires to repeat its statement that it is a religious paper, that it supports the proper efforts and activities of the churches, and that it believes in the good that Christian ministers can do and should do.

But it wishes respectfully to say that if the public were not reading the Hearst papers, the Hearst papers would not denounce the public, but the responsible editors of these publications would get together and try to find out WHAT WAS THE MATTER WITH THE HEARST PAPERS.

Perhaps it would be well for the Christian ministers who are denouncing the American Legion and denouncing the sincere temperance people who believe in moderation rather than prohibition, and denouncing the public generally because the public does not go to church, to find out WHY the public does not go to church and to see if there is not in some cases something the matter with the churches instead of the public.

This paper believes that the whole situation would be remedied by these Christian ministers paying more attention to religion and less attention to politics, and is willing to predict that if the ministers will keep out of politics the public will not keep out of the churches.

There are plenty of statesmen that can tell people what to do about the League of Nations, the American Legion, prohibition and all the other political questions that are issues.

But these statesmen do not presume to, and are not fitted to teach godliness the way the ministers can do and are supposed to do.

This paper repeats the suggestion that the statesmen be allowed to talk politics and that the ministers confine themselves to preaching religion.

Then we think the ministers will find that religious people will be able to go to church.

Register Tomorrow, Final Opportunity

Tomorrow is the last day on which residents of the cities may register for the November election. In Pittsburgh the registration places will be open from 7 to 10 a. m. and from 4 to 10 p. m. In McKeesport, Clairton and Duquesne they will be open from 7 to 9 a. m., from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m., and from 4 to 10 p. m.

The County Commissioners have appropriated $10,000 to promote registration (through billboard, direct mail and newspaper advertising), but the Republican organization has omitted its customary activities to stir up interest. The consequence is that only 57,000 citizens registered on the first two days this year, as compared with 117,978 on the first two days last year and 188,383 during the three days last year. If last year's registration is to be equalled, the number registering tomorrow will have to be several times as great as the number on the first and second days.

Urging registration, Gifford Pinchot, Republican nominee for governor, said in a recent speech he would rather have citizens vote against him than not vote at all. Pinchot appreciates that in a democracy apathy is the deadliest menace to good government.

Soldiers were taught during the war that in a crisis calling for action it was better to take the risk of a wrong decision than to remain inactive.

That same lesson might be applied to civic affairs. Better run the risk of wrong judgment than stay away from the polls.

Register! Vote!

Unsatisfactory State Of Bus Transportation

Capt. Wilson C. Price, superintendent of the State Highway Patrol, proposes to invite representatives of all bus companies operating in Pennsylvania to meet him in Harrisburg to discuss plans for regulation of bus traffic.

There are now more than 400 companies engaged in this form of overland transportation in Pennsylvania. The business has developed with mushroom-like rapidity, with the result that there is more or less confusion as to what should or should not be done.

Capt. Price is of the opinion that some of the companies should alter their schedules so as to give the drivers more time between stations.

The bus situation is unsatisfactory not only in respect to the matters in which Capt. Price is interested, but also in respect to the regulations laid down by the Public Service Commission. Here is an example: If a person desires to go by bus from Pittsburgh to Meyersdale, he must buy a ticket to a point in Maryland; going from Meyersdale to Pittsburgh, he must buy a ticket to Steubenville, O.—because the bus company is licensed for interstate but not for intrastate commerce.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

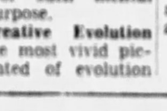
III.—The Elan Vital and the Life Force.

If, as we have given ample reason for believing, acquired characters cannot be inherited, Mr. Shaw's Life Force does not exist.

Bergson's elan vital is in a rather different case. For him the vital urge is something inherent in the very nature of life, but absent from dead matter. It is in some not very comprehensible way intermediate in its properties between the blind activities of lifeless matter and the conscious and purposeful activities of mind. In operation, it reveals itself as a constant tendency toward adaptation.



H. G. Wells

For M. Bergson it is this tendency toward adaptation which accounts for the existence of adaptations, and not such material considerations as the struggle for existence and the elimination of the less fit by natural selection; and equally without aid from struggle or selection, it makes tactfully but firmly for movement onward and on the whole upward in evolution.

The elan vital itself causes evolution. It is orthogenesis translated into vitalistic terms.

But when we begin to look into the argument closely, we see that the elan vital is a mere metaphor.

Living matter has, as its basic property, the power of metabolism and self-reproduction and it varies. From these two properties there follow over-multiplication, the struggle for existence, the survival of the fitter, and the constant stress of natural selection.

If we like to call the combined effect of the struggle and the variation, biological pressure, we can do so. Then why, it may be asked, should we not be poetical and call it elan vital? But biological pressure is a resultant of simpler forces, all unconscious, none vitalistic; while the elan vital is defined as a property in its own right, not further analyzable, and partaking in some obscure way of such mental properties as purpose.

Bergson's Creative Evolution gives one of the most vivid pictures ever painted of evolution at work, but as an exposition of evolutionary method is it valueless.

It is brilliant and poetical description, and it has very properly won its creator the very highest literary distinction. But it is not a scientific explanation.

Section IV. Is There Purpose in Evolution?

Bergson and Shaw, in common with many others, have been so much impressed with the apparent purpose revealed in the slow, stupendous drama of life that they have not hesitated to make purpose the key of evolution. They see purpose not only in its results, but would make it the very heart of its method.

This question of purpose in evolution is a crucial one for biology, and for the contribution which biology is to make to general thought. Let us briefly summarize the conclusions of this chapter; they will help us to decide if evolutionary purpose is real or only apparent.

Our main conclusion is that the chief agency of evolutionary change is the sifting action of natural selection upon practically random variation of the germ plasm. Lamarckism will not work, because neither the direct effects of the environment nor those of conscious or unconscious effort are normally inherited, and orthogenesis is, in most cases at least, a quite unnecessary hypothesis.

But the theory of natural selection provides an adequate explanation for the great majority of the facts of evolution; it can explain the detailed adaptations of animals and plants and their long-continued trends of specialization, the rise of new types and the extinction of old, the progress of life, its retrocessions and degenerations and much, at least, of its variety.

And then we see evolution as a response of life to its environment. It is as much a response as a child's drawing away of a burnt finger from the flame or the growing of a thicker fur by a fox exposed to cold, but the response is effected by a peculiar and roundabout method.

THE ORIGIN OF LIFE

By Archibald Henderson

In the effort to go back to the beginning of things and uncover the mystery of the origin of life, the modern scientist devotes his primary attention to intensive analysis of protoplasm. The search is for some physico-chemical basis in all living matter. Living protoplasm appears under the microscope as a viscid, granular fluid, presenting a foam-like appearance. The key to the changes and activities of this substance are now believed to lie in an ultra microscopic structure, which undergoes various changes in the picture caught under the microscope.

Protoplasm, yielding to chemical analysis, proves to be a colloidal complex comprising chiefly the elements carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, sulphur, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, sodium, chlorin, iron and magnesium. It is a very curious and almost inexplicable fact that all these constituents are likewise found in inorganic matter. There is no chemical element present which is peculiar to living matter.

In consequence, the scientist is driven to study combinations of elements rather than single elements. Such combinations of fundamental importance in this study are proteins, carbohydrates and fats. The most important of these constituents are the proteins, since they are universally present as a part of all living matter and form quantitatively its chief organic constituent.

In spite of the vast amount of study already devoted to the proteins, very little is really known of them. As Underhill says: Viewed from the chemical standpoint protein is seen as a huge molecule, complex in structure, labile in character and therefore prone to chemical change. So large and intricate is the make-up of the molecule that chemists for generations have been baffled in their attempts to gain any adequate conception of its nature. At the present stage of our knowledge it is impossible to form any satisfactory definition of a protein based either on its chemical or physiological properties."

While proteins constitute certain combinations of the fundamental constituents of living matter, they are not themselves "alive." It has been said that protein is "the chemical nucleus or pivot around which revolve a multitude of reactions characteristic of biological phenomena."

The huge molecule called protein may be split up into a large number of simpler molecules. Yet these simpler molecules are still very complex. And it is obvious that protein may be broken up into hundreds or even thousands of atoms.

A noteworthy phenomenon in vital manifestation is what has been called "energy traffic." A sort of trading in energy goes on. As L. L. Woodruff says in The Origin of Life: This energy traffic consists in appropriating energy from the environment, storing it in a state of higher potential and later expending it in the kinetic form. The protoplasmic system is endowed with a sort of plasticity. Allen describes this quality as "peculiar proneness to change its composition under the stimulus of slight changes in the energy-equilibrium between itself and its surroundings."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Remember what happened when you wanted to quit your job at Keenan's grocery and join the village band? Plenty of rumpus—I'll say! Ma crying at the thought of you running around with all those wild hoodlums. Gramp snorting that if he had his way he'd strap some sense into you. And Dad putting his foot down and telling you not to talk tommyrot. So you stayed with Keenan's and became a grocer. Have you been sorry for it since? I wonder. Probably, after that first brief struggle, you accepted your lot without much question. For that was the custom of the time. Kids weren't people. Ma 'n' Dad—particularly Dad—ran the show.

How long ago was that—twenty, thirty years? Queer how changes will creep up on you without you realizing that they've happened! The other day a letter came to this department about another boy and another Dad. This youngster wants to be an artist. And his Dad—a prosperous automobile man named Al Harvey, in Kansas City—is as red-eyed as yours was at the notion. His boy—an artist? Not over his dead body! His boy is going to learn the automobile business. Get a lot of money. Amount to something. Then, according to Dad, some day the kid will be grateful and realize that Dad did "his duty" by him. But the kid guesses not.

Ordinary enough letter but it opened up a lot of speculation. Talking it over here in the office we wondered. Was it really a parent's "duty" to pick a kid's career, over that kid's protest? Or were youngsters People, with rights of their own? Would the world admit that—yet?

We decided to put it up to YOU. So we printed the letter and asked for replies. They came—by the hundreds! Hundreds and hundreds of letters from mothers and fathers in every walk of life and—here's the amazing point—every letter sided with the kid! Even though they admitted that automobiles usually made money and art usually didn't—they sided with the kid—said he had a right to choose his own career! Some change since the old days down at Brown's Corners—yes?

Here, for example, is one from another dad who has also made his in autos. But is George D. Wray, of Shreveport, La., going to force his three sons to sell six-cylinders? He is not. Listen—

Dear Elsie Robinson—

I, myself am a fairly successful automobile dealer and have three young sons in whom I take the keenest possible interest. Therefore your invitation impresses me so strongly that I must give voice to my thoughts.

Where does this automobile dealer dad get the idea that he should take it upon himself to force his son into an employment which he loathes? What guarantee has he that the automobile business will be a good occupation for his son just because he, himself, likes it? Fathers were put here to help sons and daughters realize their own ambitions and not to force them into a life which is entirely foreign to their talents. The most miserably unhappy people are those who dislike the employment they have been forced into. This dad is apparently one of those who would force a round peg into a square hole with the usual result . . . I think he is all wet, and if he persists in forcing his ideas on his son, his son would be perfectly justified in leaving home and taking up his life among people who understand him better.

Sincerely,
George D. Wray,
Shreveport, La.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

There Will Be a Time

Though years are few and flying
On swiftest, soaring wings,
There is no need of sighing
For loved and vanished springs;
No need of any sorrow
For labors left undone,
Or any wish to borrow
Another morning's sun.
There will be time for all things
That you have need to do,
As life rich gifts to all brings
So it will bring to you
Full time to learn the meaning
That deeply hidden lies
Where flow swift currents, screening
Sought secrets from our eyes.
There will be time for wooing
Earth's beauty and its bloom,
All loveliness pursuing
Through summer's fragrant room;
For starshine and song's yearning
For radiant realms of youth,
And, best of all, for learning
The peace and power of truth!

"Bugs" Baer Says:

An Evening at Home

Let's suppose your job is powdering gold and the police arrest you for coming home tired and dusty.

What does your home life consist of? If you can rest on that modern furniture you could squeeze blood out of a turnip or orange juice out of a soda water fountain.

Do the children rush to the front door to greet you? Nope. One is breaking the tree-sitting record and the other is a snooper for the dry agents.

Grandma is in the beauty parlor having her face reorganized and consolidated. The cook is playing backgammon by cable with the chess champion of Vienna.

The wife knows that you are a bull in Wall street. So the first question she asks is, "Where you been all day?"

Which is a natural after you read the evening stock quotations. It isn't jealousy with her. Just economy.

Then you have a nice, family chat with whoever happens to be on the radio.

Next is a discussion of the family budget with Amos 'n' Andy.

Dinner in the nearest cafeteria. The old parlor lamp is on a movie sign helping the electric lights to spell "Gloria Swanson."

Two hours in the talkies. Then an excursion into the news reel to see what's going to happen next week.

Are you any nearer home than when you got there first? No. There's a miniature golf course in the front yard and you have to play 18 holes before you come to a doormat with "Welcome" on it.

The folks next door are going to a night club because they have a lot of things to talk over on the dance floor. You go along because you enjoy home life any place except where you belong.

Then a midnight snack in a corner delicatessen store. The reason why you say "Home, James," to your chauffeur is because he is the only guy who knows where it is.

That's an evening at home. They tell us it's worse in Toledo and Mobile. Which is all right. Why should you stay at home and play bridge with your husband when you can go to Monte Carlo or Agua Caliente and get paid when you win? Address all communications to Clara Bow.

Isn't It So?

It's the brunettes who dye young.

Foresight is a mighty good thing, but it won't keep you from being stabbed in the back.

Some politicians who are carrying water on both shoulders are using it only as a chaser.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Thoughts while strolling: Funeral parlors jazzed up like tea rooms. Those "O. K." talkers who plunge hands deep in pockets and spit through their teeth. Hanson Booth, the artist, has prematurely snow white hair. Wish fruit tasted as delicious as it looks in street car ads.

Keats Speed, a Louisville, Ky., boy, who made good in the city. Who remembers when all baby carriages were high off the ground? The noted financier who "rolls his own." Natacha Rambova's slinking walk. Elderly Harry Salpeter who knows all the literary great intimately.

A cafe called "The Better Ole." Hattie Carnegie, the modiste. Sign: "Our hams are not cured—they were never sick." Phil Dunning who flies from Los Angeles to first nights. A spotted coach dog under a carriage in front of Cartier's. The frazzled hyacinth plants in Helen Gould's window boxes. Is that F. P. A. or Groucho Marx?

Frances Sisson, the oratorical banker. Home made taffy—$2 a pound for goodness sake. The sedate haberdashery in Kaskel & Kaskel windows. Morris Aleshire who used to convulse us with blackboard pictures when teacher wasn't looking. Then had to stay after school to clean the erasers.

The pale and interesting looking Mrs. Irving Berlin. Frederic James Smith, movie editor. Nervous men who give necks quick little twitters. New Yorkitis! An avenue store that never held a "sale." And prospers. A lady walks along reading a letter and weeping. The whooes of fog horns give me the miseries.

An ad firm—Ripp and Bang. The Rialto's best known press agent was named Drum. Elizabeth Cobb and her new husband. Saucy flappers with jaunty berets. I've exhausted emotions over ocean flights. The best I can give them is a glance and quick turn to the funnies. Alexander Woodcott twittering along.

The old Wendell mansion is more forbidding looking than ever. Soon the Union League Club will be on Park avenue. Two blocks of new buildings. When will it stop? The speakeasy famous for "Between-the-Sheets" cocktails. A cop feeding a hurt sparrow. A clean deed in a dirty world.

A Park avenue apartment was recently graced by one of those fantastic paintings by Matisse—three beefy and bloated women with sprouting chin moles. "Ah," exclaimed Gene Crawley. "The Dropsy Sisters discussing their elephantiasis!"

The Belmont, now facing the wreckers, gives older New Yorkers a sentimental wrench. In opulent days when Jim Woods was Mine Host it was the smartest inn in town—not the largest, but encompassing an unforgettable elan.

A skyscraper will shoot up on the Belmont site cater-cornered from the Chrysler building, the tallest (I've been indoors two days) at the moment.

A New Yorker motoring in my section of Missouri writes of seeing a boy lying in the shade at the forks of a lonely country road. He inquired: "Boy, which road goes to Kansas City?" The boy barely nodded toward one and mumbled: "That 'un!" Exasperated he sneered: "Show me a lazier move and I'll give you a dollar." Nothing moved this time but the boy's lips to say: "Put her in my right hand pocket!"

* * *

Speaking of motoring, I have never—and for an excellent reason—learned to drive. Tempus has done a mess of fugiting so now the truth may be told. The first lesson was under the tutorship of Frank Reilly, an old friend, in his car. It was early in Central Park. The foliage sifted splintered sunshine. Birds pulsed morning songs. And other tra-la-la like that for six bars. I was bowling along great guns when my foot slipped on the whopple-choke or something. Our heads snapped back, trees flattened out, and we shot out of the park like a breeze. I have a blurry recollection of missing a tottering gentleman crossing the street by an eyelash. It was the late Andrew Carnegie. The morning papers carried a squib about the iron master's close shave by an "unknown motorist." I grew a beard hiding under the bed for several days. So that, children, is why Master Odd pedals madly around on a velocipede.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Is it your opinion that you are unusually bright?

Do you consider your sense of humor keener than most?

Do you feel that your wit is sharper and so goes over the heads of the general run of humanity?

Are you most happy when you get a laugh from your hearers?

Have you ever stopped to think that the laugh you seek may be AT you and not WITH you?

Your efforts to be funny, smart, sophisticated may be as ludicrous as a poorly told joke.

There are so few persons who are attuned to a keener edge than the rest of the world that it is unreasonable to suppose that you are one of these individuals.

Certainly if you were unusually keen you would be the least likely to think of putting yourself in that list.

But your desire is to be the center of attraction.

You are willing to do or to say almost anything to hold the attention of those whom you can attract.

Your sort of humor may be crude and not so popular as you think.
